WAGE BILL WINS IN TEST AFTER HEATED DEBATE

South Fights Losing House Battle.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 23.—[Special.]—The feud between North and South was revived in all its bitterness today when the bill setting up minimum wage and maximum hour standards was thrust before the house for reconsideration.

Pigeonholed many times and twice rejected, the measure is assured of passage on this occasion, probably by tomorrow night. The overwhelming sentiment in favor of the legislation was shown in a test vote on discharge of the rules committee from consideration of the bill. The count was 322 to 73 in favor of the motion.

South Fights Losing Battle.

Approval of this motion was necessary to get the bill to the floor, the rules committee, controlled by southern Democrats, having refused to give it right of way. Five hours of general debate were concluded today. Amendments will be considered tomorrow.

Southern representatives led by Eugene E. Cox [D., Ga.] and Sam McReynolds [D., Tenn.] fought stubbornly against the bill while conceding the futility of their efforts. Northern Democrats and a large proportion of Republicans indicated their approval.

"Cheap southern labor has risen as a threat to northern industry," declared Representative Charles L. Gifford [Rep., Mass.] "It is high time some protection was rendered the north. Industry has been migrating southward because of the cheap wages and long hours in effect there."

Warns Labor Leaders.

"You propose," replied McReynolds bitterly, "to put upon us in the south the same rates of pay, regardless of the character or kind of employment. This has become a sectional issue, pure and simple. It is a battle between those who want to throw up a protective tarif around northern and eastern industry and those trying to keep southern industry alive."

"I say to labor organizations sponsoring this bill that they'll regret the day they supported it," McReynolds continued. "It won't be long, after this precedent is fixed, that the auto workers and the steel workers and other industries will be asking the government to fix their wages, and when that day comes there will be no further need for labor organizations.

"It is a fight between the south and the north and I am going to stick with the south, regardless of any political sacrifice."

Maverick Recalls Easy Money.

Representative Maury Maverick, plain-speaking Texas Democrat, jumped into the debate with an admonition to southerners that they should not complain about a bill sponsored by an administration which has conferred so many benefits upon them.

"You voted and spent tens of millions of dollars for the TVA in Tennessee," Maverick told his fellow southerners. "You poured millions of dollars into Texas for the Colorado river authority; you poured hundreds of millions of dollars into the south for cotton subsidies and flood control; you poured millions of dollars into the south for WPA, so why in God's name should not the south observe the laws of the land as the rest of the nation does?"

Major Provisions Listed.

The bill, in its present form, sets up a minimum wage of 25 cents an hour and a maximum work week of 44 hours, three months after the President signs it. The wage increases and the work week decreases until 40 cents an hour wage and a 40 hour week are in effect at the end of three years. These standards would apply to all industries found by the secretary of labor to be engaged in interstate commerce.

The bill also contains a provision establishing labor for children under 16, except in special instances where the work does not interfere with their schooling.

It was pointed out in debate that the wage and hour standards will not affect most industries in the north, where the prevailing wages in general are higher than the bill's minimum wage. On the other hand, the bulk of southern industries would be forced to raise wages under the bill.

BUDDY, ORIGINAL SEEING EYE DOG, DIES OF OLD AGE

New York, May 23. — [Special.] — Buddy, the pioneer Seeing Eye guide, a German shepherd dog 11¼ years old, died today from old age at the Morristown, N. J., headquarters of the organization.

Last week the dog was flown from Chicago to Newark in a regular United Air Lines passenger plane with her master, Morris S. Frank, vice president of the Seeing Eye Training school, who was the first blind person in the United States to use a dog as a guide.

EXPECT SENATE TO VOTE RELIEF FUNDS TONIGHT

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 23.—[Special.]—All signs tonight indicated that the bills to increase the state's monthly contribution toward relief from $3,000,000 to $3,500,000 would receive final legislative approval just after midnight tonight.

The measures were passed unanimously by the house of representatives today, all the 142 members present in the chamber voting for them. Later in the day they were advanced to second reading in the senate. At 8 p.m. tomorrow that body is expected to move the bills to third reading and, after midnight, which will bring another legislative day, to give them a large passage vote.

Funds to Be Ready at Once.

Then, with Gov. Henry Horner's signature, the $500,000 increase for May will be available immediately for distribution. About 62 per cent of it—or $310,000—can be diverted to Cook county, where relief stations have been closed for lack of funds.

On June 1 the June grant will be distributed, with Chicago receiving about $2,210,000 of the $3,500,000 statewide contribution. But this would leave the city still short more than $500,000 of the sum the Chicago relief administration says is necessary to operate the stations on the scale hitherto in effect.

Mayor Kelly is expected here tomorrow when the senate takes up the measures on second reading. Two of Chicago's legal experts—William H. Sexton and Joseph F. Grossman—were on hand today, and it is understood they have bills for new revenue to meet the relief question, but are waiting until the mayor arrives before deciding on their introduction.

Two Courses for Chicago.

Should the mayor have a plan it might be possible to insert it as an amendment to one of the measures the senate will have on second reading tomorrow night and, should it be passed, the house could give approval by concurring in the amendment when it reconvenes for a regular session May 31. The plan is for the house to meet perfunctorily coincident with the senate until that date.

Only two courses appear to be open to Chicago in meeting the immediate relief crisis—either to divert from city funds or seek a larger appropriation than the $500,000 monthly increase suggested by Gov. Horner.

The first alternative has brought objections from lawyers on legal grounds. The second is the desire of many Chicago members, but the mayor, in his conferences here last Friday and early Saturday, advised delaying such measures pending further talks with the governor.

Tentative Plans Worked Out.

More or less tentative plans for raising new revenue to meet the $14,000,000 expected to be needed by Chicago for the remainder of the year have been worked out.

By broadening the base of the sales tax, state-wide revenue of perhaps $10,000,000 can be anticipated. Levying of a "use tax" upon those who purchase in large quantities outside Illinois, and thereby evade payment of the 3 per cent sales tax, would produce another $1,500,000.

A proposed tax on cigarets already has been introduced in the senate by Harold G. Ward [D., Chicago], the mayor's legislative spokesman. This levy, at 3 cents a package, is calculated to bring in more than $4,000,000 in Chicago alone.

However, none of the contemplated levies can produce revenue over night. Furthermore, new taxes may bring opposition from the Republican members of the legislature.

Urges Using Available Funds.

In the house today Minority Leader Elmer J. Schnackenberg [R., Chicago] declared that all available funds, held either by the state or municipalities, should be used for relief before resorting to additional taxation.

"To provide the additional funds for relief during the rest of 1938," he said, "resort should first be had to all unexpended legally available funds in the treasuries of both the state and those of the municipalities which are charged by law with the care of the needy unemployed, except only where those funds have been appropriated for a purpose more essential than the relief of said persons."

WHEN DISCRETION IS THE BETTER PART OF HITLER

PANTHER, CRAZED BY WOUNDS, LEAPS IN CAR; CLAWS PRINCE

BOMBAY, May 23.—(AP)—A young hunter today saved the lives of the maharajah of Dewas and two aides de camp when a wound crazed panther leaped into the tonneau of the prince's automobile in a savage, clawing attack.

The maharajah had been hunting panthers in the Khandwa jungle and was on his way back to Bombay with his trophies when the beast attacked. He had bagged three panthers and wounded a fourth. The wounded animal apparently trailed the hunters and leaped on them from a tree as they were leaving the forest.

There was a mad struggle in the back of the car. The panther had clawed the maharajah and his aides severely when the young hunter in the front seat turned his gun on the beast. The men were taken to a hospital.

VISITING FIREMEN GO TO WORK ON A HOTEL BLAZE

Bored members of the Lake County Firemen's association were starting fires and putting them out for practice at their convention in Fox Lake yesterday when they got word that fire was destroying the Haling hotel at Grass Lake, fifteen miles away. Two Antioch fire companies were on duty there but couldn't stop it.

Every fireman who could piled on the Antioch department's reserve truck which Antioch firemen who had the day off had brought to the convention. The rest of the delegates followed in their own cars, led by Frank Dougherty, deputy chief fire marshal of Illinois. And they made a monkey of the fire, putting it out before it could spread to the dance hall, the refectory, the ice house, or any of the other buildings adjoining the hotel.

MULE HAS COLT; MANY COME TO INSPECT RARITY

Columbus, Ind., May 23.—[Special.]—Kick-a-poo, male colt foaled by Mollie, dark bay mule mare on the William Mobley stock farm near Hartsville, was viewed by scores of visitors. The colt, black with a white star on its face, is perfectly formed. Its sire was a stallion. The event was the third foaling by Mollie, which was bought in North Dakota last February. The other colts died. The case attracted interest because it is rare for a mule, which is a hybrid, to have offspring.

Tavern Owner Charged with Minor's Death

While parents and city officials yesterday were demanding a general investigation into the promiscuous sale of intoxicants to minors, Capt. Frank A. Gill of the Gresham police placed a charge of manslaughter against Louis J. Uecker, owner of a tavern at 8428 Vincennes avenue. The action was an aftermath of a tragic high school beer party in the tavern early Sunday morning.

The party culminated in an attempt at suicide by a Hirsch High school girl, 16 years old, and the death of one boy and injury of five other young persons in an automobile accident while they were driving her to the Jackson Park hospital. A coroner's jury that investigated circumstances of the boy's death earlier in the day had recommended Uecker be held responsible in conformity to the state dram shop laws.

Wife Also Accused.

Action was also taken against other tavern owners during the day. Uecker's liquor license was revoked and his wife, Laura, who admitted she sold beer to some of the high school students in her husband's bar, was cnarged with sale of liquor to minors. Licenses of the Oasis tavern, 1150 Diversey Parkway, and a third saloon at 2039 West Madison street, also were revoked by Mayor Kelly.

"The selling of liquor to minors must be stopped in Chicago," declared the mayor. "Sometimes it is difficult to determine the ages of those who enter taverns but we expect owners to exercise the utmost caution."

Victim's Uncle Testifies.

The dead boy was Stephen Funsten Jr., 19 years old, 8450 Bennett avenue. The car which he was driving collided head-on with another automobile driven by James Montello, 1630 Union avenue, Chicago Heights, at 83d street and Rhodes avenue.

Jay Funsten, 8143 South Michigan avenue, an uncle of the victim, testified at the inquest that Stephen had not been drinking and had left his parents only half an hour before the accident, telling them he was going to drive some friends home.

Other witnesses at the inquest described how Jane Tinling, 16 years old, 2805 East 76th street, became piqued because her friend, Frank Ballard, 20 years old, 8005 Merrill avenue, was paying attention to another girl. Obtaining a bottle of iodine the girl stepped to the center of the dance floor and with a toast, "Here's how!" quaffed half the contents before it was knocked from her hand.

Independent investigations into the sale of liquor to minors and particularly to school children were undertaken yesterday by the state's attorney's office and by the school board.

Mayor Kelly said he revoked licenses of the other two taverns upon recommendations of Commissioner Allman. The Oasis, he said, had been the meeting place for six youths sentenced to long terms on charges of robbery last week by Criminal Judge Cornelius J. Harrington. One of the youths told the court that he had been in the habit of leaving his revolver there between robberies.

The saloon on West Madison street was ordered closed after police found a girl of 17 sitting at the bar with four youths, all of whom had highballs before them. The girl had run away from home 10 days before and had been sought by her parents.

DUCK BITES HAND THAT FEEDS IT; WHOLE PARK FLOCK'S IN DOG HOUSE

Boston, Mass., May 23.—(AP)—Mrs. Jeanne Lerman, wife of a Brookline physician, told park authorities today that one of twenty ducks she was feeding at the public gardens yesterday snatched a valuable diamond from the ring she was wearing while feeding them. The ducks all look so much alike that she cannot identify the culprit, so she and the officials have a puzzling problem on how they can recover the gem.

TOKIO SHAKEN BY QUAKE; RAILWAY TRAFIC DELAYED

TOKIO May 23.—(AP)—The northeastern section of Honshu, Japan's main island, was shaken for ten minutes this afternoon by a severe earthquake. Property damage was extensive, but no casualties were reported.

Train and telephone service was disrupted over a wide area. One residence collapsed in Tokio. Thirty suburban Tokio telephone exchanges were affected. Railroad tracks sank beneath the roadbeds near Takahagi. Landslides halted trains at numerous other points.

The quake had a humorous angle at a Tokio wrestling stadium where annual summer matches were being held. Just as the shocks began two chunky mat men fell heavily to the floor, and part of the crowd for a moment was unaware a real quake was in progress.

MANILA, P. I., May 23.—(AP)—A sharp earthquake shook a major portion of Luzon Island this afternoon. No damage or casualties were reported.

Two Alcatraz Convicts Shot; Escape Halted

San Francisco, Cal., May 23.—(AP)—A guard was injured seriously and two long term convicts were wounded by rifle fire today in a desperate attempt by three prisoners to escape from Alcatraz Island penitentiary, the federal government's prison for incorrigibles in San Francisco bay.

James Lucas.
[A. P. Wirephoto.]

Warden James A. Johnston, who reported the attempted break, said it occurred shortly after noon in the factory building of the forbidding "rock."

Those injured are R. C. Cline, senior custodial officer, who was slugged; and convicts Thomas R. Limerick and Rufus Franklin, both shot by a guard. Cline is in a serious condition from loss of blood and Limerick from a bullet wound in the head.

Third Convict Captured.

The third convict, James C. Lucas, who Warden Johnston said once stabbed Al Capone, former Chicago gangster, was overpowered.

Warden Johnston said the trio attacked Cline, who was unarmed, in the wood working shop, and slugged him with a hammer. Leaving him unconscious on the floor, they climbed through a window to the roof, apparently to seize an armed guard on duty there. But the guard opened fire and wounded Franklin in the shoulder. Limerick threw an iron weight at the guard and also was shot down. Lucas ran for cover and was captured.

Warden Johnston identified Limerick as a life term prisoner on national bank robbery and kidnaping charges, Lucas serving thirty years for national bank robbery and Dyer act violation, and Franklin serving thirty years for bank robbery, Dyer act violation, and assault. [The Dyer act prohibits interstate transportation of stolen automobiles.]

Accused Al of "Squealing."

The stabbing of Capone, who was not injured seriously, occurred June 23, 1936, and as a result Lucas was placed in solitary confinement. The weapon was a pair of scissors.

Johnston said Lucas, who was convicted of robbing an Albany, Tex., bank, accused Capone of "informing" on him.

Today's attempted escape was the first since last December when two long term convicts disappeared from the island during a blinding fog and never were seen again.

NAZIS DECLARE LARGE ARMY IS PERIL TO PEACE

BULLETIN.

PARIS, May 23.—(AP)—The central European crisis was considered by French observers tonight to have taken an unexpected turn for the worse as a result of talks between Premier Milan Hodza of Czechoslovakia and Konrad Henlein. Dispatches from Prague said the Nazi leader had demanded that Hodza immediately demobilize the 60,000 army reserves called out last Saturday. Henlein was said to have made demobilization his condition for entering into any negotiations concerning the German minority's demands for self-government.

BY ALEX SMALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, May 23.—Konrad Henlein, mystery man in Germany's dispute with Czechoslovakia, came to Prague tonight to confer with his political enemy, Premier Milan Hodza, in an effort to iron out their differences.

The leader of the Sudeten German [Nazi] party and self-appointed spokesman of 3,250,000 Germans in Czechoslovakia, arrived at 6 o'clock and was received immediately by the premier.

Henlein and Hodza talked for two hours. At the conclusion of the conference the Sudeten German party issued this announcement:

"Henlein conferred at the palace following Premier Hodza's invitation. This marks the beginning of informative talks with the premier which are to serve as a clarification of the political situation."

Flies to Czechoslovakia.

Henlein, who demands political independence for his followers among other things, reached Prague from Asch, his home town, after flying to Czechoslovakia from Vienna. The Nazi leader, who is called Fuehrer by his followers, had conferred with German Nazi leaders in the former Austrian capital. There also were rumors he had had a talk with Reichsfuehrer Hitler yesterday halfway between Munich and the Czech border.

His conference with Premier Hodza came as a surprise in the crisis.

Prague breathed more easily and there was a general feeling of relaxation. The public is convinced there will be no war for the next few days at least.

See War Inevitable.

Foreign diplomats, however, differ in their estimates as to the length of time the conflict will be postponed.

The more pessimistic say it will come during the next week-end. Optimists give Czechoslovakia six months more of peace.

Government circles believe that the fate of the post-war republic will be decided in London and that eventually Germany will make no attempt to conquer Czechoslovakia provided the British serve notice that they will continue to stand behind the Czechs.

On the surface, therefore, everything appears rosy. Prague's official circles claim to have knowledge that the Germans are withdrawing troops massed near the Czech borders. The Czechs on the other hand deny there are any big concentrations of their own troops.

Czechs Crow Over "Victory."

No intelligent person in Prague believes that the problem has been solved or that the danger of war has been permanently avoided. The feeling for war has been too well developed among both the Czechs and the Germans.

The Czechs already are crowing loudly about the "victory" they have won over the Sudeten Germans. In private conversations the Germans say they will wipe out in blood the humiliation they have suffered.

Preparations for war are still continuing in Czechoslovakia. It was learned from reliable sources that about 350,000 troops are under arms. This figure includes technical experts.

NAZIS RESENT 'MEDDLING'

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 23.—Berlin heaved a sigh of relief today. The conviction spread that the danger of war had been averted at least temporarily.

party in Czechoslovakia, to negotiate directly with the Prague government to "turn the victory achieved at the polls to the advantage of the Germans."

[The first of a series of municipal elections were held in Czechoslovakia on Sunday. A total of 1,500 communities voted. The Sudeten Germans boosted their municipal council seats from 69 to 105. More elections will be held next Sunday and the voting will wind up on June 12.]

"Tired of Interference."

The Germans advised Henlein to accept Premier Milan Hodza's invitation to a conference partly, as said in circles close to the government, "because Germany is tired of the constant interference of the democracies, England and France, in her relations with Czechoslovakia."

The Nazi decision to let Henlein confer with the Czechs delighted the diplomats in Berlin. They said it has been their aim for months to bring about direct negotiations.

German newspapers prominently displayed reports that the Czech soldiers had attempted to blow up two bridges, half of which are in German territory. The press also played up the crash of a Czech military plane on Czech soil after it had flown over German territory near Baerenstein in Saxony.

Foreign Minister Kamil Krofta of Czechoslovakia apologized in Prague to the German minister, Dr. Ernst Eisenlohr, about the bridge incidents before the latter was aware of them.

Scoffs at Diplomatic Apology.

"A diplomatic apology cannot settle the matter and obliterate it," said the Berliner Tageblatt.

In reply to the indignation voiced in the German press about the Czech plane flying over Germany, the Czechs pointed to the German invasion of Austria when more than twenty German planes flew far into Czech territory and then returned to their home airports. Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering delivered an apology at the time and the Czechs accepted it.

Berlin officials said Henlein in his negotiations with Hodza demanded that his followers be given police power in the territory occupied by the Sudeten Germans.

The Germans said that the Sudeten German police force was responsible for the calm during yesterday's elections. Czechs and foreigners who were in towns close to the border maintained that the calm became most evident after the arrival of military reinforcements.

Whispering Campaign Is On.

Men and women who have been scooting through Sudeten German regions telling Nazi friends that Czechoslovakia was surrounded by German troops who were reinforced by Italian soldiers have been discreet during the last 24 hours.

The effect of their whispering campaign still is evident because when a foreigner meets a Sudeten German the latter will start questioning him on the number of Italian troops which supposedly are with the Germans near the Czech border. The foreigner who truthfully states he never heard of or saw Italian troops near the border immediately loses caste. Fanatic Nazis refuse to believe there are no Italian troops near the frontier.

Seeks Czech Peace

FASCIST DENIES TREASON CHARGE FOR 8½ HOURS

BUCHAREST, May 23.—(AP)—Corneliu Codreanu, chief of the Fascist Iron Guard, today made an eight and one-half hour defense plea against the government's charges of espionage and high treason.

"The fuehrer of the National Youth movement cannot be a traitor," Codreanu asserted in an impassioned and sometimes incoherent plea to the military tribunal trying him. Under the law on which he is being tried Codreanu could receive a penalty ranging from twenty years to death.

The pale, nervous defendant emphatically protested his innocence against evidence tending to show he had handed over secret documents to foreign journalists and denied a charge that he had spent a small fortune in building up his now outlawed political organization.

Codreanu and more than 1,000 of his followers were arrested in a wholesale roundup on April 21, when the government asserted it discovered a plot to capture King Carol and set up a Fascist state.

EUROPEAN CRISIS EASED, BRITAIN IS TOLD BY PREMIER

Chamberlain Discloses Story of Dispute.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 23.—Europe, after another nightmarish week-end, today still resounded with ominous rumors, but Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain assured the house of commons that for the moment the situation appears to be somewhat eased.

Chamberlain's statement did not convey the impression, however, that the British think the danger point has been passed.

On the contrary there appears to be so much going on behind the scenes that Chamberlain, before his statement to the house of commons, called leaders of the Labor and Liberal opposition parties to his official residence at No. 10 Downing street and privately gave them the "low down" on the crisis.

Seeks to Avoid Criticism.

This step is usually taken when the government wants to obviate embarrassing criticism which would not be in the public interest.

In assuring the nation that tension over Czechoslovakia was perceptibly relaxed, British officials appeared to be adopting the attitude of enforced calm. At the same time, they gave the idea that while danger of war appears to have diminished there is nothing certain about the immediate future. As a matter of fact the British expect Adolf Hitler will continue to bring pressure on the Czechs in one way or another.

In some quarters it was believed that Poland's last minute notice to Germany that if the French marched to help Czechoslovakia the Poles would honor their alliance with the French alone averted Hitler from starting hostilities last Saturday.

Seek to Act as Mediator.

Chamberlain in his statement emphasized that the British were anxious to play the rôle of mediator in the central European crisis.

"The principal concern has been to use all the influence wherever it could be effected on the side of restraint in word and deed," the prime minister said.

British concern, however, appears to be acute over the fact that the Germans, especially Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, personally have resented the British steps as unwaranted interference in the affairs of central Europe.

Feared Second Sarajevo.

Chamberlain gave a brief review of events leading up to the crisis. He said reports of troop movements on May 19 set off alarm bells all over Europe. He disclosed that when the shooting of two Sudeten Germans by Czech border guards at Eger occurred late Friday night it was feared the ghosts of Sarajevo were about to walk again.

[The assassination of Archduke Francis of Austria and his wife, at Sarajevo, Bosnia, June 28, 1914, by Gavrilo Princip, a Serb student, was the spark that ignited the world war.]

Chamberlain was careful to avoid taking any sides or giving the slightest hint of blame or approval of either side.

He seemed to place great store in the fact that Konrad Henlein, leader of the Sudeten German [Nazi] party, had agreed to meet Premier Milan Hodza of Czechoslovakia.

Told to Avoid "Incidents."

Chamberlain said he had stressed to the Czechs the need of avoiding incidents which might set off the spark of war, and making every effort to reach a comprehensive and lasting settlement. He announced in conclusion that Von Ribbentrop yesterday had said that Germany welcomed British mediation efforts and that the Nazi government shared the desire for successful negotiations.

British officials pointed out that the Germans and Czechs are bound by an arbitration treaty. However, this does not appear to change the fact that Czech and German troops are still facing each other across the frontiers and that a showdown is under way between two axis—Rome-Berlin and Paris-London.

Diplomatic circles in London attached importance to last night's discussions on the German-Czech crisis between Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet of France and William C. Bullitt, United States ambassador to France.

Although it was said that Bullitt merely sought information on developments, British officials are reported to have been encouraged by dispatches from correspondents at Washington, D. C., of the favorable reaction of the American government toward the efforts of Britain and France to obtain a settlement.

JAMAICA POLICE AND BRITISH TROOPS FIGHT CROWDS OF STRIKERS

KINGSTON, Jamaica, May 23.—(AP)—Armed British soldiers and police undertook today to drive strikers and unemployed sympathizers from Kingston streets. Several persons were injured, including a government scientist, in disorders following the spread of strikes among workers demanding higher wages.

Arrow locates area of strike rioting.

Stevedores, street cleaners, and electric plant workers were on strike. Street car operators left their trams. Paraders seized bread vans and parceled out the food to hungry crowds. Grocery stores and all commercial houses were shuttered. Police, aided by British troops who were called from their barracks, made several baton charges, injuring a number of persons. Once a rifle volley was fired over the heads of paraders.

New Mexico High Court Dismisses Ickes' $7,500 Suit

Santa Fe, N. M., May 23.—(AP)—The New Mexico Supreme court today upheld dismissal of a $7,500 suit filed by Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes in the death of his wife in an automobile accident in 1935. The opinion held a cause of action for wrongful death does not survive the death of the statutory wrongdoer. Frank W. Allen, Gallup, N. M., owner and driver of the rented car in which Mrs. Ickes was riding when the fatal crash occurred, died several days after the accident.

FRENCH CHARGE CZECH NAZIS PILE UP WAR SUPPLIES

Arms Seen as Fuel for "Million Incidents."

PARIS, May 23.—(AP)—The French cabinet tonight reviewed diplomatic efforts to ease the German-Czechoslovak tension. Both French and Czech quarters said the Prague government had evidence that the German minority in Czechoslovakia was storing up war supplies reported to come from Germany.

This they feared would be fuel for a "million incidents" if the Sudeten Germans used the arms to start a revolt and might afford Adolf Hitler an excuse to march into Czechoslovakia.

Informed quarters said France and Great Britain had warned Hitler there could be no intervention in Czechoslovakia to make of that mid-European republic another Spain.

Says War Danger Still Exists.

A foreign ministry spokesman said the danger of a central European conflict was not completely dissolved, since Czechoslovakia will hold two more Sundays of municipal elections such as passed yesterday without bloodshed, but in continent-wide tension.

"When Berlin wakes up to the fact France means business and will uphold her treaty with Czechoslovakia by force of arms, then perhaps the Germans will calm down," one spokesman said.

The cabinet at its session approved an 11 billion franc [about $297,000,000] three year public works program.

Decrees to Be Signed Today.

Officials said the public works plan, incorporated in a series of decrees to be signed tomorrow, provided for a payment of 6 billion francs [about 162 million dollars] to municipalities and 5 billion francs [about 135 million dollars] directly for public works to be started and finished by 1940.

It was the second series of decrees adopted by Premier Edouard Daladier's government under emergency dictatorial powers granted to deal with France's economic and financial troubles. The first raised taxes to relieve the French treasury.

ITALY CAUTIONS HITLER TO AVOID STARTING A WAR

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

ROME, May 23.—Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister, and the new German ambassador, Hans George Viktur Von Mackensen, conferred today. It is understood, Ciano strongly urged the necessity of proceeding with the greatest caution in the European crisis and avoiding any act or attitude which might render war inevitable.

Ciano's step was taken at the suggestion of Viscount Halifax, British foreign secretary, who yesterday informed Dino Grandi, Italian ambassador, it is Britain's hope that the Rome government will exert all the influence it possesses in Berlin to avert war.

It is assumed that the Rome-Berlin axis would oblige Italy to give Germany military aid should a conflict break out. It is clear, however, that Italy has absolutely no desire to find herself embroiled in a war in which none of her vital interests is at stake.

900 BREAK JAIL; PURSUED BY REBEL TROOPS IN SPAIN

Seize Arms; Fight Guards at Pamplona Prison.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PERPIGNAN, France [at the Spanish frontier], May 23.—Spanish rebel troops today pursued 900 prisoners who last night made a spectacular break from the San Cristobal prison at Pamplona.

Fight with Guards.

The prisoners battled guards and troops and an unstated number on both sides were killed and wounded. Six hundred of the prisoners were forced back into the prison and the rest fled into the open.

Today troops and volunteers searched the countryside.

It was asserted the break was made possible by the treachery of some guards. Most of the prisoners were political foes of the Franco régime, others were loyalist officers captured in the civil war.

Wedge in Rebel Lines.

Barcelona reports today asserted yesterday's push in the northwestern Catalonia sector had driven a wedge between rebel forces holding Tremp, the site of a hydroelectric station, and Balaguer, which is northeast of Lerida. The loyalists asserted that the push cut through a highway which was the rebels' communication line between Balaguer and Tremp.

The rebels were reported shifting their strength to Catalonian sectors after establishing strong defenses to protect the rebel wedge which reaches the coast between Barcelona and Valencia. Aerial forces moved from the Teruel front to Barbastro, in Huesca province, west of Tremp.

Slain Movie Operator's Two Guns Yield No Clews

An examination of the two revolvers found in the safe deposit box of Henry Schneider, slain moving picture operator, has yielded no clews, Joseph Wilimovsky, ballistics expert for the coroner's office, reported last night. He said the guns had been purchased legally in a loop sporting goods store. Schneider was found shot to death May 17 near Glencoe. The killing remains a mystery.

Motorized Cavalry Pitches Its Camp in a Cloudburst

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Nashville, Tenn., May 23.—[Special.]—The campaigning 7th mechanized cavalry brigade pulled into the state fair grounds here during a driving rain at 5:30 p. m. today. A literal cloudburst broke loose when the head of the column was only ten miles from its camping grounds. Raincoats issued to soldiers by the United States government, combined with overseas caps, gave insufficient protection. The boys got wet.

However, march efficiency was impaired very little. Naturally the column was slowed down. The motorcycle scouts particularly performed admirably. In rain so hard one could scarcely see, they whizzed back and forth, guarding side roads and directing civilian trafic. Spills failed to slow them down.

Earlier in the day two scouts amused the column when they were compelled to act as cowboys and put on a rodeo to save two scared cows, running loose on Tennessee highways, from getting killed.

Four Motor Units Delay Start.

The start this morning at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., was delayed from 6 a. m. to 6:45 a. m. because two combat cars and two trucks were unable to function. A radio message received on the march at 7:20 a. m. advised Col. C. L. Scott that all vehicles were in order.

Gen. Daniel Van Voorhis, commanding the brigade, reversed the order of march today by placing Col. Scott's 13th cavalry up front, Col. Bruce Palmer's First cavalry in second place, and Col. Marshall Magruder's 68th field artillery last.

At 11 o'clock Col. Scott received a message from Gen. Van Voorhis that Col. Palmer reported he was compelled to stop his regiment twice because the trains of the 13th were lagging.

Lieut. Col. Ralph Sasse, erstwhile noted football coach and present senior staf officer of the 13th cavalry, was despatched by Col. Scott via motorcycle side car to correct this laxness, with instructions to "give the officer commanding the trains hell," adding that he ought to go himself on account of being unable to cuss by proxy.

All Units on the Alert.

There is much keen efficiency competition between regiments and each dislikes faults being found by others. Also regimental personnel strives diligently to discover anything new that will give their outfit an edge.

Technical Sergeant Albert Hoffman, being asked how he could figure distances so quickly, replied that he always set his trip speedometer at zero before each morning start.

Some bad staf procedure was encountered during today's march. The column was stopped and started once unnecessarily and there was confusion over the gas supply because accurate location of the fuel trucks was not checked.

The incident precipitated a discussion among several officers as to the best method of road marching for large motorized forces.

Conflicting Opinions Aired.

Some maintain the column should be allowed to stretch out, thereby giving the drivers more chance to protect their cars from stress of sudden stops and starts, while others contend that in war vehicles could go into action quicker if column marches were closed up.

The technical situation tonight is that information was brought in during the afternoon by the plane patrols to the effect that the enemy Blues had crossed the Ohio river and taken up their position at Fort Knox. Gen. Van Voorhis is studying the situation, consulting his staf and regimental commanders, and orders will be forthcoming soon for a march against the Blues, with a view of attacking them and capturing Uncle Sam's gold hoard at Fort Knox.

SUPREME COURT CUTS BASES OF TAX EXEMPTION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 23.—[Special.]—In two far-reaching decisions the United States Supreme court today further narrowed the field of reciprocal intergovernmental tax immunity. The rulings continued the trend in the direction of President Roosevelt's theory that the federal and state governments can tax the salaries of each other's employés and the income of each other's securities without a constitutional amendment.

In a decision delivered by Justice Harlan F. Stone, the court upheld levying of federal income taxes on employés of the Port of New York authority, a bi-state corporation created to perform public functions for New York and New Jersey. In a decision delivered by Justice Owen J. Roberts, the court upheld federal admission taxes on tickets to football games conducted by the university system of Georgia.

[Details of the court's opinion on the power of the government to tax tickets to athletic contests will be found in the sports section.]

Tax Immunity Reëxamined.

The decisions announced today completed a long series in which the court, during the present term, has reëxamined the entire doctrin of reciprocal tax immunity in our dual system of government, first enunciated by Chief Justice John Marshall on the case of McCulloch against Maryland in 1819. The Supreme court has not gone all the way in obliterating this doctrin, but its recent decisions have established a trend in that direction.

President Roosevelt, whose theory was echoed in a concurring opinion by Justice Hugo L. Black in the New York Pork authority case today, contends that the sixteenth amendment, authorizing congress to levy a tax on incomes "from whatever source derived," removed the immunity of state salaries and state securities from federal taxation.

Justice Pierce Butler, in a dissenting opinion concurred in by Justice James Clark McReynolds, declared that the salaries paid by the port authority to its officers and employés were not distinguishable from salaries paid by states to their officers and employés.

In the Port of New York authority case, the commissioner of internal revenue levied deficiency assessments on Philip L. Gerhardt, Billings Wilson, and John J. Mulcahy, respectively, a construction engineer and two assistant general managers, for the years 1932 and 1933. Their salaries, on which they filed no returns, ranged from $8,000 to $15,000.

Cites Marshall Decision.

The opinion by Justice Stone says the constitution contains no express limitation on the power of either a state or the national government to tax the instrumentalities of the other, and that the doctrine that there is an implied limitation stems from the McCulloch vs. Maryland decision. In that case the court held that a state tax upon the privilege of issuing banknotes was invalid.

Justice Stone's opinion continues:

"In sustaining the immunity from state taxation, the opinion of the court, by Chief Justice Marshall, recognized a clear distinction between the extent of the power of a state to tax national banks and that of the national government to tax state instrumentalities.

"He was careful to point out not only that the taxing power of the national government is supreme, by reason of the constitutional grant, but that in laying a federal tax on federal instrumentalities the people of the states, acting through their representatives, are laying a tax on their own institutions and consequently are subject to political restraints which can be counted on to prevent abuse."

POWER OF COURT IN LABOR BOARD CASES IS ARGUED

Supreme Justices Hear Republic Dispute.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 23.—[Special.]—Justices of the United States Supreme court sternly interrogated counsel for the National Labor Relations board today in hearing argument on the government's petition to vacate orders of the Third Circuit Court of Appeals in the Republic Steel company case. The Philadelphia Circuit court restrained the board from taking further proceedings in the case pending the certification of the record.

The Circuit court refused to permit the labor board to vacate its order against the steel company, which required the reinstatement with back pay of 5,000 strikers, in order that it might institute new proceedings and thus avert judicial examination of its admittedly arbitrary conduct.

Appeals Justices Not Present.

The judges of the Philadelphia Circuit court, Joseph Buffington, J. Whitaker Thompson, and J. Warren Davis, made no personal appearance before the Supreme court in the case. They stood on their written return to the rule to show cause why their orders against the labor board should not be set aside. Counsel for the steel company, Luther Day, was permitted to file an intervening petition.

Robert B. Watt, counsel for the labor relations board, argued that the Circuit court acted "unlawfully" because it had no jurisdiction in the Republic case. Under the act, he said, the Circuit court does not acquire jurisdiction over labor board orders until the transcript of the record has been filed in court.

He relied upon section 10 [D.] of the National Labor Relations act, which states that: "Until a transcript of the record in a case shall have been filed in a court, as hereinafter provided, the board may at any time, upon reasonable notice and in such manner as it shall deem proper, modify or set aside, in whole or in part, any finding or order made or issued by it."

"You wouldn't say that the court didn't have jurisdiction to require the transcript to be certified, would you?" asked Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes.

Watt at first insisted that the court had no jurisdiction whatsoever, but under further questioning he conceded that it might order the board to certify the transcript if there were some unusual delay. Such was not the issue in this case, he argued, because the board wished to vacate its own order.

Justice Butler Enters Discussion.

"Section 10 [D.] doesn't purport alone to be the governing section because it refers to what follows," Justice Pierce Butler told Watt. "You refused to certify the transcript. How can the aggrieved party ever get the record if you won't give it to him and the court has no jurisdiction to force you? Just how is the aggrieved party going to get the case in court? One wouldn't readily construe the statute to intend that one party might exercise its discretion to defeat a right of the other party."

Justice James Clark McReynolds also questioned Watt along the same line, demanding to know how the company could ever get the transcript into court if the court had no jurisdiction to compel its production.

Watt found it difficult to express his contention until Chief Justice Hughes, without indicating any position of his own, undertook to clarify it for him. As the chief justice expressed it, Watt was contending that the court had no jurisdiction to order the transcript because the labor board wished to vacate its order against the Republic Steel company.

Justice Hugo L. Black clearly indicated a position in favor of the labor board when he questioned Attorney Day, counsel for the steel company.

Relies on Section of Act.

"First you appealed to the court from the order of the labor relations board, asking the court to vacate the order," Black remarked. "Then you asked the court to restrain the board from vacating the order. Why did you do that?"

Attorney Day said the company wanted the board restrained because the board only wished to institute new proceedings.

Mr. Day relied upon section 10 [F.] of the act, which was cited by the Circuit court judges in their return. After making provision for an aggrieved party to petition the Circuit court for a review of the board's order, the sub-section says:

"A copy of such petition shall be forthwith served upon the board, and thereupon the aggrieved party shall file in the court a transcript of the entire record in the proceeding, certified by the board, including the pleading and testimony upon which the order complained of was entered, and the findings and order of the board.

"Upon such filing the court shall proceed in the same manner as in the case of an application by the board under sub-section [E.], and shall have the same exclusive jurisdiction to grant to the board such temporary relief or restraining order as it deems just and proper, and in like manner to make and to enter a decree enforcing, modifying and enforcing as so modified, or setting aside in whole or in part the order of the board."

View of Appeals Court.

On this point the return of the judges declared:

"The aggrieved corporation, by filing and serving this petition for relief and by requesting the board to file, or to deliver for filing, a certified transcript of its proceedings, complied with the jurisdictional requirement of the act, so far as it was within its power to do so. The respondents believe and so aver that it then and there became the statutory duty of the board forthwith to file such transcript; and then show to this court that in recognition of such a duty the board, in acknowledging service of the original petition, undertook and promised 'to get up the record as promptly as possible for certification to the court.'

"The respondents believe and so aver that the jurisdiction of the Circuit court of Appeals attached upon the making of service as specified in subsection [F.] and that the jurisdiction of the court could not be defeated by the failure of the board to perform its statutory duty."

The labor board won three victories today when the Supreme court refused to review its orders, previously upheld by the Circuit Court of Appeals, against the Remington-Rand company, the Black Diamond Steamship company, and the Carlisle Lumber company. The board's order in the Remington-Rand company required an offer of reinstatement with back pay to 4,000 employés who went on strike in March, 1936.

FARLEY ARGUES U. S. HAS NO ALTERNATIVE BUT PUMP PRIMING

Defending the Roosevelt administration pump priming program, Postmaster James A. Farley argued yesterday that there appears to be no alternative to this course. He spoke before 250 members of the Chicago Commonwealth club, most of them business men, at a luncheon in the Palmer house.

He answered the question of "Why try it again?" regarding pump priming, with this analogy:

"Suppose a life guard pulled a man out of the water where he was drowning and revived him through first aid methods. Suppose that five years later the same man again got beyond his depth and was brought ashore in as bad condition as he was the first time.

"Would anybody suggest that because the original first aid treatment had not kept him out of the water there was therefore no sense in repeating the process?"

GRADUATION DAY LOOKS DIFFERENT

YOU KNOW what graduation day is like. And you know what the usual "graduation story" is like. But here is a different kind of story, that of lonely old Ty Morley, the school janitor. For Ty saw the outgoing class as they used to be, as kids whom he'd helped, whose lives he had once saved. This is what Ty saw on his last graduation day.

Is This The Sign Of A New Form Of U.S. Government?

TVA represents something new in America: "regional" government. TVA motor-cars carry, not state license plates, but TVA plates. TVA's 1,000,000 acres pay no taxes, cut state and country revenues accordingly. People cannot vote either for it or against it. When it fixes power rates, no state utilities commission can touch them. Bills pending in Congress would divide the country into six more regional governments like TVA. Here is a report on how the one we now have is working out.

CHINESE REBUILD LINES ON FRONT WEST OF SUCHOW

Germans Deprive Chiang of Staf Advisers.

SHANGHAI, May 23.—(AP)—China's legions today strove to re-form their shattered ranks on the central war front while their cause received a major setback in the reported withdrawal of German brains and munitions from the fight against Japan.

Hankow advices that Chinese forces had escaped from a Japanese circle around fallen Suchow were dimmed by an official communique which said Germany had ordered home Gen. Baron Alexander von Falkenhausen and his staf of forty odd advisers to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

[In Berlin government departments disclaimed knowledge of such a withdrawal order. They pointed out that German advisers in China were in a purely personal and not official capacity. The Japanese embassy in Berlin said "certainly" Japan had not requested the withdrawal of the unofficial German advisers.]

Twenty-Five Divisions Escape.

Authoritative sources asserted Germany served notice she was suspending shipments of arms and munitions to China.

Gen. Li Tsung-jen, commander of the defeated Chinese forces at Suchow, reported that his troops had engineered a strategic retreat westward across the Tientsin-Pukow railroad and that he was re-forming his lines at Yungcheng, which is sixty-five miles southwest of Suchow in Honan province.

While the Japanese admitted twenty-five Chinese divisions had escaped from the band of steel they threw up around Suchow, the invaders said there still remained more than 100,000 Chinese trapped in the area.

Seek to Close Rail Gap.

The Japanese reported their fighters continued to advance north of Suchow along the Tientsin-Pukow railroad, narrowing a thirty mile gap of unconquered trackage. They said they hoped soon to close the gap and restore communication over the railroad between North China and Shanghai.

Kaifeng, ancient capital of Honan province 182 miles west of Suchow, was seriously threatened by a Japanese column which reported it had cut the east-west Lunghai railway at Kuhingchi, within sixteen miles of that important city. The provincial capital is the last major point between the westward moving Japanese and Chengchow, rail junction forty-two miles west. The Peking-Hankow railroad intersects the Lunghai at Chengchow.

TELLS WALLACE HE'S TO BLAME IN STOCKYARD CASE

Kansas City, Mo., May 23.—(AP)—Elton L. Marshall, former solicitor of the department of agriculture, today wrote Secretary Wallace that the defects in procedure found by the Supreme court in the Kansas City stockyards case resulted from the handling of the case by Wallace's own administration and not its conduct by the preceding administration.

It was in the stockyards case that Chief Justice Hughes held that the "rudimentary requirements of fair play" must be observed in the quasi-judicial proceedings of administrative agencies.

In a letter to the chief justice, Secretary Wallace said that he had inherited the case from the preceding Hoover administration.

Marshall, who was solicitor for the department from December, 1929 until March 1933, wrote Wallace: "The tenor of your statements is to the effect that in making the [stockyards] order you merely followed precedents of the previous administration. This is exactly what you did not do.

"You were not following precedent—you were making precedent—and this gave rise to all your subsequent trouble in the case."

'ENERGY TABLETS' SPUR ON JAPAN'S WEARY SOLDIERS

BY ELMER PETERSON.

WITH THE JAPANESE ARMY IN CENTRAL CHINA, May 23.—(AP)—The Japanese soldier swallows "energy tablets" when unduly weakened by prolonged fighting, lack of sleep, or enervating heat.

If necessary, he inhales oxygen provided in small tubes and released into a rubber-silk bag.

This scientific attention to human energy is one of the ultra-modern touches disclosed in a first hand inspection of the organization and methods of a Japanese army in the field. This correspondent's inspection was the first permitted a foreigner since the start of the Chinese-Japanese hostilities last July 7.

Glimpse of Modern War.

The inspection gave an insight into a modern war as practiced by a modern army.

The writer saw mobile X-ray equipment driven up directly behind the front lines as an aid to field surgery.

A soldier suffering from an abdominal wound was lifted onto a table and a gasoline engine speeded up to provide current for the equipment.

In a few minutes the surgeons completed their examination and, with actual fighting progressing only a few miles away and war planes droning, the patient was carried to a mobile field operating unit.

The unit was made up of three trucks joined by runways and tent-like canopies.

"We cannot afford to lose men the way the Chinese can," a Japanese field surgeon said.

The organization of a scientific army was disclosed in other ways:

1. In the use of field wireless by land units for reporting detailed movements and by planes for hourly reports.

2. In the one-two-three precision with which engineers built a pontoon bridge.

3. In a large "horse hospital" where hundreds of artillery and cavalry horses were being treated and operated upon and where research work was progressing almost on the battlefield.

Handle 50,000 Letters Daily.

Upward of 50,000 letters daily for men in the front lines are being handled at field headquarters.

This writer drank beer bottled in Japan and ate fresh meat brought 400 miles from Shanghai the same day. The meat was a special shipment, the Japanese desiring to demonstrate what could be done.

The "energy tablets," however, attracted the most interest. I chewed one and found it had a faint flavor of peppermint. I inhaled some oxygen and found myself a bit giddy, rather than strong, but with a vision of wars eventually being fought by self-created supermen.

AUTHORIZE BUILDING OF NEW COAST GUARD STATION ON NAVY PIER

The coast guard service proposes to abandon the Old Chicago Coast Guard station at the mouth of the river to make room for control locks now under construction. The new station would be an addition to Navy pier.

SCHEME TO SAVE RED BOROUGH AID TRACED TO JUDGE

Lawyer Reveals How Name Was Altered on Record.

New York, May 23.—[Special.]—Municipal Court Justice Arthur P. McNulty was revealed today as the prime mover in the now widely publicized scheme to save Simon W. Gerson from further adverse publicity. Gerson is communist aid to Borough President Stanley M. Isaacs.

McNulty's responsibility for the first move in the scheme was disclosed today at a hearing before Referee Theodore Kiendl, appointed by the Appellate division to inquire into the Gerson record changing case. Justice McNulty is awaiting any possible disciplinary action by the joint legislative committee on law enforcement. This body held him in contempt for refusing to testify to his part in the affair, as shown today through examination of Francis V. Goggins, counsel for Gerson in a rent-dodging case.

Under American Legion's Fire.

It was Justice McNulty, according to Goggins, who first set the wheels in motion to spare Gerson any further public embarrassment at a time when the American Legion and other organizations were demanding his resignation because of his avowed political affiliations.

Several days after a summary judgment for $150 had been returned against Gerson, Goggins went to see Justice John J. O'Rourke, the judge in the case, he testified today. The judge informed him that he intended to write an opinion and invited him to look over a rough draft of it. After he had done so, Goggins told Justice O'Rourke that he did not plan to take an appeal because there appeared to be no grounds for one.

Tells Visit to McNulty.

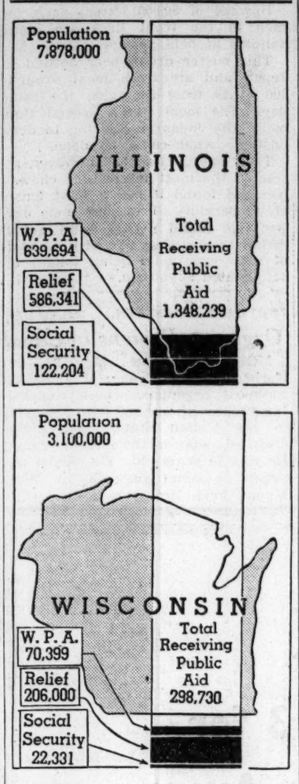
Before leaving the building Goggins visited the chambers of Justice McNulty, a former law associate, and told him of the case involving "Gerson, in the borough president's office."

The witness then testified that Justice McNulty, elected on the same ticket as Borough President Isaacs, asked: "Won't the publication of an opinion involving Gerson and Isaacs get them more publicity?"

Goggins agreed this was true, whereupon Justice McNulty said: "Let's go down and see John [Justice O'Rourke] about it."

As a result of the visit Gerson's name was changed on the court record to "Samuel W. Gilson."

State Relief Loads



Comparison of the populations with the number of persons receiving aid from taxpayers in Illinois and Wisconsin. The relief totals are the sums of those on direct relief, employed by WPA and beneficiaries of the social security act.

Studies of unemployment figures show that one of every six persons is on public relief in Illinois, one of every fourteen in Michigan, one of every eight in Iowa, and one of every nine in Wisconsin.

In all of these states but Wisconsin the Works Progress administration carries a numerically larger share of relief than local governments.

The proportion of the population receiving relief in Iowa has risen from 8.8 per cent last October to 12.4 per cent in March. Iowa's total is the highest since the WPA program began in 1935. Illinois has shown a corresponding increase, with a marked shift of cases from direct relief to federal works projects as the WPA expanded to relieve mounting relief rolls.

FISTS OF POLICE ROUT ROCKFORD C. I. O. PICKETERS

Deputy's Skull Is Crushed by Brick.

BULLETIN.

Rockford, Ill., May 23.—(Special.)—At an overflow massmeeting of 4,500 C. I. O. members tonight it was voted not to interfere with workers going to the J. I. Case company plant in the morning and to send a bargaining committee to see the management when the whistles blew at 7 a. m. Following the meeting the men staged a parade in downtown streets.

Rockford, Ill., May 23.—[Special.]—A C. I. O. picket line at the J. I. Case plant here was broken this morning in a brief battle between pickets and police. Several persons were injured, including one policeman whose skull was fractured. About 150 workers then entered the plant.

About forty policemen and deputy sheriffs routed a mob of 700 members of the United Automobile Workers in the fighting here. A Circuit court injunction issued several days ago held the picketing illegal at the plant, which has been closed since April 27 because of efforts of the C. I. O. union to collect dues.

Mayor Brown Is Booed.

The pickets booed Mayor Charles S. Brown when he urged that they retire peaceably. He said that A. W. Leland, plant manager, had promised to meet the U. A. W. bargaining committee when the pickets were removed. He also pointed out the pickets were violating the court injunction.

Police and sheriff's deputies then charged the picket line and removed an auto which the strikers had parked crosswise on a bridge leading to the plant. Some of the pickets were hurled over the bridge railings. Chief Deputy Sherif Carl Palmgren's skull was fractured when struck by a brick. Fifteen pickets were arrested.

The plant management announced this afternoon that some 400 men were at work in the factory, about half in the shop and the others in the office.

7 Hurt in Kewanee Riot.

Kewanee, Ill., May 23.—(AP)—Pickets trudged quietly before the Walworth company's Kewanee works tonight in the wake of a furious skirmish in which seven men were injured. A WPA worker, James Stiph, was under arrest as the result of a scuffle with Deputy Sherif Fred Swanson. Rioting occurred when C. I. O. pickets attempted to prevent nonstrikers from entering the factory. Police, deputy sheriffs, workers, and pickets engaged in fist fighting. The C. I. O. picket line was established Sunday in protest against an agreement between the company and a local union of valve and fitting workers for a reduction in wages.

ZOO ACQUIRES DEADLY PETS; 2 KING COBRAS

Two king cobras, most deadly of reptiles, yesterday concluded a journey from the jungles of Indo-Malaya in southeastern Asia to the reptile house of the Chicago Zoölogical park at Brookfield. Robert Bean, assistant director, said the two new arrivals are excellent specimens, 7 and 10 feet in length. They are olive green with black cross bands and have bronze colored eyes.

Several new harmless snakes went on view yesterday, Bean said. One is the Trinidad rat snake, 7 feet long, grey-green in color with a yellowish-green belly. The others are American snakes—one blue racer, four pilot black snakes, and one coachwhip snake.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

(ADVERTISMENT)

HELP STOMACH DIGEST FOOD

Without Laxatives—and You'll Eat Everything from Soup to Nuts

The stomach should digest two pounds of food daily. When you eat heavy, greasy, coarse or rich foods or when you are nervous, hurried or chew poorly—your stomach pours out too much fluid. Your food doesn't digest and you have gas, heartburn, nausea, pain or sour stomach. You feel sour, sick and upset all over.

Doctors say never take a laxative for stomach pain. It is dangerous and foolish. It takes those little black tablets called Bell-ans for Indigestion to make the excess stomach fluids harmless, relieve distress in 5 minutes and put you back on your feet. Relief is so quick it is amazing and one 25c package proves it. Ask for Bell-ans for Indigestion.

PREPARE PAPERS TO SPEED RELIEF CASH ALLOTMENT

Employés of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission worked late last night preparing the allotment papers that will speed distribution of the extra $500,000 in relief money the legislature is appropriating for the month of May. E. E. Ferebee, IERC statistician, said the money will be distributed before the week-end if the appropriation bill becomes law tomorrow.

The IERC is expected to allot between $320,000 and $335,000 to Chicago. The balance will go to other communities in the state.

Leo M. Lyons, Chicago relief commissioner, said in Springfield that the money will be used to issue food checks to the 34,000 families that did not receive regular relief checks this month. Fifty-nine thousand families had been given checks when the Chicago Relief administration ran out of money on May 18.

PRESIDENT'S AID ASKED IN CURBING JUVENILE CRIME

Washington, D. C., May 23.—[Special.]—Smartly attired in military uniforms, forty-two cadets from the Morgan Park Military academy of Chicago today presented a petition to President Roosevelt asking that he proclaim a juvenile crime prevention week.

The petition said that there has been a "notable increase in juvenile crime and delinquency in past years because of the distressing conditions imposed upon the youth of our land through no fault of their own."

The cadets requested that Dwight H. Green, former United States district attorney in Chicago, be named active director of the national crime prevention campaign.

FIELDS OF INTEREST

By CALEB

"LET'S SEE the Toy Department first."

"My cousin in Liverpool told me to be sure and see the English china display."

"I want to eat first—I want a Field meal."

"Is it true that you have the biggest basement store in the world?"

"I want to touch the fountain in the Narcissus Room and make a wish—I know it will come true."

Questions? There's no end to them. Answers? It's a pleasure, we assure you—and we furnish literally millions of them. In the course of an average year we conduct between ten and fifteen thousand visitors singly or in groups on special tours through the store. There is, of course, no way of knowing how many more thousands make their sightseeing tours of the store unattended. All of them come primarily to view the store as a great exhibit of fascinating color and endless variety. They are seldom disappointed.

Day in and day out they come—from every state in the Union, and from Europe, the Orient, Africa and Australia. We hear "oh's" and "ah's" in every language. Usually in the case of groups that do not readily understand English, we are able to furnish guides who describe the store in their native tongue.

This year our staff of guides is being enlarged and carefully trained to serve special groups more efficiently and completely than ever before. A guide's course of instruction about the store has been under way for some time.

These trained guides are available every day the store is open, to conduct special groups on a comprehensive store tour. Applicants for guide service usually address their requests in advance to the management. However, arrangements for a guide and special tour can be made on arrival at the first floor personal service desk, or the third floor information desk. The average tour consumes about an hour and a half, but shorter or longer trips can be taken.

The number of special groups and visitors increases steadily. In effect, they come to visit a permanent exposition, finding color, activity, amusement, and instruction to reward them for the time spent in visiting Marshall Field & Company.

MEXICAN TROOPS ADVANCE ON CAMP OF REBEL LEADER

MEXICO CITY, May 23.—(AP)—Leaders of 1,000,000 Mexican workers tonight considered asking President Lazaro Cardenas to arm them to help fight what they termed "the Fascist rebellion" in the state of San Luis Potosi.

The executive committee of the Mexican Workers confederation called a meeting to discuss the situation, many favoring asking the government to arm labor for actual fighting.

Out in San Luis Potosi, capital of the state in wnich federal troops are fighting followers of Saturnino Cedillo, an authoritative source said the government forces had located the camp of the powerful agrarian leader. They were reported to have found it at Montebello, about eight miles northwest of Ciudad Maiz and about the same distance east of Las Palomas, Cedillo's vast ranch in eastern San Luis Potosi.

Nephew of Cedillo Killed.

The government was said also to have intercepted messages from Cedillo's portable radio transmitter indicating he would attempt to make his way northward into the state of Tamaulipas and possibly try to flee to the United States.

A nephew of the hunted Cedillo, Hipolito Cedillo, was killed Friday in a clash in which he and eleven followers fought federal troops near Lazunita, in the southeastern part of the state, the defense ministry announced today. The ministry said the slain man headed a rebel band of 150 men.

Troops Capture Ranch.

Delayed messages reaching the capital disclosed federal troops under Gen. José Beltran Moreno had captured Las Palomas ranch yesterday without firing a shot. About 100 unarmed workers on the ranch fled in trucks and on horses, and no effort was made to pursue them. Cedillo's fighting forces had fled ahead of the government attack.

Heavy infantry forces moved up over the Laredo highway running through Tamaz, Unchale and Valles, and along the Tampico-Potosi railway in an effort to block Cedillo's troop movements eastward.

He was near the scene at the time of the explosion but was not hurt.

STATE UNVEILS LOST WITNESS IN POLICE SCANDAL

Surprise Jolts Defense; Trial Today.

The prosecutors were blue last month when the Town Hall police scandal case was called for trial and they had to admit their star witness, James J. Burke, had mysteriously vanished.

James J. Burke.

They pretended they were just as blue when Judge Rudolph Desort made this month's call for trial yesterday, because the law frees defendants who are still untried after four demands for trial.

Harold Levy, defense attorney, reiterated his demand for an immediate trial. Only then did the prosecutors stop looking blue. They began smiling. They wanted a trial now too, they explained, because Mr. Burke had popped up to tell his story about Kenneth Peters.

Detectives Also Await Trial.

Mr. Peters, the defendant, is charged with assault to rob Mr. Burke. When his case is disposed of, two Town Hall detectives, Earl Flannery and Harold McCune, are to be tried for turning Mr. Peters loose after two uniformed policemen had asked them to take him to the station. Like Mr. Peters, the detectives are represented by Mr. Levy and George Crane.

Before Mr. Burke got a chance to tell about Mr. Peters, he told about his own vanishing act. Two strangers met him on April 23, he said, and told him, "The captain wants to see you."

The captain didn't. They just said that. And then they put Mr. Burke, who used to work in a handbook, on a South Shore train for South Bend. When he opened the envelope they handed him, he found a $100 bill and instructions to meet a fellow who would show him a hideout in South Bend.

Mr. Burke, however, got off the train in Gary and, with the aid of two horses at Havre de Grace and another at Jamaica ran his $100 up to $190. After that he lived quietly in Gary until Sunday, when he came back to Chicago. Capt. Patrick Harding and Detective Edward Gleason of the Town Hall police met him, because they'd had an anonymous telephone message telling what train he'd be on, but Mr. Burke said it wasn't he who telephoned. He added, though, that he was glad it was all over.

Even Judge Is Surprised.

Judge Desort seemed surprised, too, for when Mr. Burke finished his story the judge said he couldn't hear the case immediately. Wilbert F. Crowley, first assistant state's attorney, asked for some one who could hear it, and Chief Justice Cornelius J. Harrington assigned the case to Judge George Fred Rush. Attorney Crane promptly asked for a change of venue, and for a continuance.

But the prosecutors, smiling now instead of looking blue, demanded the quick trial the defense had been asking. Chief Justice Harrington reassigned the case to Judge Robert Jerome Dunne. He couldn't hear it immediately either, and set it for 2 p. m. today.

SUSPECT IN TWO SEARS ROBBERIES SEIZED IN DULUTH

Elgin police were notified yesterday of the arrest of Robert Pond, alleged gunman, in Duluth, Minn. Pond has been identified as one of two bandits who held six persons captive last Jan. 16 in a Sears, Roebuck & Co. store in Elgin and took $650 in cash and $425 in checks.

He also has been identified as one of two robbers who obtained $1,500 from the safe of a Sears store in Bloomington, Ill., after threatening the assistant store manager and his wife. Pond, who is 25 years old and a native of Duluth, was seized Saturday night in a tavern there.

Duluth police said Pond is wanted as a suspect in the slaying of a policeman in a holdup in La Crosse, Wis., and for a robbery in Merrill, Wis.

ASKS FOR PARDON TO AVOID JAIL AS DRUNKEN DRIVER

In a final effort to avoid a twenty day Bridewell sentence and a $200 fine for driving while intoxicated, Harry W. Gahagan, Chicago real estate dealer, appeared yesterday before the state board of pardons and paroles in Springfield.

Gahagan, who was convicted in Municipal court nearly two years ago, argued he was not intoxicated when a park police squad arrested him June 2, 1936, after a two and a half mile chase through Lincoln park.

"I was scared that night," he declared, 'I did not know I was being chased by a police car."

His plea was taken under advisement. Gahagan's sentence has been upheld by the Illinois Appellate and Supreme courts.

26 ARE SEIZED ON CHARGES OF SCHOOLGIRL, 14

Charges brought by a schoolgirl 14 years old resulted in the secret arrest of twenty-six men and boys of Maywood and Melrose Park during the week-end, it was disclosed yesterday. Warants have been issued for the arrest of eight others.

Ten of those seized were released in bonds of $2,500 each at a hearing before Edward H. Markham, Maywood police magistrate. Ten others were locked up on orders of Samuel Papanek and Henry Zadek, assistant state's attorneys, who said grand jury action would be asked in a day or two. Six boys were taken to the Juvenile Detention home.

PEER'S SON SAYS SALE OF HALF OF CITY IS PENDING

New York, May 23.—[Special.]—Lord Robert Crichton-Stuart, son of the marquess of Bute, who recently was reported to have sold half the city of Cardiff, Wales, for $100,000,000 so he could invest the proceeds in the United States, arrived here today on the Queen Mary with some disappointing news for sellers of stocks, bonds, real estate, and other items.

In the first place, said Lord Robert in squelching the tale of the huge deal, the figure of $100,000,000 is utterly fantastic. He added that the deal still is pending, but his father has no intention of sending any such enormous sum to this country for investment.

Lord Robert is 29 years old and said his title is purely honorary, as he is a younger son. His wife was with him and he said that his only purpose in coming to New York was to give her a holiday. Their second son was born recently.

Experts See Heavy Traffic as Result of Record Auto Registrations

Chicago's streets and boulevards will be taxed beyond capacity during the three-day week-end holiday period over Memorial Day, traffic experts predict.

TELL BOTH SIDES OF SCHOOL MERIT SYSTEM CHARGES

Temporary Certificates—Are There Too Many?

[This article is another in a series discussing both sides of controversial issues concerning the administration of Chicago's public school system.]

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

QUESTION: Is the board of education evading the merit system by excessive issuance of temporary certificates to teachers, a majority of whom have not passed examinations qualifying them as regular instructors.

THE CHARGE: The number of temporary certificates issued for the current school year, as reported by the board, is 1,278, divided as follows:

Junior college and day high school, 418.

Day high school [Normal graduates], 192.

Evening high school, 530.

Laboratory assistants, 28.

R. O. T. C., 33.

Elementary special subjects, 77.

Survey by Teachers Union.

The Chicago Teachers union made a survey of part of the first group on Jan. 7 and reported that of 186 teachers found teaching on temporary certificates, only 50 had regular high school certificates in addition to their temporary certificates. Of the 186, there were 75 filling permanent vacancies, 29 teaching new divisions caused by increased enrollment, and 82 substituting for teachers on sabbatical leave.

Teachers on temporary certificates receive about half the pay of those permanently appointed, and have no tenure rights—they can be dismissed at will. The Citizens Schools committee has asked:

"Why aren't vacancies and new divisions filled with regularly certificated high school teachers appointed on a permanent basis. . . . If temporary teachers have adequate qualifications for the job, as President McCahey and Superintendent Johnson insist, why not allow them to take the regular examinations, obtain certificates and then appoint them to positions in the high schools?

Dangers of Political Pressure.

"Tenure of office means security. Tenure would remove teachers from many of the dangers of political pressure and thus raise the educational standards of our high schools.

"Obviously teachers cannot be appointed permanently to sabbatical leave vacancies, as they last at most for one year. This, however, is no reason to appoint unqualified teachers. The minimum requirement should be a regular high school certificate."

The teachers union asserts that economies attained through temporary appointments are insignificant, only $50,000 a year in the high schools on the basis of 104 teachers filling vacancies or teaching new divisions. The schools committee charges that temporary certificates do not facilitate transfers due to fluctuating enrollment, since teachers are transferred on the basis of the subject taught, not the type of certificate held.

The question of an oversupply of teachers does not enter, it has been urged, since the board can dismiss any regularly appointed teacher for whom it has no work.

Reply of School Head.

THE REPLY: While the school board may have power, legally, to dismiss regularly appointed teachers for whom there are no assignments, practically the matter is hard to accomplish, Superintendent William H. Johnson said. More often, he asserted, teachers who have no assignment are carried on the rolls of a school as supernumeraries, drawing pay but teaching no regular classes.

The primary purpose of temporary certificates, as issued in junior colleges and day high schools, is to prevent appointment of too many teachers in fields in which there is not an assured prospect of employment in future years, he said. It is a practice of the school administration to require each of the city's 37 high schools, at the beginning of each semester, to use at least two temporary teachers. Experience has shown, Mr. Johnson said, that more than this number of classes, on an average, have to be discontinued during each semester because of decreased enrollment.

"Lack of a regular certificate," he added, "does not denote any absence of ability on the part of the teacher. Every teacher given a temporary certificate must possess the educational qualifications required for a teacher in that subject by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

Won't Leave Regular Jobs.

"We have plenty of teachers in the elementary schools holding regular high school certificates, but none of these will leave a steady assignment, at higher pay, for occasional employment as a substitute in the high schools. The great majority of the temporary certificate holders in high schools are substitutes filling day to day vacancies.

"The 192 Normal school graduates holding high school temporary certificates have regular certificates to teach in elementary schools, but because they have not regular assignments there have to teach as substitutes. The temporary certificates are given them to enable them to get experience as high school teachers."

The North Central association, which sets standards for Chicago schools, opposes employment of day school teachers as night school instructors, he said. The board ceased the practice of giving regular certificates to night school teachers about 1915, because of problems of salary schedules, pension rights and tenure involved in such action.

Explains Other Assignments.

Laboratory assistants, Mr. Johnson said, are employed in junior colleges, where most of them are taking courses. They are not to be regarded as permanent members of the teaching force. Temporary certificates are given officers and noncommissioned officers of the army assigned as R. O. T. C. instructors to enable the board to supplement their army pay, which is insufficient to support family men living off army posts.

The temporary certificates issued to special subject teachers in the elementary schools are usually the result of the board's failure to find sufficient candidates for examinations for regular certificates in these specialized fields. Some of these certificates are held by playground instructors, however, and an examination this summer will permit the board to substitute regularly certificated teachers in this particular field next year.

Detroit, Mich., May 23.—[Special.]—A rumored story book romance between George Dodge, 20 year old son of the late John F. Dodge, automobile manufacturer, and Loreen MacDonald, 18 year old telephone operator at Gore Bay, Ont., was confirmed today.

Mrs. Alfred G. Wilson, Dodge's mother, announced the impending marriage. Dodge is the beneficiary of a trust fund which, by a recent accounting, amounted to $9,331,606.

Miss MacDonald, daughter of a Manitoulin Island tugboat captain, has been a guest at the Dodge estate for several weeks.

TOBACCO QUOTAS BREED STRIFE IN SOUTH CAROLINA

Government Rule Makes Farmers Desperate.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Florence, S. C., May 23.—[Special.]—Feuds are becoming common among flue-cured tobacco growers in the eastern counties of South Carolina as a result of the government's crop control plan, Shotguns, rifles, pistols, jack knives, and fists are being used to settle differences between land owners and their share croppers and tenants. Flue-cured differs from sun-cured tobacco in that by the former method artificial means are used to cure the leaves.

Tobacco Belt Buzzing.

The small tobacco acreage which the government will permit to be grown this year has caused many farmers, both plantation owners and tenants, to become desperate. A trip through the flue-cured tobacco section during the last few days revealed that many farmers are sleeping with pistols under their pillows or rifles beside their beds.

The flue-cured tobacco belt is buzzing with stories about neighbors' quarrels and fights. At almost every rural gas station and drug store in Dillon county today farmers gave their version of a recent shooting affair on C. B. Horne's plantation, eight miles west of Latta. Horne escaped being killed when one of his share croppers shot at him with a rifle during a quarrel over a tobacco acreage allotment. Horne's small allotment made it impossible for him to fulfill his contract with the share cropper.

Threatened by Share Croppers.

It is reported that the share cropper threatened Horne with his knife and that Horne drew a pistol. The share cropper then ran into his house, grabbed a rifle, and drove Horne from his place. The share cropper was arrested and will be tried on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

In Horry county a few days ago J. M. Anderson was shot and slightly wounded following a quarrel with A. Causey and his wife, tenants on the Anderson plantation. Anderson, too, had a small AAA allotment and was unable to permit his tenant to raise tobacco without being penalized heavily under the government market quota plan.

Farmer Kills Himself.

Still another sample case of the trouble that has been brought to flue-cured tobacco growers by government meddling was given today at Conway.

T. T. West, a small farmer who lived 14 miles northeast of Conway, killed himself a few hours after he had taken from his mail box the AAA postal card telling him of the ruinously few acres of tobacco he could grow this year.

It is common talk throughout the flue-cured section, which covers mainly Horry, Marion, Dillon, Williamsburg, Florence, and parts of nearby counties, that about seven out of every ten tobacco growers are opposed to the AAA plan and many are ignoring their allotments. The farmers charge that favoritism has been common in connection with allotments. Growers assert that some of the local AAA committees let their relatives and fertilizer customers grow nearly all the tobacco they care to handle this year.

H. H. Woodard, a tobacco grower at Conway, said the trouble started when Washington AAA officials worked out their allotments for the tobacco states. He explained that the allotment for North Carolina is 595,000 acres, while South Carolina's is 95,000 acres.

South Carolina growers object to the basis used in making the allotments for these two states. Figures from 1935 were used, and that year North Carolina growers were asked to reduce their plantings only 20 per cent, while South Carolina's reduction was 34 per cent. Growers here think their state allotment is proportionately lower as a result of using these old figures.

Allotments Received Too Late.

Growers already had made their contracts for the year, plowed their ground, sowed seeds in beds, fertilized the fields, and in many cases had transplanted their plants before receiving their allotment notices. They had understood that their reduction would not be more than 25 per cent of the 1937 acreage, but the cut has been much more severe.

For example, on Mr. Woodard's 34 farm units he grew 112½ acres of tobacco last year. His allotment for all his farms for this year is only 25½ acres. He and his tenants and share croppers have ignored the allotment and have set out plants on about 80 acres. They will be subject to the penalty on approximately 54½ acres.

Ignore Orders from AAA.

Similar reductions are made on other farms. George Holliday of Gallivants Ferry has 200 tenants and has been raising about 1,100 acres of tobacco each year. His allotment is less than 500 acres for this year. He and his tenants disregarded their allotments and have set plants on between 750 and 800 acres.

Mrs. Molly H. Johnson of Horry county has been raising about 78 acres of tobacco on her farms. Her allotment is for 24½ acres, but she is ignoring it and has 63 acres.

Miss Ruby E. Holliday, in the same county, usually raises 42 acres of tobacco. Her tenants have planted 29 acres, while her allotment will allow only 21.7 acres.

Local leaders report that the majority of farmers in the flue-cured tobacco region regret that they voted in favor of the marketing quota. They assert that before the referendum was taken in March men went through the tobacco counties and gave out erroneous information which encouraged most of the growers to vote in favor of the marketing quota.

Cash tenants and landowners are objecting to the plan more than are the share croppers.

Flue-cured tobacco growers plan to insist that congress amend the farm law so state allotments can be relayed on down to the individual family farm units on an exact percentage basis, to prevent favoritism.

"The best way to accumulate money is to resolutely save and bank a fixt portion of your income"

Andrew Carnegie

AT THE AGE OF TEN, Andrew Carnegie launched his first business enterprise. He invested his meagre childhood savings in a box of oranges, which he peddled from door to door. The profit from that venture taught young Andrew a lesson which he never forgot . . . and one which we all may well remember. For unless the future steelmaker had saved his pence, he could not have seized his opportunity.

Today the process of saving has become far easier than it was in the youth of Andrew Carnegie. New methods and new efficiency make saving at an institution like The Northern Trust Company a truly pleasant experience. Transactions are handled swiftly, accurately. BUROCRACY'S BLIGHT ON AVIATION.

American aviation has been the one bright spot of American enterprise all through the depression. It is young and adventurous. Great engineers, courageous men, enterprising financiers, and ceaselessly working designers have spent their energy and their money in penetrating the new frontier of the air and they have done so with all the high spirits, determination, and intelligence which has characterized the American throughout the nation's history whenever a frontier presented its possibilities.

What a record of individual courage, imagination, initiative, skill, and triumphant energy the story of aviation in America leaves for our inspiration and the inspiration of mankind!

The Wright brothers invented the airplane; Glenn Curtiss improved the warping wing with ailerons, built fine airplane engines, and the first flying boat. Igor Sikorsky realized his dream of flying clipper ships—the first commercially successful large airplanes. Engineers employed by William Boeing built the first high performance low wing monoplanes. Lawrence Sperry began work on the blind flight instruments and automatic pilot devices perfected in this decade.

The great American pilots, all rugged individualists of the first order, include Capt. Rickenbacker, world war ace, now head of the great Eastern Airlines system; Maj. R. W. Schroeder, stratosphere pioneer, military pilot, and now vice president of United Air Lines; Charles A. Lindbergh, solo conqueror of the Atlantic; Wiley Post, a one-eyed eagle who flew twice around the world and then turned to aviation's newest frontier—the stratosphere. And then there were the later heroes such as Jack Knight, whose flight by night in 1922 brought air mail and whose safety record of twenty years thereafter kept him out of newspaper stories; and finally Edwin C. Musick, Pan-American Airways' great pilot engineer, who met death a few months ago when his pioneering clipper ship burned over the Pacific.

Now the aviation and air transportation industries are looking forward to new horizons. New larger, faster, safer airplanes, a new generation of pilots who grew up with instruments and radio are ready to carry on.

Aviation has not been wholly without governmental interference. There is to be long remembered the tragic affair of the cancellation of the air mail contracts, the consequent deaths of the army flyers, and the setback given the industry by that arbitrary action. Still, aviation as a transport industry, always proceeding in its development too fast for the burocratic mind and the official imagination, has managed to keep itself beyond the political strait-jacket. Private enterprise, unchained in this endeavor, has put American commercial aviation well in advance of anything of its kind in the world, and other nations have sent their experts here to study, to borrow, and to buy.

Such success, of course, is contrary to the doctrins of the planned society, which can neither conceive any good arising outside its blueprints nor tolerate the accomplishment if it is forced to perceive it. Consequently the house of representatives has been compelled to pass a bill creating an aeronautic bureau with jurisdiction over all civil aviation in the country and with a horde of new job holders. The senate has already complied with a similar measure and as soon as the two houses have worked out their differences in committee the President will be given supreme command of the air lines, governing them through a board the membership of which he will compose as it pleases him at any time.

At a time when depression is deepening and private enterprise, feeling the stagnating effects of governmental regulation, the stifling rules of burocracy, is yielding to the burden of unintelligent centralized power, ignorant of most of the conditions and problems with which it seeks to deal, the free, progressive, and adventurous industry of civil aviation is to be brought under the same smothering blanket of inertia and stupidity.

It seems a shame and a crime, but it is entirely consistent with the doctrin which holds that no good whatever emerges from the free work of the talented, trained, or gifted individual, and that all effort must be collectivized under the stupidities of commissars who, for the most part, indicate by the positions they hold that they are unprepared to try for success in anything requiring the ability which will carry a person through the difficulties and into the possibilities of accomplishment.

The Russian commissars and the American commissars are not far apart in their abilities and their attitude. A dominating central government, seeking only its own aggrandizement gives executive and administrative positions to men who couldn't invent anything, couldn't make anything run, were never known to have a success in any enterprise requiring talent, and who when they have control immediately bring operations down to the level of their own slavish mentalities and unresourceful but autocratic minds.

It's a shame, but until the dominant political thought of the country puts a stop to such silliness its effects will be found to the detriment of every great enterprise in the United States.

NO MORE DELAY ON THE MOTOR LICENSE LAW.

The fight over patronage which defeated legislation for a driver's license has reappeared. The question whether the administration of the law shall be put in the hands of the director of public works, who has charge of the state police, or in those of the secretary of state, who now issues automobile licenses, has not been settled since the last session. It is a shame that it was allowed to postpone action which would have saved lives and suffering.

The other differences between the measures are debatable, but they should not be debated forever and they are not important enough to justify further postponement of relief. The vital need is a system of registration which will preserve the record of bad driving so that habitual offenders can be removed from the road. The careful and conscientious drivers, who are a majority of motorists, should no longer be sacrificed while officials squabble over spoils and pride of opinion, over details which block action. Experience in the operation of the license system is the best test of all questions of detail, and the sooner we begin to acquire it the sooner we shall have a good system.

The dreadful toll of life and injury on the road ought to compel prompt action. If it does not responsibility for further delay will be brought home to individuals.

GREEN.

There is the story of the man from Peoria who as a child had observed the quality of English lawns and years later went to England to learn the trick of making them. He consulted all the gardeners who would talk to him, without much success until one day he ran into an old fellow who gave him the tip-off: "Roll your lawn with every change of the moon," said the expert, "for the last 400 years."

It's a good story, but it's the bunk, as the appearance of Chicago and its environs these days amply demonstrates. Our lawns this year are the finest in memory and those which have been given moderate care are as good as will be found generally in England, Ireland, or any place else. With weather such as we have been having this spring it's an achievement not to have a presentable lawn.

As has been said, you can't have everything. If you have plenty of sunshine and dry weather [what the English call rare days because over there they are] you will have to slave over your lawn, and for all your sprinkling, rolling, weeding, fertilizing, and reseeding you may not have much to show for your labor. The great enemy of grass is abundant sunshine and low relative humidity. Grass grows best in a cool climate where the ceiling is zero much of the time. This spring, when we have had a lot of that kind of weather, the grass is actually choking out the weeds.

It's been a great year—so far—for the lawn makers and also for the farmers who have planted the big grasses that we call wheat, rye, and oats. They also flourish in cool, moist weather, unless and until the rusts get going. If we have much more of this English climate the farmers will begin to worry not only about rust but also about their corn. Corn is a subtropical plant. It takes some hot, lawn destroying days to make a bumper corn crop.

We may hear more about that later on. Meanwhile we can see no justification for complaining about the weather this year. It has upset the baseball schedules, to be sure, and it has interfered with picnics and golf, but it has carpeted our fields and lawns with vital green until, as an experienced crop reporter once observed, "they shout for joy; they also sing."

THE RED BED OF JUSTICE.

Another quick job of government printing has put the transcript of the third great Russian judicial purge of the old Lenin revolutionaries in circulation in English. The trial and executions were in mid-March and the bulky transcript, translated, was being circulated here in early May. The same expedition in striving for a quick use of a market in world opinion was used in the January trials of 1937.

It does not need to be remarked that suavity and finesse are not characteristics of the Red dictatorship. The desire to present an innocent front and to uphold the integrity of Russian justice is not coupled with any understanding of how world opinion can be impressed. That is to be expected.

A dictatorship dealing in terrorism, working under clouds of censorship, secrecy, and suppression, and making all differences of opinion treason, cannot successfully strike an attitude of honest candor and make a case for itself which will be accepted as any other than a clumsy attempt at deceit.

All the Stalinites succeed in doing is in demonstrating that the Red revolutionaries have outdone the French revolutionists in consuming themselves. Stalin has verified the remark of Danton as he was about to mount to the scaffold, that he perceived in revolutions only the most infamous survived. Psychologists will work longer than lawyers or historians on the public records of the three great Russian trials which ended in the judicial liquidation of every one of the principal bolos associated with Lenin except Stalin, who was their murderer, and Trotzky who is in precarious exile.

Dictatorships are not held in joint stock companies nor are they partnerships. A triumvirate dissolves into one man and two tombstones. A dictator cannot have co-equals. He can't even have a known successor. The successor, if a man of spirit, would think that nature dallied too long by the way.

Editorial of the Day

STRANGE AS IT MAY SEEM.

[Detroit Free Press.]

The United States has not ceased to be a land of surprises.

Who would have guessed, for example, that there are 200,000 men and women in this country working for the government without salary or wage?

They are the department of agriculture's volunteer crops reporters.

The celebration last week of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the establishment of the government's crop reporting service shoved these faithful workers momentarily into the limelight.

A good deal of the agricultural data published by the government are based on information sent in regularly by these men and women on the farms, who keep it posted regarding the condition of farm crops and live stock and prices in their communities.

And they do this—strange as it may seem in a day when the government pay roll is loaded down with sinecures—without a cent of pay.

We children, we happy, barefoot children, knew the feel of cool grass on feet lately released from prison; on our long walk to school we followed the cow path at the side of the road, zigzagging finally through a wild crab thicket, heavy with fragrant bloom, and our playhouse was under the wide spreading crab in the corner of the rail fence; we set forth our shelves, laid cater-corner across the rails, with pretty bits of glass and broken crockery, and the bees murmured languorously in our fragrant pink and white seclusion. They have paved and straightened the highway and abolished the wild grape and the crab and the elderberry, but that thicket and that playhouse are immortal, beyond chance of change.

Distinguished Exiles.

The name of a distinguished addition to the faculty of an institute of learning in Chicago will be announced as soon as he is safely out of Germany. Exiles from other lands already have added luster to educational staffs in Chicago Those at the University of Chicago include famous Dr. Otto Struve, director of Yerkes observatory, who fled from the Russian bolshevists (the astronomy department of the University of Chicago is a miniature league of nations). Giuseppe A. Borgese, professor of Italian, is a political exile from Italy; Melchior Palyi, who is research assistant in the department of economics and is working on a financial history of Chicago, is a German exile, and so are Max Rheinstein, professor of comparative law, and Edgar James Franck, Nobel prize winner in physics for 1925 and professor of physical chemistry.

QUADRANGLE CLUB frequenters like to tell of the argument that took place at the club one day between Dr. Borgese and Dr. Palyi as to which of them had had the worst dictator. "My man did this," said Borgese, and enumerated an incredible tale. "Mine did this," countered Palyi. The argument continued for some time. Borgese won. His vehemence was greater.

POISONING FROM THE THYROID.

WE all understand the close relationship between the normal behavior of the thyroid and the proportion of iodine in the food and water. Whenever this chemical is lacking the gland is likely to swell and the enlargement may be more noticeable about the age of puberty, that is, when boys and girls are entering young manhood and womanhood.

If the only indication is a slight increase in size, there is little if any interference with function. In other words, the output of secretion is normal and if symptoms appear they are due merely to the bulge in the neck. There may, of course, be a sense of fullness, with some pressure on the windpipe, characterized by difficult breathing following active exercise. This is the type that can be prevented by the use of a minute quantity of iodine added to the table salt or by reinforcing the water supply with a small amount of some iodine-containing compound.

Mothers need not be disturbed unduly should a daughter show some thickening in the front of the neck at the age of 14 or 15, as this may disappear entirely within a year or two, especially if a fractional bit of iodine can be incorporated with the food.

The purpose of this discussion, however, is to call attention to a form of goiter, called toxic, in which the body is poisoned from an overproduction of gland secretions. The malady is commonly known as Graves' disease, after Robert J. Graves, a Dublin physician, who reported several cases more than a hundred years ago. He observed three typical symptoms—protruding eyeballs, tumor in the neck, and the fine tremor of the fingers which may be noted when the arm is extended at full length with the fingers separated.

We now recognize many additional manifestations, particularly great fatigue at times, excessive nervousness, and loss of weight. The heart is likely to be quite rapid, and many of these sufferers will complain of palpitation. Some will describe the sensation as though the heart were attempting to leap out of the chest as a fish will jump above the surface of a pond.

Victims of such a situation are quite ill. They are absorbing a powerful poison which is exerting profound effects upon the tissues and the nervous system. Some will exhibit a complete change of disposition, such as extreme irritability, quick loss of temper, attacks of sweating and flushing—in fact, many of the phenomena that come to women at the menopause or change of life. Digestive signs occur and there may be diarrhea alternating with constipation or persistently loose bowels.

What is happening? We must realize that the toxin of the gland, which is present in abnormal quantities, has brought about such an increase in the metabolic rate [the speed with which foods and tissues are burned] that one's whole being is upset. Every function of the body seems to be disorganized. This accounts for the fast heart beat, the excitement, and the muscular weakness, although the patient at times may be extraordinarily energetic.

The thing desired, obviously, is to identify the condition as early as possible. We must prevent the destruction wrought by these internal fires which otherwise will consume the body. The basal metabolic rate—and at least two or three readings should be taken on different days—should not be more than 10 to 12 per cent above normal. If it is increased 30 or more we may assume that, with the symptoms as described, the diagnosis is positive.

What can be done? At the outset the patient must receive complete rest—mental as well as physical—and a generous diet. This will bring about some improvement, but if the situation has persisted for a few months the chances are that removal of a part of the gland will be required. Fortunately, in skilled hands and with good medical management, the operation is relatively safe.

DIET IN HEART TROUBLE.

W. H. D. writes: My doctor tells me I have coronary heart trouble and says not to eat fats, starches, or gas forming foods. What would be called fats? Is butter a fat? Would a man of 53 have a chance to live a number of years if care is exercised?

REPLY.

Fats include butter and other milk products, fish, and most meats. Starches include most cereals, vegetables, and some fruits. A person with coronary disease needs both fats and starches in moderate amounts. Send a stamped, addressed envelope for a list of gas forming foods.

Soft drinks should be avoided. Also, condiments and extremely hot or cold foods, nuts, excessively salted foods, spices, and fried foods. Many individuals with coronary disease live the normal span of life, but they must adopt a nonexertion program and an easy going attitude.

POLYPS OFTEN REGROW.

Mrs. J. P. writes: My husband had polyps removed from his nose last September. Do they grow back? Is sinus disease the cause of polyps?

REPLY.

Any long continued irritation of the nasal mucous membrane may result in polyps, and they may re-form periodically. Inasmuch as many grow from the sinuses, adequate drainage of these spaces will result in cure. Keep the nasal passages thoroughly clean.

SHARE IN ESTATE.

Burlington, Ia., May 23.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. A man and wife and three children own a home. The wife passes away leaving no will and [2] the home is in her name. That leaves four heirs to the property. The man married again [3] making five heirs to the property. Now the man gave a mortgage for $200 on part of his share in the property without any of the other heirs knowing about it and without their consent. 4. Is this legal and can he do that? T. J. P.

1 and 2. These statements seem inconsistent with one another.

3. This conclusion would not follow.

4. Ordinarily, a money lender would not be satisfied with such security, but if the lender in question is satisfied, we see no reason why any one else should object. Of course it is only the father's interest that is affected.

WHY NOT UNFURL THE FLAGS?

Chicago, May 20.—Take a ride on the new Outer drive and look over the billion dollar skyline! What an impressive sight it is—or is it?

From the mast of just one building—Tribune Tower—we see the Stars and Stripes in the breeze. What is the matter with all the other buildings? It makes me feel just a little ashamed.

Look across the river from Detroit and you will find many Canadian flags flying day after day—but cross into Canada and you do not see so many American flags on the Detroit side.

What accounts for this indifference to our lovely colors? Are we all not as patriotic as our Canadian or Mexican neighbors? In our hearts, of course we are, but would it not help just a little for us to show our colors?

Your paper has aroused a real interest in sports—Golden Gloves, All-Star football, etc. Would it not be a worthy cause if you would get our people aroused to show a little patriotism by displaying the Stars and Stripes? It would not cost any one anything, because I believe every person, every building, and every store owner has at least one American flag he could display—not just on Memorial day or July 4, but every day. Let us impress the country at large that while Chicago may have a greater foreign population than other cities, we are all American patriots, every one of us.

A TRIBUNE READER FOR MANY YEARS.

A WAY OUT FOR THE RAILWAYS.

Chicago, May 19.—With reference to the present plight of the railroads, my advice, born of real knowledge of their troubles, is that they should build smaller cars and engines which will eliminate a lot of dead tonnage, speed up trafic and make quicker deliveries, which will make a faster turnover. Instead of raising rates reduce them to the level of water, truck, and bus transportation, establish pickup and delivery service for certain classes of freight and also for passengers. If this were done passenger trains would be filled instead of running over the road half filled. Who would ride a bus to Cleveland or New York if he could ride a comfortable passenger train for the same price, and who would ship freight by the slow water way if he could ship by fast freight at the same price?

The increase in trafic would increase revenues, would return thousands of railroad men to their jobs, and partly remove the increasing menace from our highways.

PERRIN.

TWO SELF-ANOINTED.

Chicago, May 20.—Bill Bushong of Elkhart says THE TRIBUNE attacks "the only President who has ever attempted to better the masses of our population." What silly rot and what a slam on all the fine men who have graced the White House. Looking back over the years you will find only two Presidents who have felt themselves anointed and haloed—Wilson and Franklin Roosevelt. The former had a hallucination to save the world for democracy and plunged a peace loving nation into war to back up his ideals and died of a broken heart when the nation repudiated him. The latter now is trying to re-form the government after some of those in Europe with his regimentations.

Mr. Roosevelt maybe truly thinks his ideas for the betterment of the American people are just the thing, but in the long run they may be found to be as crazy as Wilson's idea to get us into foreign entanglements and just as un-American. Time will place him in his correct position in the affairs of the nation.

JESS HARLOW.

HIS SERIES OF TROUBLES.

Schiller Park, Ill., May 19.—With great interest have I followed the discussions in your paper about the married women working in this country, of which some estimates go as high as five million. What damage this does to the country and what it did to me in particular is illustrated in the following case.

I am a railroad clerk. In 1930 I lost my job and had to take another job yard clerking at 60 cents less a day, while one married woman longer in service than I took my job in the office.

Besides myself another man lost out and in order to retain my seniority rights I had to bump a married man with six children, who then had to go on relief. At that time we had among twenty clerks five married women working in the office. Through the next reduction in the clerical force I lost my yard clerking job in September, 1931. I had sickness in the family at that time and had therefore no savings and had to go on relief in December, 1931.

On account of dismissal of one clerk I was called back in December, 1933. The job originally held by me is still held by a married woman. Her husband works in the same office as a telegraph operator seven days a week at $6 a day. Her wages are $5.50 a day. When I went back to work again the debts on my house had increased about $900. I finally got a HOLC mortgage on my place and have since then regularly paid off on this, and have therefore again no savings. Lately the cutting of the clerical forces set in again and this morning I'm dropped again, while the same married woman is still keeping her job. Outside of this woman there is a stenographer working here, also married, but only about two years. Her job could be held by the next youngest clerk in service. He got laid off three days ago.

I am 48 years old, speak and write English and German fluently, have experience in all general office work; but who is going to hire a man at this age? So I am most likely another case for the WPA, while sooner or later the HOLC will get another house cheap, for which I worked so hard.

TWO FORAGING LIONS.

Chicago, May 20.—Once in a mythical land two foraging lions fought for the possession of a quantity of meat which would have amply fed both them and their young ones. They fought so long and so fiercely that in the end neither was able to carry home the meat, and the young ones starved.

Did I say a mythical land?

RICHARD B. ROMANI.

A WAY TO BETTER HOUSING.

Chicago, May 19.—Greatly interested in your article on housing. Am writing in hope that some forceful movement could be started through your influence to utilize older buildings for housing purposes.

We are told hundreds of thousands of pieces of property are in county receivership. Among these there must be thousands of well-built homes and apartments with sturdy walls and foundations which could be reconstructed into small apartments at a fraction of the cost of large housing propositions. If some commission could be started to take over tax default properties, great benefits could be derived.

If present conditions continue Chicago will find its slums adjoining its front yard. The middleman being forced out of the back yards moves to the suburbs. Won't you try to start something to save the forgotten middle class which has really been the backbone of Chicago but has had the least for its efforts? Charity should begin at home. Chicago should make improvements on its housing, streets and alleys before driving its worthwhile citizens into the suburbs and so lessening its taxing income. Old properties must be improved!

M. G.

SCARCER THAN HEN'S TEETH.

La Grange, Ill., May 20.—Much has been said in the newspapers the past few days about the destitute condition of the relief fund in Illinois, and particularly about the need of the poor in Chicago. My wife is not well and I have through various channels sought to secure the services of a woman needing a home or a younger girl to do housework, but they are harder to find than teeth in a hen's mouth. The few that have been contacted demand exorbitant wages in addition to their room and board. Why should we taxpayers be obliged to pay large sums in taxes to maintain the destitute when those same persons will not reciprocate by giving their services and at the same time earn a reasonable wage instead of living as common street beggars?

CHARGES WE'RE ONE-SIDED.

Chicago, May 19. — THE TRIBUNE on May 18 carried a story about two Britons killed through a "mistake" by Chinese who thought the Englishmen were "Japanese spies." This recital occupied about two inches of a column on page 3. Had those Britons been killed by the Japanese under identical circumstances, THE TRIBUNE and every other paper would use three inch headlines and half of the front page relating the latest Japanese "atrocity."

WATER DIVERTED FROM SUPERIOR AS LAKE RISES

Gates Are Opened at Soo to Lower Level.

Congress should be at least as interested in the amount of water stored in Lake Superior and prevented from reaching the lower lakes as in the amount of water diverted from Lake Michigan for the Lakes to the Gulf waterway. This view was expressed simultaneously yesterday by Cornelius Lynce, special assistant attorney general of Illinois, and Cleveland A. Newton, general counsel for the Mississippi Valley association.

Reports from Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., were that abnormally high water conditions in Lake Superior caused the opening of sixteen compensating gates above the Saulte rapids, allowing the water to flow into the lower St. Mary's river, thence into Lakes Huron and Michigan. The normal flow through St. Mary's river is 60,000 cubic feet per second.

Power Company Using Less.

One reason given for the high water in Superior is that the Michigan Northern Power company is taking less water than usual. It normally takes 30,000 cubic feet per second but is now on half time and using only 15,000, the other 15,000 cubic feet naturally remaining above the locks in Superior. The Canada Power company takes about 20,000 cubic feet per second.

Lake Superior is 21 feet higher than Lakes Huron and Michigan when normal but at present is about 23.59 feet higher. An international commission decides on the level above the locks and the gates are opened on its order. Isaac DeYoung, superintendent of the St. Mary's Falls canal and one of the members of the commission, said the diversion of Superior water has no bearing on the diversion problem at Chicago because it takes billions of cubic feet of water to raise the lower lakes even a fraction of an inch.

Must Reduce Flow Jan. 1.

"We fought for the right to divert 5,000 cubic feet per second at Chicago," said Attorney Lynde, "and now, by court order, we must cut our diversion to 1,500 feet on Jan. 1, 1939, unless congress intervenes. In considering the pending Parsons bill, congress should take cognizance of the present level of Lake Superior."

Attorney Newton, in a telephone conversation from Washington, D. C., said the report from Sault Ste. Marie should be noted by those who seek to internationalize Lake Michigan.

"We are asking only enough water to maintain the lakes to gulf waterway," he declared. "The proponents of the Canadian seaway plan would ruin our waterway by withholding a mere 3,500 cubic feet per second, claiming we would lower Lake Michigan's level."

MOTORIST CAPTURED AFTER A WILD CHASE GETS 30 DAYS IN JAIL

Leo Dabion, 2042 Warren boulevard, was sentenced to 30 days in the County jail and lost his driving privileges for 10 months when arraigned yesterday before Judge Stephen Adamowski in Safety court. He was convicted of driving while intoxicated.

Dabion was arrested Sunday after fleeing the scene of an accident. The chase began at 41st street and South parkway after Dabion's car hit a safety zone, a light post, and a taxicab in rapid succession. Dabion drove north to Oakwood boulevard and then turned down an alley. From the alley he cut through a field, scattering a group of children at play. Then he found another alley, turned into 40th street and was finally caught at 40th street and Langley avenue. He said he had had "lots of wine."

Arthur Johnson, 24, of 3736 Sheffield avenue, was sentenced to 10 days in the County jail and 10 months' suspension of driving privileges when arraigned on a charge of reckless driving.

CARLSON DROPS ELECTION SUIT AGAINST NIXON

Carl J. Carlson yesterday halted his contest of the nomination on April 12 of George Nixon as the fifth Republican candidate for county commissioner from the country towns. The official canvass gave Nixon, former member of the board of appeals, the nomination by 456 votes over Carlson, incumbent. The latter filed a contest alleging fraud and citing 39 precincts in which he had illegally lost votes. The recount, completed yesterday, however, gave Nixon a gain of 22 votes. Upon Carlson's motion, County Judge Jarecki yesterday dismissed the suit, formally giving Nixon the nomination by 478 votes.

Woman Booked for Tipsy Driving After Collision

Mrs. Mary B. Barnes, 46 years old, 819 Junior terrace, was booked by Town Hall police last night on charges of drunken and reckless driving after she had driven her expensive automobile into the car of James V. Garrity, 742 Melrose street, a bailif, at Broadway and Sheridan road. Police said she is the wife of M. H. Barnes, head of a loop booking agency.

ASKS PARKING METERS IN STATE TO PROVIDE RELIEF FUND REVENUE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 23.—[Special.]—Representative Charles H. Weber [D., Chicago] introduced a bill in the house today which would authorize cities to install 5 cent parking meters to raise funds for relief. While passage of the bill is not regarded likely, it did have the effect of renewing interest in this device which cities in other states have found of value in regulating time-limit curb parking.

In proposing that the revenue should be devoted to relief, Weber placed his meter scheme among subjects which may be considered at this special session of the assembly. At the 1937 regular session, a similar bill would have earmarked the parking for trafic improvements. The proposal did not make any headway toward passage last year.

"In Chicago," said Representative Weber, "the nickels for convenient parking would produce $4,000,000 a year."

SUPREME COURT NOMINEE TELLS DUTY OF COURTS

Decatur, Ill., May 23.—[Special.]—An independent judiciary is an essential in preserving the liberties of a free people, Walter T. Gunn, Republican nominee for Supreme court justice, warned in an address here tonight.

Gunn was nominated here two weeks ago as his party's choice to fill the vacancy in the 3d Supreme court district caused by the death last year of Justice Lott R. Herrick of Farmer City. He will be opposed in a special election on June 27 by Circuit Judge Joseph L. McLaughlin, the Democratic nominee.

The meeting tonight followed a dinner at the Mueller lodge. Numerous Republican leaders were present in addition to the committeemen.

JURY SELECTED TO HEAR SUIT ON SWEITZER BOND

County Seeks to Collect $533,000 Shortage.

The county's suit to collect an alleged shortage of $533,817 in funds of the late Robert M. Sweitzer while he was county clerk, opened yesterday before Judge Daniel P. Trude.

Twelve jurors were selected. Opening statements will be made this morning by Assistant State's Attorneys Jacob M. Shamberg and William Tuohy, and Egbert Robertson, chief counsel for the United States Fidelity and Guaranty company.

Plans to Sue Estate.

Originally the suit was against Sweitzer and the company, which wrote his surety bond while he was clerk from 1910 to 1934. After his death on April 6, the county proceeded only against the company, but also plans to file suit later against Sweitzer's estate. The maximum liability of the surety under its bond is $401,289.

Prosecutor Tuohy said the trial would last two weeks or longer. Approximately 350 ledgers—financial records of the county and the First National bank where Sweitzer kept the county funds—will constitute the state's evidence.

The principal witnesses will be auditors for the state and for the surety. Attorney Robertson said the company will contend that no shortage exists, but that there are certain discrepancies in the books for which Sweitzer was not responsible.

Shortage Disclosed by Audit.

Early in 1935, soon after Sweitzer became county treasurer, Michael J. Flynn, the new county clerk, reported that an audit had revealed a shortage of more than half a million dollars in the tax redemption, pauper, and escrow funds.

Sweitzer was ousted from the treasurer's office, and the county demanded that he make good the shortage. He admitted part of the shortage, and made repeated offers of repayment, which were never fulfilled.

In the fall of 1935 he was tried on a charge of withholding $414,129 in public funds, and was acquitted. In defense, Sweitzer said he kept the interest which the money drew in banks as he had a right to do, and declared there was no law which prevented him from using tax redemption funds.

150,000 ARE ILL IN CHICAGO ON ANY GIVEN DAY

On any given day 150,000 persons are ill from some cause or other, according to an estimate made last night by Alexander Ropchan, secretary of the health division of the Council of Social Agencies of Chicago. He spoke at the annual meeting of the health division at the Chicago Woman's club.

Mr. Ropchan added that every year 46 out of 1,000 Chicagoans, or a total of 200,000, are disabled by some chronic illness. In a further review of the division's work he pointed out that hospitalization for syphilitic cases has lagged.

Another speaker, Miss Lucille Smith, medical director for the Chicago relief administration, revealed that 23,000 relief families are given medical assistance every month at a monthly cost of $100,000.

News of Radio

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Chicago youngsters who were inspired through Fred Allen's interview with Joseph Becker, head of a baby minding service, to go into this business for themselves ought to be told right now that Becker's broadcast boomeranged on him and put him out of business. Paul V. Moss, New York commissioner of licenses, happened to be listening the other evening when Becker, who is 15, gave an account of the accomplishments of his bureau. When Moss heard that Joseph employed some assistant baby tenders, collecting a commission on their fees, he broke up the service.

Moss told Becker it was illegal to operate an employment agency without a license.

Any moves on the part of young people to start baby tending services in Chicago would get no support from Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health. Dr. Bundesen sees no objection to the practice parents have of calling in a neighbor youngster to stay with a baby that has been put to sleep, while the father and mother attend a movie. For such services he recommends girls. But he is definitly against any such enterprises as conducted by Fred Allen's young guest. So far as Dr. Bundesen knows there are no such organizations in Chicago.

W-G-N is arranging a unique broadcast in connection with Northwestern university's Alumni day on Saturday, June 11. In a special pickup from the campus at 1:30 o'clock many old graduates will be asked such questions as "Did you follow the career you planned in college?" and "Are the questions college students face today any different from those of your day?" and "What is the most important obligation of the college student in society today?"

Tommy Bartlett plans a special feature for his 500th Meet the Missus broadcast on WBBM at 2:15 tomorrow. He proposes to question wives of Chicago Cubs players. He already has received promises from Mrs Dizzy Dean, Mrs. Stan Hack, Mrs Charley Root, Mrs. Bill Jurges, and Mrs. Carl Reynolds to be on hand.

Hazel Flanagan, wife of Announcer Pat Flanagan, will answer questions at the same session. Pat, who has been out of baseball broadcasting for four weeks because of ill health, has left the hospital and is on the road to recovery.

MARTHA RICKERT, U. OF C. CHAUCER SCHOLAR, IS DEAD

English Professor Ill for Two Years.

Miss Martha Edith Rickert, professor emeritus of English at the University of Chicago and internationally known Chaucer scholar, died yesterday in her home at 6029 Kimbark avenue. She was 66 years old and had been ill for the last two years.

Prof. Martha Rickert.

Miss Rickert was born in Dover, O., and was graduated from Vassar college in 1891. She ceived a Ph. D. degree from the University of Chicago in 1899, after teaching for two years at Vassar, and then taught at Lyons Township High school and Hyde Park High school. She was made associate professor at the University of Chicago in 1924 and became a full professor in 1927.

Although she was author of a number of books of fiction, Miss Rickert was best known for her work in Chaucerian research and for a textbook, "The Writing of English," which she wrote in collaboration with John Matthews Manly, also professor emeritus of English at the university.

Miss Rickert and Prof. Manly, former head of the English department, spent six months of each year in England, from 1924 to 1936, studying Chaucerian manuscripts.

During the world war she and Prof. Manly worked in Washington, deciphering code messages for the military intelligence division.

Among Prof. Rickert's books were "Out of the Cypress Swamp" [1902, "The Reaper" [1904], "Folly" [1906], "The Golden Hawk" [1907], "The Beggar in the Heart" [1909], and a number of translations.

FREE MARINELLI ON CHARGES OF HIDING FUGITIVE

New York, May 23.—(AP)—A federal court jury tonight acquitted Albert I. Marinelli, Tammany district leader and former New York county clerk, of a charge of harboring a fugitive from justice, Charles Falci.

Thomas E. Dewey, then special rackets prosecutor, first made the charge against Marinelli last fall in his campaign for election as New York county district attorney. Ordered by Gov. Herbert H. Lehman to answer the charges, Marinelli resigned his clerkship last December shortly before expiration of his term.

He was indicted Jan. 25 on a charge of harboring Falci, keeping him as a chauffeur and handyman at his Lake Ronkonkoma, L. I., summer home at a time when Falci was a fugitive from an indictment charging election frauds.

Continues Inquest Over Fireman Killed by Smoke

Deputy Coroner Louis Nadherny yesterday continued until June 7 the inquest into the death of Fireman David Walsh, 29 years old, 1117 Oakdale avenue. Damage to the warehouse was estimated at $20,000 by Division Marshal Joseph Sullivan.

Don't Let Constipation Drag On!

Do you often have days when you wake up tired—when you feel dull, sunk, "all bogged down"? It's time you did something about it. And something more than just taking a physic! You should get at the cause of the trouble!

If you eat what most people do—just bread, meat, potatoes—chances are that just this fact is responsible; you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines that helps a bowel movement.

If this is your trouble, what you need is crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast. It contains "bulk" plus Nature's great intestinal tonic, vitamin B_1.

Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and see if your old sparkle doesn't come back! Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Margaret Ann Burrows Will Bow on Nov. 11

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE Casino has been reserved by the senior Mrs. William F. Burrows of Lake Forest for Friday, Nov. 11, for a debut tea for her granddaughter, Miss Margaret Ann Burrows, elder daughter of Mrs. William F. Burrows Jr. and the late Mr. Burrows Jr. Miss Burrows, always known as Peggy, was graduated from Dobbs Ferry last spring and has been attending the Art institute.

Miss Burrows' aunt, Mrs. John C. Pitcher, undoubtedly will entertain for her debutante niece next fall, but probably not before Oct. 18, for up until that date she will be so busy as publicity chairman of the St. Luke's fashion show committee that she will not have time for anything else. The committee held its first meeting yesterday at Mrs. Frank Hixon's in Lake Forest and in spite of the downpour 31 members were there to discuss plans and then to enjoy the delicious luncheon served by the hostess.

Mrs. John W. Gary, chairman, will open her home in Glencoe on June 13 for the next meeting, for all through the summer those of the committee who are not away will work to make a success of the fashion show. Mrs. Charles H. Morse is one of those who expect to be at home all summer. She has opened her home in Lake Forest and plans to be there until late summer, at least.

Mrs. Huntington B. Henry and Mrs. Frank Hibbard are two of the St. Luke's workers who will not be here all summer. Mrs. Henry sails with Mr. Henry on July 2 for Italy, and Mrs. Hibbard with Mr. Hibbard will take a North Cape cruise. According to present plans the Henrys will visit Budapest and Salzburg as well as various Italian places.

Elizabeth Crawford to Make Debut Nov. 5.

Miss Elizabeth Crawford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David A. Crawford, will make her debut at a tea on Saturday afternoon, Nov. 5. Mr. and Mrs. Crawford will ask their friends to drop in informally at their town apartment, 209 Lake Shore drive, and meet their daughter after the Northwestern-Wisconsin football game at Dyche stadium in Evanston.

Mr. and Mrs. Crawford will entertain their daughter's friends at a dinner-dance on Dec. 21 at the Blackstone hotel. Miss Crawford, who went to school at Ward-Belmont in Nashville, now is studying languages at home. The Crawfords expect to spent most of the summer at their country home in Golf.

Three Will Bow at Joint Debut.

Three young women who are to have a joint debut party during the coming season are Miss Ann Harrington, daughter of the George B. Harringtons; Miss Julia Follansbee, daughter of the Mitchell D. Follansbees, and Miss Sally Lawson, daughter of the A. Werner Lawsons. Their parents are planning a dinner-dance for them on one of the nights between Christmas and New Year's.

Miss Harrington and Miss Follansbee, who are at Bryn Mawr, are arriving at home on Saturday. The former and her parents will be in Chicago most of the summer. Miss Lawson is a student at Vassar. Her parents moved here from Fairfield, Conn., three years ago.

Eleanor McKenna to Become Bride.

The tea that Mr. and Mrs. James J. McKenna gave Sunday afternoon as a housewarming in their new home at 1240 State parkway turned out to be a party to celebrate the engagement of their daughter, Eleanor, to Durmont Winkler McGraw, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McGraw. Announcement of the engagement was made at the party.

Miss McKenna, who attended the University School for Girls, was graduated from Vassar last June. Mr. McGraw is a graduate of the University of Chicago and also of its law school. The wedding will take place next fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Murison, two Chicagoans who qualify as "old settlers" because she was born here and he came here at the age of two, will celebrate their golden wedding next Sunday. They were married at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Griswold, 1907 Indiana avenue, on May 29, 1888, and with the exception of the first two years they have lived in Chicago and Highland Park ever since. There will be a small family party to observe the golden wedding.

London Welfare Worker Guest of Cradle Board.

The board of directors of the Cradle gave a buffet supper last night at the Cradle for Miss Josephine Plows-Day, head of the National Adoption society of London, who is visiting her niece, Mrs. Hugh Garden of 1350 State parkway.

Mrs. William E. Clow Jr. is opening her home in Lake Forest today for a sale of articles from the Eli Bates shop in town. Mrs. William McCormick Blair, Mrs. J. Andrews King, Mrs. Laurence B. Robbins, and Mrs. John H. Hamline Jr. are on the committee.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

For the tired business woman: Cleanse the face, then apply a film of a mask cream to face and neck. When it is removed ten or fifteen minutes later all signs of fatigue are erased from the weary complexion!

The only thing harder than working all day is trying to look, in the evening, as if you hadn't done anything more strenuous than dress carefully for dinner. The woman who works must be a quick change artist; she must be all fresh for the evening engagements no matter how her bones ache. To look tired is, in the present day social scheme, just about an unforgivable crime.

That's why we go for masks, those magic affairs that pick up the weary complexion. The good mask can make you look and feel unbelievably refreshed. Even the mental depression that follows on the heels of fatigue seems to disappear. When you know you no longer look like a hag, life takes on a rosier glow.

One of the best of these pickup creams isn't nearly so well known as it should be. It's a white cream with a lovely, cool, peppermintish fragrance. That fragrance alone does refreshing tricks for you. When you feel as if you couldn't last an evening try this before you dress: Cleanse your face in your usual fashion, using soap and water or cream, or both. Be sure there is no grease left on the skin. Then smooth a thin film of the mask cream over face and neck. It will feel very cool against the skin. Leave it on for 10 or 20 minutes and then rinse off with warm water. Your skin will look clearer, brighter, and somehow less lined. If you can lie down while the mask is doing its work so much the better.

It's a wonderful pickup, but don't use it just for this. If your skin is inclined to be drab, give it occasional mask treatments with this cream. You'll be surprised at how wonderfully it clarifies and stimulates.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Olympe Bradna, drowned so movingly in "Souls at Sea," that fans have been talking about her ever since and wishing they could see her in another picture. Well—that other picture is here.

In "Stolen Heaven" she proves worthy of the interest aroused by her American debut and justifies the faith of her producers who, without doubt, built the production around their young French find. Gene Raymond is, of course, also very much there, but it is on Olympe that the spotlight is most persistently turned.

The tale featuring the two is an alluring combination of excitement, suspense, intrigue, and romance, its episodes strung together on a chain of beautiful music. It is about Steffi and Carl, clever jewel thieves who are first seen filling an engagement in a beer garden where Steffi sings and dances and Carl leads the band.

About to become enmeshed in a police net, the two, accompanied by three associates, escape and hide out in the forest surrounded home of Langauer, a once famous pianist who has lost his ability to remember a tune. Just so far can he play anything—and no farther . . . Steffi, a passionate lover of great music, recognizes Langauer as a man who had enchanted her years ago when he had played for the children of an asylum where she was an inmate. . . . A bond is immediately established between the young girl and the old man. . . . When Steffi is near, Langauer can play. When she is not ——?

This situation leads to strange happenings and a dramatic denouement.

The splendid performances of Olympe, Gene Raymond, and Lewis Stone are bulwarked by Glenda Farrell's bright aid and other clever cast portrayals. Direction, sets, scenery, photography—tops!

After the movie is over—there, in person, is Gene Raymond! And do the fans love him! With reason. He's an informal, friendly person with a ready smile and a quick comeback. He talks cosily to his admirers.

Mr. Raymond hasn't any act. He merely chats and sings a couple of songs. Friday he was hoarse as a crow, but shucks, did the girls care? I should say not! It just brought out the mother in 'em.

See you soon.

Summer Dress of Linen Lace Cool and Smart

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Shop for hours and you'll never find anything cooler, smarter, more trim and neat for a summer day in town or country than the newest dresses made of linen lace. There's a crispness to the stuff that guarantees a slick summer streamline for any model, sizes twelve to twenty.

Because of the airy but not overdone lacy design, these dresses are cut with emphasis on the cut and detail. No ruffles, tag ends or extras mar their sleek simplicity. The colors are plenty eye appealing—street shades in pale copper, mint green, beige, rosy pink, and the like. Skirts are flared, but slightly; sleeves are brief, ending just above the elbow, and the shoulder lines are miracles of restrained fullness. Vee neckline, high without being pluggy and prim, keep them cool and tailored.

Belts and chiffon pocket handkerchiefs, in contrast color, provide the highlight of color interest, and these can be changed to suit the whim of the wearer.

Moderately priced, they are especially good buys for the early shopper looking for prize items for a well planned as well as cool summer wardrobe.

Big black cartwheels or broad brims in linens or burnt straw, trimmed or tied with velvet ribbon, are ideal toppers for such linen laces. Footgear made of colorfully printed challis peasant design or the wrapped and tied jersey silks, in two contrasting colors, are other footnotes that go out with complete understanding with all colors of this high fashion linen lace.

Looking at Hollywood by Ed Sullivan

I Wonder.

Hollywood, Cal., May 23.

Why they wasted Virginia Bruce on an insignificant rôle in "Yellow Jack," when showmanship should have dictated an all male cast. Uh-huh, marquee value of her name. I remember a play called "Journey's End" which had an all male cast and it did all right.

Why Darryl Zanuck, who needs a vacation, is taking along twenty persons he has to look at every day of the year.

Why Jack Warner doesn't let Basil Rathbone win a duel. Say, the villains of life don't always get mowed down, do they?

Why the studio policy in town has thumbed out comedy dramas in favor of heavier fare? Theater managers will tell you that great comedies always do business.

Why Frank Parker, or tenors of that type, don't sing "I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now" on the radio, because no song is prettier than that.

Why it is believed by a lot of performers that the thing to do, to win popularity, is to act nice to the extras and grips of Hollywood. Most thoroughly disliked actress in this town always plays up to the extras in her picture, but makes life miserable for her co-stars and featured players. It hardly makes sense.

Why they take a youngster such as Arleen Whelan and load her down with the obligations of a star in her first picture, instead of breaking her in gradually in smaller rôles?

Why they don't give Reginald Owens a crack at the rôles which Charles Laughton plays? Owens is one of the really fine actors of this colony.

Why more ado hasn't been made over Gloria Holden, who turned in a perfect gem of emotional make believe as the wife of the flyer who was killed in "Test Pilot." She played the scene in which Gable arrived at the chapel to give her half of the trophy money.

Why some night club doesn't grab Blossom Seeley. In an intimate room her syncopation would be a smash success. No party out here is complete without her "Breezin' Along With the Breeze" and you ought to hear her swing "Loch Lomond."

Why, in the present dearth of leading men, MGM doesn't raise Robert Young to stardom. He's got poise, appearance, talent, and, judging from the letters a columnist receives, he's got a tremendous femme following.

Why Joe Pasternak, at Universal, doesn't grab Joe Lewis for a spot in "Trocadero" when he brings it to the screen.

Why Jane Froman, who screened gorgeously in "Radio City Revels" and warbled delightfully, hasn't been signed to a long term ticket by the flickers. She's really a bit okay.

Why it hasn't been pointed out that Robert Taylor's "The Crowd Roars," a prizefight picture, will take the edge off "Golden Boy."

Why David Selznick doesn't insert Charlie Farrell in a Janet Gaynor flicker, because the sob writers would shower such a reunion in Hollywood with columns upon columns of publicity.

Why Jackie Coogan even refers to the case in his vaudeville appearances. He should avoid the subject, and let audiences figure out the answer to two plus two.

Why the movies haven't capitalized more on Ella Logan. She was the first to swing those Scotch songs and nobody, including Maxine Sullivan, has come even close to the Logan.

Why it hasn't been pointed out that Haile Selassie, leaving the league of nations empty handed, was a far more heroic figure than the statesmen who turned a deaf ear to the little fellow. The kids of the world, witnessing such a scene, can be pardoned their bewilderment.

Why Edgar Bergen doesn't work two dummies simultaneously. The time to do it is before Charlie McCarthy starts slipping in popular favor.

Why there wasn't more tossing of hats in the air at the magnificent comeback of Lew Ayres in "Holiday." Nothing so thrilling as to see a former star battle his or her way back to the headlinees, or at least that's one man's opinion.

Why other celebs don't get the same kick out of little things as Myrna Loy. She always gives you the impression of having just grabbed a brass ring on the carousel.

Why all actors don't aproach "Hamlet" as John Barrymore approached the character. Says Barrymore: "The main thing to remember, I think, is that Shakespeare wrote greater melodramas than Owen Davis. Hamlet was a great fencer, and fencing is more demanding physically than boxing so he was an athlete not a neurotic. He loved the ladies. He told bawdy stories. Play him in that fashion and you have won half the battle."

Why his press agent doesn't stop linking Anthony Averill with every crackpot romance in this village. It's really getting tiresome.

Why major companies, trying to fend off the shrinkage in gate receipts, don't produce some of the stories they have on their shelves.

Why it hasn't been pointed out that in all the wailing about what's wrong with the industry, the only one who hasn't given a solution is Walt Disney. He's too busy making money, I guess.

Why Jimmy Johnston tells Los Angeles newspaper men that he remembers when Mike Jacobs had to sneak in "back doors to see fight shows." Seems to me that it was Mike Jacobs who bankrolled the Dempsey-Carpentier fight for Tex Rickard when Al Smith, then governor, chased it out of New York. Jacobs stuck when England's Cochrane, William A. Brady, and John Ringling took runout powders.

Why Rochelle Hudson, with plenty to recommend her, hasn't been signed to a ticket.

SYNOPSIS.

Elizabeth Sandal is shocked to find her two children resent their father's will that unexpectedly left a fortune to her and did not mention them. Dorothea wants to have her own London flat. Oliver hopes to marry into wealth. Elizabeth goes off to Switzerland for a change and rest and meets Andrew Leicester, who was a groom at her wedding. Andrew, a widower, is returning after years of absence in China to meet his children. William, his son, lives with a bachelor relative. His daughter, Shirley, is with his wife's people. Shirley has become involved in a scandal with an aviator who was engaged to another girl. Her mother's family, so they have written Andrew, can do nothing with her. Andrew hopes to have it out with Shirley before becoming involved with his in-laws. Shirley believes the older generation are all against her and treats him coolly. Andrew turns to Elizabeth for sympathy. She tries to make friends with the boy and girl. Shirley's Aunt Jay writes Andrew hinting that the girl is seeing the aviator secretly. Dorothea hears from a friend about a stranger's attentions to her mother. Oliver decides to pay his mother a surprise visit.

INSTALMENT XX.

A WEEK-END INVITATION.

These days with Andrew Leicester had done Elizabeth good, quickening her mind and bringing her nights of refreshing sleep. He was delightful to her. She was never permitted to be bored, or tired by too much walking. There were occasional good concerts to be heard and delightful drives about Geneva and Lausanne.

It was difficult for Elizabeth to find a way of repaying all this hospitality, but that evening on their return from the French side of the lake which had quite enchanted her, she saw her chance.

Shirley and William loomed up at the quay as they disembarked, an unusual favor and due, if the truth be told, to a hope that Andrew had cashed a check and would pay up their money.

He had persuaded her to dine with them at Vevey before going back to Montreux, and William's question about the Savoy shore, which he wanted to see, gave her the inspiration.

They should come to Evian with her for the week-end as her guests.

The Evian invitation was evidently pleasing to Shirley and William though they protested politely, and Andrew was charmed with it while determined to shoulder the expense. Elizabeth won by pointing out that he could pay his own bill if he wished to be so proud, but his children were her affair.

The matter was settled and during dinner Elizabeth learned with surprise and inward dismay that William was due back in England on Tuesday.

She would be losing them so soon then? She would perhaps never hear the end of the story or learn more than she knew now of the silent young creature sitting opposite.

But Andrew had begun to speak of his sister's news of the weather in England, with a meditative eye on his son.

"Do you feel equal to facing the journey alone, William?" he asked.

"Yes, rather, thanks," returned the boy, concealing his pleasure with the necessary degree of nonchalance.

"Well, Shirley, are you prepared to let him go off unprotected?" inquired her father, with the best of intentions but as usual in the wrong manner.

"He has been doing it ever since he was 11," she retorted coldly.

It proved that by going in the train William would have to spend Monday night in Paris, whereas a passenger plane from Geneva on Tuesday morning would get him to London in a few hours. The details were presented by the would-be pilot as a matter of general interest, neatly veiling a hint, and Andrew smiled, thought the question over for a few moments, and finally announced:

"You win. Tuesday let it be, as that is how your tastes run."

"O, I say, thanks awfully, father."

The title, so far unused, had come naturally and Andrew was pleased; but Elizabeth was looking at Shirley, who this time had not been consulted. She had glanced with a half smile at her brother's delighted face and then turned away her eyes, the smile still on her lips. It remained there firmly till the end of dinner.

She wanted to shake Andrew for his clumsiness and insensibility, yet saw his provocation and remembered the story he had told her this morning of the years when the girl had never troubled to see the boy.

"I am being sentimental, I suppose," she thought. "Perhaps he is right and I am wrong."

Later that evening Shirley bought a stamp at the desk, asked for her key, and went to slip a letter into the box beside the outer door, just as her father emerged from the smoking room.

She was caught and looked guilty, but her impulse to snatch up her key and run for the stairs was frustrated by Andrew, who had accepted both keys from the porter and was waiting for her.

His anger with her had been mounting steadily throughout the evening. They ascended in the lift without a word, but at their floor she held out her hand for the key and said: "Thanks."

"Allow me," returned her father. "What is your number?"

"Seventeen."

"Changed again, has she?" he thought grimly, and as he reached her door, paused and looked her up and down.

"I suppose you consider yourself too old to have your ears boxed?" he inquired.

"Definitely!" said the girl, head up and eyes blazing. "May I have my key, please?" The tone was not placating, but she had stood her ground.

He unlocked the door but barred the way, hands in pockets, half expecting her to slip in, or try.

Shirley made no move.

"We will return to the discussion of ears when your brother has gone," he said significantly, "unless you prefer it now."

"It's nothing to do with William. I won't listen to you while he's here," cried Shirley.

He caught her by the elbow and moved out of the doorway, feeling her stiffen at his touch.

"Very well. But there's one thing you'll hear whether you like it or not," he said. "Ever since you met me in Paris, for reasons best known to yourself, you've treated me to insolence and incivility. I am your father, but if you find it difficult to remember that, it might occur to you at least that I am your host. During this week-end with Mrs. Sandal you'll be good enough to behave yourself, Shirley. I am ashamed that she should see such ill breeding. Good night."

He pushed her into the room, closed the door, and walked off, but halfway down the corridor looked back and saw the key still in the lock.

Was she going to leave it there, had she as little sense as that for all her airs?

Forever he found himself confused between her youth and her maturity. To him she was a child, yet a moment ago treating her as such, he had been well aware of her resentment and unchildlike scorn. After some hesitation he returned and tapped. The girl flung open the door and retreated, facing him defensively.

"Catch," said her father, flung the key and went.

To Shirley it was on the whole a fortunate finale, for it took her by surprise. She stood with the key in her hand, a sudden desire to laugh submerging for a moment, a mixture of other and far less pleasant emotions.

The door was still open and in the distance she heard him bang his own. Hearing the tap, she had thought for a horrible second that they must have shouted without knowing it, and this was William coming to see what on earth was up.

Why had he asked William about Tony? Wasn't that a disgusting thing to do when he hadn't asked her? What had been in Jay's letter, then, to make him do it? What had they said about Tony, and even worse, what had they said to him?

This question to which always she came back, made her hot and cold by turns, hating a world in which she felt there was no safe place.

WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER: Happy Returns?

Present New Foods Slowly to Your Baby

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Nature intends the baby to live entirely on his mother's milk at first and then gradually to begin to drink, and then to eat other foods. There is no reason why the whole business can't come about happily and easily in the first two years of the baby's life.

If we'll just keep in mind that all things in connection with our baby naturally come along in easy stages, and act serenely on that principle, we'll not get tied up in knots and then have all these eating difficulties that are far too prevalent today. They are too prevalent because they not only interfere with the baby's and little child's health, but with his happiness as it's tied up with his relationship with his family. A little knowledge and a lot of common sense and patience can prevent these poor early eating habits.

Perhaps the two most important pieces of knowledge are [1] that the new solids and liquids must be presented to the baby gradually; and [2] what those new foods are.

To introduce the new foods gradually means two things: It means presenting them to the baby gradually—that is, only a very little at a time, and infrequently; and making the transition from liquid food to solid foods gradually. The little baby without any teeth who has only had to suck and swallow, wouldn't know what to do with pieces of carrot or chunks of prune. So, his fruits and vegetables are reduced to a texture [by straining, or mashing, or adding liquid] that he can manage comfortably in his mouth and that slips down easily.

If then the baby's new foods are the right ones and are well cooked; if they're of the right texture; and if they're presented gradually as part of a pleasant, taken-for-granted routine, without fussing, or forcing [the WORST food start in the world!], there's no reason why your quite new son or daughter shouldn't take to them like a little duck to water.

President to Give Talk to Arthurdale Graduates

Washington, D. C., May 23.—(AP)—Mrs. Roosevelt, who was to have been the commencement speaker at Arthurdale High school, near Reedsville, W. Va., said today that the President would make the speech instead. The new arrangement, she said, would be more of a treat to the community. The exercises will be held Friday. Arthurdale is a government homestead project, in which Mrs. Roosevelt has taken deep interest.

The Housewife

Some women prefer gleaming white kitchens to those whose walls are painted in color. They like everything white: Kitchen, icebox, cabinets, and tables. This expanse of snowy purity, however, is apt to look a little like an operating room and it lacks individuality, so why not brighten it up with touches of red, blue, green or yellow?

There are several delightful stickers in flower, fruit, vegetable, and Mexican designs with which you can decorate the white doors of your cabinets or which you can arrange in any way you wish on your kitchen walls or even on the furniture. They are made of a washable fabric that is backed with an adhesive. All you do is stick them on, and whenever you want to you can also pull them off without damage to the wall or cabinet.

We like the Mexican designs, especially: Cactus trees, a burro and peons in big sombreros in gay, bright colors. They come in sets and they're not a bit expensive.

Jealous? Lay Blame at Door of Inferiority

BY DORIS BLAKE.

The girl is 20 and her suitor is 23 and they have been going "steady" for almost two years. It is understood between them that they will marry as soon as finances permit, which is not to be too far away.

"There's only one thing that worries me," the girl tells. "It is because of my being jealous, my friends say. But my sweetheart has a habit of looking at other girls in a way that irritates me. Sometimes he even forgets that I am with him. I mean that he tries to attract other girls' attention.

"I know he loves me and does not go out with other girls. He says he does not mean anything by his glances. He shows that he loves me by doing everything else right. Is it just a man's habit to look at other girls or is the trouble my being jealous, and what should be done under the circumstances?"

That you are jealous and he has the roving eye probably sums up your little difficulty. But why shouldn't he look at an attractive girl? Don't you slip a wayward glance when Clark Gable's double passes by, or Robert Taylor's or Robert Young's? All eyes have a yen for the pleasing, you know. Some eyes more than others.

But don't you think it's fairly flattering when a man looks them all over and then gives you all his time? You must be the best of the lot in his eyes. That ought to help clear up the jealous green in your own eyes, sister. If it doesn't, then you'd better get yourself down pronto to a course on overcoming jealousy.

It is a stupid vice, although a common one. There is nothing unusual about your possession of it. But when you are told that jealous people are those who suffer an inferiority complex, that ought to set you to doing a little thinking.

If you didn't feel inferior you wouldn't mind how many girls your beau looked at. But you just don't think you could pass the test along with the others. How to get more faith in yourself is your job. But you'd better make it your job or you will nag once too often about the man's gaze glancing elsewhere.

Next time a girl goes by that earns his glance study her a bit, or at a dance or party study the girl that he seems to admire. Has she so much on you in looks, in manner, in charm, appeal? Haven't you charm, too?

We repeat, you must have charms or the man would not be hanging around you steadily. It would help to invest in a good book on how to overcome the inferiority pangs. Anyway, you must get over them.

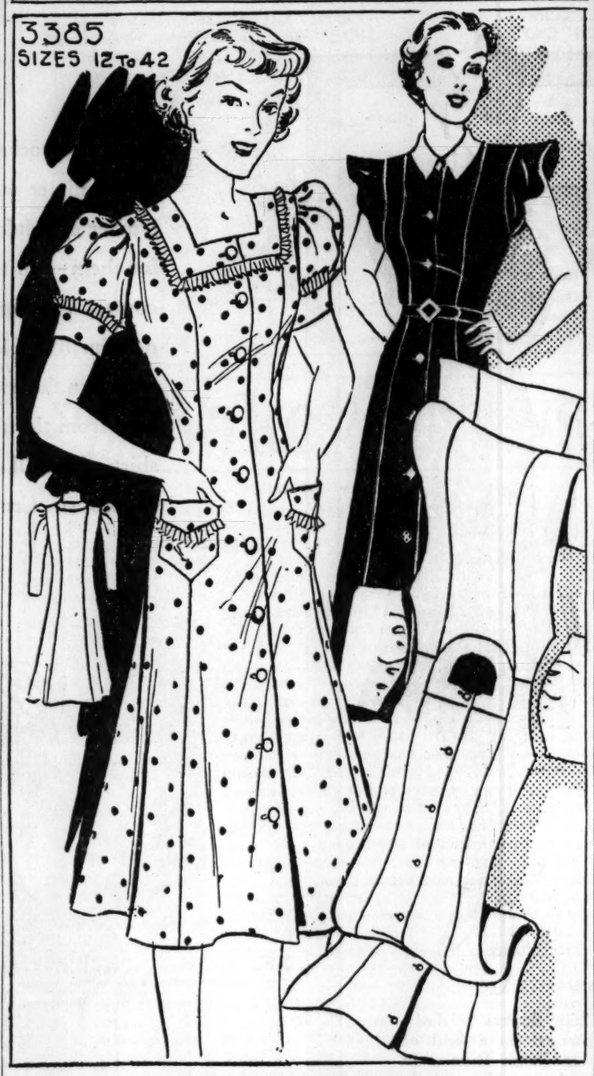
Informal Frock for Cottons



WOMAN'S AND MISS' FROCK.

For your hours at home, shopping, and making informal calls you will like this simple and tailored dress which takes so beautifully to the inexpensive yet beautiful cottons. You may style it in either of two ways. It mya have a square neckline with a yokelike collar and puffed sleeves. You might edge the yoke and cuffs with ruffling, if you like, and put some on the pockets, too. The slim princess lines make the use of gay prints and dotted materials most effective. Buttons lend a special beauty to the front of the dress. No belt is necessary, since the paneling fits the frock perfectly to the figure.

If you prefer, give the dress a high neckline and a shirtwaist collar. The sleeves may be left to flutter. In this particularly tailored version a belt is not out of place, if you really want one.

Style No. 3385 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 4½ yards of 39 inch material, with 2⅝ yards of plaited ruffling.

Furniture Shipped to Duke of Windsor's Chateau on Riviera

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 23.—The duke of Windsor, former King Edward VIII. of England, is installing furniture, plate, and linen from his favorite English retreat, Fort Belvedere, in his new home, Château de Croe, in Antibes on the French Riviera, it was learned tonight.

A consignment of furniture which had been stored in Windsor castle since his abdication left England today for the south of France. This was the second shipment of the duke's belongings sent to him in recent months. Most of the plate and linen, which are valuable antiques, left in February.

It is understood the duke telephoned the castle, instructing what property should be sent to the château which he and his duchess have rented for the next two years.

On the marriage of each of her sons Mrs. Roosevelt has given the bride a string of these pearls.

PRESBYTERIAN HEADS MODIFY LANGUAGE IN SECTION ABOUT POPE

Meridian, Miss., May 23.—(AP)—The general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States today modified the language of a section of the confession of faith relative to the pope.

The original section reads: "There is no other head of the church but the Lord Jesus Christ nor can the pope of Rome in any sense be head thereof; but is that anti-Christ, that man of sin, and son of perdition, that exalteth himself in the church, against Christ and all that is called God."

The paragraph was changed to read: "The Lord Jesus Christ is the only head of the church, and the claim of any man to be the vicar of Christ and the head of the church is without warant in fact or scripture, even anti-Christian, a usurpation dishonoring the Lord Jesus Christ."

If you ever have eaten pineapple muffins you'll know they are good. So are strawberry muffins—maybe even better. They're made in the same way, with the strawberries supplying the liquid for the batter.

Strawberry rolls and strawberry puffs are other baked berry delights suitable for luncheon, tea, or for party service. And with these recipes I'm including one for a strawberry ice cream made with marshmallows.

Strawberry Muffins.
[Sixteen Small Muffins.]

2 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg
1 cup crushed strawberries, sweetened
4 tablespoons melted shortening

Sift flour, baking powder, and salt together. Beat egg and add to berries together with shortening. Add to flour mixture, stirring only enough to dampen the flour. Bake in greased muffin tins in a hot oven, 425 degrees, for 20 to 25 minutes.

Strawberry Rolls.
[One Dozen Medium.]

2 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons shortening
⅔ cup milk
1 cup strawberry preserves

Sift dry ingredients together. Cut in shortening. Add milk and mix to a soft dough. Roll out into a rectangular sheet ¾ inch thick. Brush lightly with softened butter. Spread with preserves and roll as a jelly roll. Cut into slices ½ inch thick. Place in greased muffin tins. Add one teaspoon preserves to the top of each roll. Bake in a hot oven, 450 degrees, for 12 to 15 minutes. These rolls may be made smaller for use as an accompaniment to afternoon tea.

Strawberry Puffs.
[Serves Four.]

3 tablespoons shortening
⅓ cup sugar
¾ cup flour [1 cup, less 2 tablespoons]
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ cup water
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ cup strawberries, cut fine
1 egg white, beaten
⅛ teaspoon salt

Blend shortening and sugar. Sift flour, salt, and baking powder together. Add alternately with liquid to shortening and sugar. Fold in strawberries and lemon juice. Fold in egg white. Pour into greased muffin tins and bake in a hot oven, 400 degrees, for 20 minutes. Serve as a dessert with strawberry honey.

STRAWBERRY HONEY — Cook slowly 1 cup crushed strawberries with ¾ cup sugar until slightly thick. Add the juice of ½ lemon. Strain through a sieve and cool.

Strawberry Marshmallow Frozen Cream.
[Six Servings.]

1 pint strawberries
24 marshmallows
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup whipping cream

Crush the strawberries. Heat marshmallows and 2 tablespoons of the strawberry juice in the top of a double boiler. Stir constantly with a folding motion, heating only until marshmallows are about half melted. Remove from heat and continue folding until mixture is smooth. Cool. When cold add strawberries and salt. Chill again. Whip cream and fold strawberry mixture into it. Freeze, without stirring, in refrigerator tray.

ACES ARE NICE, BUT NOT EVERYTHING.

[Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.]

Too many players allow the possession of three or four aces to go to their heads. I am just as fond of an ace as is any one else, but I never lose sight of the fact that most of the tricks are won by lower cards. North's misuse of the four-five no trump convention in the following hand was typical of those players who overrate aces and underrate kings and queens.

North, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 spade	Pass	2 clubs	Pass
4 no trump	Pass	5 clubs	Pass
Pass	Pass

North was very disappointed when his partner could not answer the four no trump bid affirmatively, and passed to five clubs only after a deep, regretful sigh. There was good ground for this sigh, but not the same ground that North had in mind. It was not a case of missing a slam, but of being unable to fulfill the mere game contract in clubs.

West opened the heart queen. East won and made the eminently correct shift to a low diamond. From that point declarer was battling insuperable odds. By the time he had established dummy's spade suit the defenders had set up a diamond trick, and the contract was down one.

North's four no trump bid had been the monkey wrench in the machinery. The first and most important consideration in the employment of the four-five no trump convention is that the partnership should be safe at the five level if there is a negative response, or at the six level with a positive one. North's hand did not conform to this measurement. Although North had first round control in three suits and second round control in hearts, there still was not enough in his hand of what certain experts vulgarly refer to as "guts" for North to commit himself irrevocably to a five level, or higher, contract. For all North could tell, South might have reasonably good spade support which he would be willing and anxious to show if permitted to do so at a logical point. Thus, if North had adopted the correct expedient of jumping to four clubs, South, with the Q-8-5 of spades, would have seized the chance to show that he could stand a spade contract. The bidding should have gone:

North	East	South	West
1 spade	Pass	2 clubs	Pass
4 clubs	Pass	4 spades	Pass
Pass	Pass

Obviously four spades would have been a laydown against any opening lead and against any subsequent defense.

North probably would have liked to find fault with South's two club response and attribute the downfall to that bid, but since South's bidding had been perfectly correct North did not even have that solace.

Szymanowski a Step Nearer Place in Sun

BY CECIL SMITH.

The music of Poland's greatest composer, the late Karol Szymanowski, moved one step nearer to adequate recognition in Chicago last night. At a gathering of the Polish Arts club in the quarters of the Woman's City club Wanda Paul, young Chicago pianist of Polish descent, spoke upon the career and works of Szymanowski and played examples of his music from various periods of his career.

The overflow size of the audience, and more especially the surprising number of visitors from outside the Polish group, bespoke an encouraging growth of interest in this little understood but enormously gifted musician. No doubt many were drawn to the lecture recital by the memory of Miss Paul's capital performance of Szymanowski's "Symphonie Concertante" with the Illinois Symphony orchestra last March.

The Polish composer's activity was cut short by his death in 1937 at the age of 54. A brief visit to the United States in 1921 served to introduce his work to a somewhat skeptical New York audience. To this day the musical public of Chicago has been granted opportunity to hear only four of his major works, and each of these only once.

In her plea for more cordial treatment of this music Miss Paul dwelt upon the impassioned warmth of its melodies, the evocative color of its harmonic schemes, and the humanness of its frequent reliance upon Polish mountain folk tunes. This plea gained strength from the effective propaganda of her own playing—notably of her expert treatment of the youthful "Variations on a Polish Theme."

In his later years, according to Allan Tanner of Chicago, a close friend of Szymanowski, the composer said that the variations were too long to be worth the trouble of any pianist. Miss Paul showed him to be wrong, as so many composers are when they bring the harsh judgment of maturity to bear upon their own early works.

The Polish Arts club brought great credit upon itself by sponsoring so intelligent and progressive an evening. Perhaps it can exert enough influence in high places to make possible a Chicago hearing of one of Szymanowski's last masterpieces, the suite for chorus and orchestra drawn from the ballet-pantomime "Harnasie." Why not challenge the 1939 Evanston festival.

Random Gestures Invariably Add Years to One's Age

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

"Old age does not come upon us suddenly and unexpectedly, like catching a cold," says Gelett Burgess, well known writer and author of "Look Eleven Years Younger."

"It comes slowly and insidiously, more like falling in debt. And if we're not on our guard and know the danger, the process is aided and abetted by our own carelessness, thoughtlessness, and love of comfort.

"The very old man cannot strighten his bent back or his cocked head. He has lost the power of conscious control. He can't open his eyes wide, if he has formed the habit of letting them narrow to mere slits. But if he had known the danger and resisted each temptation to such laxities, he could have forfended many of the stigmata of senility.

"What was the trouble? Ignorance of the subtle attack of the years, and a habit of doing things half consciously. When you feel of your ear you don't do it with any definite intention or volition. Your mind is much as it is when half asleep. It is such automatic movements that make you seem older than you should. You should not make the smallest movement without a purpose—that has no meaning. Cultivate poise. It makes your behavior efficient. That gives style and youthfulness.

"WE GROW OLD BECAUSE WE DON'T KNOW WHAT WE ARE DOING, MUCH OF THE TIME.

"As we get older we develop a tendency to substitute for significant actions, those that mean something, actions which are insignificant, or mean nothing.

"This is illustrated by the postures of the 'elbow sequence' when sitting at a table, by innumerable nervous movements, twiddling a pencil, twirling a tassel, stroking your own bare arm, sitting with the head resting on the hand, etc.

"These insignificant movements are the weeds of deportment and prevent the flowering of a personality in characteristic and expressive gestures.

"Most of these senile mannerisms and postures come first when we are off-guard and abstracted. Listening at church, sitting in a subway train, walking along the street. You should realize that 'the curtain is up' as on a stage performance whenever you are outside your own bedroom. If you wish to be youthful you can never be off-guard. There's always somebody to see you and say, 'Jane's gone off, hasn't she?'"

Star and Wreath.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

This attractive conventional pieced pattern first was made in Massachusetts in 1847, but never has become one of the well known designs. It is the delight of quilt makers who revel in a pattern which contains a variety of patches and it must be set together with utmost accuracy. The center star is done in blue and the star bouquets around it are created in red, yellow, and blue, with white serving as a background. The 16½ inch blocks are set together with 4 inch bands of white material and the coverlet is finished with a 6 inch white border and a ½ inch bias binding. There is no quilting on the bands between the blocks, and the "star and wreath" are quilted in outline.

For a limited period Nancy Cabot offers ten quilt patterns of her own choice at a price of 10 cents for the group (12 cents by mail). Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS TAX ON COLLEGE FOOTBALL

SIX MEMBERS OF BIG TEN ARE HIT BY RULING

Back Payments Due to U. S. Treasury.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 23.—The United States Supreme court today upheld the validity of the 10 per cent federal admissions tax as applied to tickets for football games conducted by state universities. The regents of the university system of Georgia, an instrumentality of the state having control and management of the University of Georgia and Georgia Tech, challenged the exaction as an unconstitutional burden on an essential state governmental function.

The regents relied upon the ancient doctrine of reciprocal intergovernmental tax immunity, established in McCulloch vs. Maryland [1819] and The Collector vs. Day [1871]. This is the principle that the states cannot tax the instrumentalities of the federal government, and vice versa, because the power to tax is the power to destroy.

Public Pays Tax.

As stated by Justice Owen J. Roberts, the stadium of the University of Georgia has a seating capacity of 30,000, cost $180,000, and was paid for by borrowed money, which is being repaid by the Athletic association, whose chief source of revenue is admissions to the contests in the stadium. Of the amount borrowed, $158,000 has been repaid since the stadium was completed in 1929. The student enrollment is about 2,400. Each student pays an annual athletic fee of $10, which confers the privilege of free admission to the football games and all other athletic events, and all admissions collected, and the tax on them, are paid by the general public.

The total receipts of the athletic association for the year ending Aug. 31, 1935, were $91,620.25, of which $71,323.27 came from admissions to football games.

The Georgia Tech stadium has a seating capacity of 29,000, cost $275,000, and was paid for by a gift of $50,000 and from admissions and student fees. Total receipts of its athletic association for the six months ended Dec. 31, 1934, were $119,436.75, of which $74,168.31 came from admissions to football games.

Million Dollars Involved.

The court's opinion granted that these exhibition enterprises are comparatively large and are the means of procuring substantial aid for the school's programs of athletics and physical education. But, said the court:

"When a state embarks in a business which would normally be taxable, the fact that in so doing it is exercising a governmental power does not render the activity immune from federal taxation." The opinion referred to the case of South Carolina vs. United States, 199 U. S. 437, in which federal license taxes on state liquor dispensaries were upheld.

Justice Pierce Butler and James Clark McReynolds dissented in the decision which it is estimated will enrich the federal treasury by more than $1,000,000 a year.

BIG TEN INVOLVED

Six Western conference universities are affected by the United States Supreme court's decision yesterday upholding the validity of taxes on tickets to football games at state schools. The two other state institutions in the Big Ten, Purdue and Indiana, have been collecting the tax and paying it to the internal revenue bureau. Chicago and Northwestern are privately endowed institutions and are not involved.

Of the six, Illinois and Iowa were the hardest hit. Neither has been collecting the tax for two years. Illinois' receipts last fall were $137,000 and for the season before they were said to have been slightly higher. On

BY ARCH WARD.

FOR the first time since Jimmy Dykes has been manager of the White Sox the fact that he smokes cigars was not mentioned as a picturesque novelty in all New York newspapers on the occasion of the Sox's last visit to the Bronx. . . . International Sport.

When I read in the Wake a few days ago your very fine point about sport contributing to international good will I was reminded of a paragraph taken from one of John Galsworthy's articles, which is as follows:

"Sport, which still keeps the flag of idealism flying, is perhaps the most saving grace in the world at the moment, with its spirit of rules kept, and regard for the adversary whether the fight is going for or against. When, if ever, the fair play spirit of sport reigns over international affairs, the cat force which rules there now will slink away and human life emerge for the first time from the jungle."

Your Golden Gloves tournaments have done a fine thing in helping to break down religious, racial, and national barriers. I do not believe we have any institution that is quite so democratic as sport in America.

Getting Away from It All.

When "getting away from it all,"
You put on an old lumber shirt;
You wish you could stay until fall
Just fishing with worms from the dirt.

Your boots are a little bit tight,
Your knickers are snug in the front;
A bowie knife may be all right,
But not for a little fat runt.

You fish and you fish and you fish,
But there's nary a one that will bite;
Mosquitoes, they bite, and you wish
For your nice comfy bed when it's night.

Yes, "getting away from it all,"
That's just what you're planning to do.
The fishing is better in fall,
But you won't be there if it's true.

SIX U. S. WALKER CUP PLAYERS WIN IN BRITISH GOLF

Ouimet Hardest Pressed in 1 Up Victory.

TROON, Scotland, May 23.—(AP)—Surviving the relentless Scottish wind and rain, six of America's Walker cup players marched through the opening day's play of the British amateur golf tournament today.

Blown off their feet, drenched and blue with cold, they took everything Scotland and the opposition had to offer and came out without a defeat.

Led by the veteran Francis Ouimet, team captain who hung on to gain a 1 up victory over P. J. Urlwin-Smith, the Walker cup players came home with the following triumphs:

Charles [Chuck] Kocsis of Detroit, 7 and 5 over R. W. Crummack; Marvin [Bud] Ward of Olympia, Wash., 5 and 3 over Israel Sidebottom; United States Champion Johnny Goodman of Omaha, 7 and 5 over Robert Montgomerie; Ray Billow of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., 3 and 2 over Raymond Quilter, and Reynolds Smith, Dallas, Tex., 4 and 2 over Peter Koch de Gooreynd.

They start eliminating each other tomorrow.

Fischer Meets Yates Today.

Johnny Fischer of Cincinnati and Charley Yates of Atlanta, who walked around together today in the huge galleries, must battle it out in a first round match tomorrow. Goodman and Billow, second round opponents tomorrow, will replay their 1937 match for the United States amateur title which Goodman won, 2 up, in 36 holes.

Ouimet plays Dr. William Tweddell, 1936 British Walker cup captain, and Fred Haas Jr., of New Orleans, the other American team member, makes his first start against A. J. Ashworth.

Three Americans—Bobby Dunkelberger of High Point, N. C.; Charles S. Munson Jr. of Fairfield, Conn., and Yale, and Arthur V. Rogers Jr., Oxford student from Winchester, Mass., who was entered from a French club—actually did go out in today's play. But the only Walker cup player who had a real tussle was Ouimet.

Ouimet's Game Collapses.

He was old man par himself for nine holes, but going "round the bend," that treacherous waste of gorse and grass and sand, he collapsed.

"I started peeping at that yellow gorse," said Ouimet with a laugh, "then I started hitting a few off the heel of my club and, first thing I knew, my lead was gone."

When he started out along the sea, the wind was against him. By the time he started back it had veered and was blowing even harder from the opposite direction. At the 556 yard sixteenth, into the teeth of this gale, Ouimet hit three perfect full woods and still had to chip to the green.

Seeing this, the officials of Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews decided that the rest of the boys should play from the ladies' tees there, as well as at the tenth and eighteenth.

British Walker Cup Player Loses.

About the only upset of the day was the 2 and 1 defeat of Charles Stowe, British Walker cup player, by D. W. Turner, another Englishman. The other British Walker cup players came through. Rex Hartley, a former Walker cup players, had to go to the twentieth to beat J. Cameron Conn, and Andy Jamieson, the baker boy who once beat Bobby Jones, went down before Armour Matthews of South Africa, 1 up.

But Jamieson's not a baker boy now and he's not the golfer he was then, so even this was not remarkable.

The American who really surprised the galleries was Kocsis. He took to the wind and the sea like a swallow and was knocking the pins out of the cups most of the afternoon. When he did stray the Detroit player chipped up and rammed down putts from all over the place.

Ward also regained his form. He

LAWRIN LEADS NOMINEES FOR ILLINOIS DERBY

BY FRENCH LANE.

Twenty-seven horses are eligible to run in the $12,000 Illinois Derby, a mile and an eighth stake which brings the Aurora spring racing season to a close Saturday.

A final check of entries was made yesterday by Racing Secretary Dick Leigh. The last two colts nominated were Mountain Ridge and John One, owned by Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Milky Way farm stable.

The complete list of nominations follows:

HORSE.	OWNER.
Lawrin	Herbert G. Woolf.

Fairflax	Frank Scremba.
My Feng	Frank Scremba.
Pin Money	Frank Scremba.

The weather man had the Aurora track officials tossing in their beds last night. Should conditions be bad the Derby will lose its big attraction, Lawrin, the Kentucky Derby winner.

Lawrin can run in the mud, but Trainer Ben Jones does not care to send him out in that sort of going with such rich stakes as the Dwyer at Aqueduct and the Classic at Arlington awaiting him.

Extremely difficult going might drive other leading contenders out of the battle. So the prayers went up on every side for fair weather the remainder of the week.

Half the Derby eligibles are owned by Chicagoans. If all other entries were scratched, the Derby still would be a pretty good battle.

A. G. Tarn, the Canadian horseman, put over another good thing at Aurora yesterday. It was Maderis, the winner of the third race, which paid off at $15. It was Maderis' first start since last fall's meeting at Sportsman's Park. The 6 year old son of Morvich liked the muddy going. He staged a game rush in the stretch to

Ross Breaks Camp; Goes to New York for Title Fight

BY WILFRID SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Grossinger Lake, N. Y., May 23.—Barney Ross, welterweight champion of the world, said good-by to his training camp here in the Catskill mountains this evening. And when the former Golden Gloves champion and members of his party went sliding down the winding roads toward Manhattan in a drizzle of rain which obscured the ridges, they left with the knowledge of a task well done.

Since Ross reported at Grossinger's resort on April 30 he has boxed on 15 days and has completed 63 rounds against his spar mates in preparation for his title bout with Henry Armstrong Thursday in the Madison Square Garden bowl. This is the best training campaign in Ross' career.

There's a subject on which either Pian or Winch will talk all evening. It's an attack and a defense. And the story is that Armstrong never will crash through as long as Barney can keep that left flicking to the face.

Even in his gymnasium work today, three rounds on the big bag and as many more with the punching bag after he had unlimbered in the ring. Barney was shooting lefts. He peppered a tatoo of lefts at the bags and finished twenty-one minutes of exercise as easily as you might walk a block.

"Barney never has worked as much or as hard for any other opponent," Sam Pian, the front office man of the managerial duo that has guided the Chicago boy from his amateur days to two world professional titles, said in official approval.

Ross in Good Shape.

"Barney didn't even put in as many rounds when he was getting ready for Jimmy McLarnin," Pian added as he watched the champion step through seven rounds of gymnasium drill this afternoon.

"And Barney's in the best shape in his life," Art Winch, his trainer, said stepping into the conversation with a quick left before Pian could close the gap in the conversation.

Twenty-eight years of age, Ross says he is in the best physical condition in his life. Experience has heightened his effectiveness. His skill is backed by accurate, intelligent generalship. All have made him supremely confident that he will whip Armstrong as he defeated Tony Canzoneri, in defense of the lightweight title, and won from Jimmy McLarnin in the welterweight title fight three years ago.

Just Over 141.

Ross weighed just a few ounces more than 141 pounds after today's workout. He was an even 141 when he ended his boxing yesterday. So it is apparent the champion will have no difficulty weighing in at 142 pounds to conform to the agreement with Armstrong. Incidentally, Barney thinks his opponent will weigh 136 pounds for the fight.

At no time has Ross had to cut down on the steaks and chops, which he likes so well. The chef put a two pound sirloin in front of Barney the other evening to stage a picture for the photographers, and then Barney insisted on eating the steak and all the trimmings the chef had piled on his plate.

Barney Is Confident.

Ross hadn't worried a minute so the boys who have lived in the same cottage with him say. That is, not about Armstrong. Barney doesn't think so much of the air stunts with which his friend Dr. John P. O'Connell has been amusing himself. Dr. O'Connell was shooting at the hotel in a solo yesterday evening.

When Ross left this evening he said he would be back for the week-end to vacation here before beginning training for the bout with Lou Ambers, lightweight champion. That bout on July 26 goes to the winner Thursday night.

If this is overconfidence Armstrong will have to prove as much.

ARMSTRONG OPENS UP.

Pompton Lakes, N. J., May 23.—(AP)—Henry Armstrong today opened up with a furious attack against Sparring Partner Frankie Genovese, the Canadian welterweight who has been giving him stiff opposition in his workouts for his title match against Barney Ross.

As in their week-end sessions, Genovese, using a fast left and a snappy right, gave Armstrong plenty of trouble, but the colored challenger's tireless two-fisted attack left the Canadian a weary, beaten man at the finish.

The sparring probably will be the last until the challenger meets Ross Thursday night.

HARTNETT HITS FOURTH HOMER WITH MATE ON

Second Victory in Row for Lee.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., May 23.—Bill Lee, the southern gentleman who a few days ago unraveled his skein of bad luck by pitching that ten inning shutout masterpiece against the Champion Giants, came through with another triumph today. With no apparent exertion he halted the winning streak of Casey Stengel's upstart Bees at seven games and piloted his slightly feeble Cub companions to a 4 to 1 decision for an even break in the two game series.

The Cubs' victory, combined with the Giants' 4 to 3 setback at the hands of the Pirates, cut the leading New York club's margin over the Chicagoans to two and a half games.

The Cubs' feebleness probably can be excused by the fact that they were confronted by the 31 year old Lou Fette, who last season featured his big league entry with a total of twenty victories. Today the old fellow completed his chores on an allotment of five hits, but one of the five was enough to beat him. That one was Gabby Hartnett's fourth homer with a man on base in the second inning. The two other runs were unearned because of an error being mixed with a pass and one hit, but they were comforting.

Bill Displays Control.

Lee, who often has trouble with his control, was steady as a rock this afternoon. He was seldom in the hole and the only evidence of wildness was one hit batter and one pass. Even hits, if one inning is discounted, were pitifully scarce for the Beehive occupants. In the first three innings Lee gave up only two singles. In the fourth the Bees proved robust enough to collect half of their day's total. This bit of enterprise netted them their lone run, the honor of driving it home going to Fette.

Except for Hartnett and Augie Galan the Cubs might just as well have enjoyed the afternoon strolling through the public parks. In addition to his decisive homer Gabby notched a fourth inning single which went to waste. After Gabby had completed his share of the attack Galan took it up by singling twice, one of the hits assisting in the fifth inning scoring. The only other Cub hit was a phoney for which Bill Jurges was grateful.

Gabby Plasters One.

After three Cubs and the same number of Bees had fallen without much resistance in the first inning, the second opened with free passage for Demaree. Hartnett picked out Fette's second pitch and thumped it into the left field seats for the first two runs of the afternoon. The next mishap for Fette was Warstler's fumble on which Reynolds survived, but although the blunder was made before any one was retired, the Cubs couldn't profit by it. Collins flied to Cooney and Jurges helped Fette escape on a double play.

Lee's support wasn't exactly perfect in the home second and this caused him some discomfort. To start the inning he fanned West and would have had Cuccinello if Jurges hadn't thrown the ball into the dugout, giving the runner a ride to second. Garms bounced to Hack and beat it for a hit. Cuccinello holding second. Mueller tapped to Lee and a bit of heroic fielding by Jurges after getting Lee's errant throw forced Garms at second. Hack threw out Warstler to conclude the inning.

Boston Gets a Run.

Lee put himself on the spot in the third, but got off it without damage. With one out he banged Fletcher on the right shoulder with a pitched ball. Cooney lined out to Galan, Di Maggio singled and Galan also handled

EVANS OF OHIO LEADS BIG TEN GOLF WITH 153

Richardson of N. U. Is Second with 154.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 23.—(AP)—Charles Evans, sophomore from Ohio State, took a one stroke lead over the field of forty-nine tonight with a 153 at the end of thirty-six holes in the seventy-two hole Big Ten championship golf tournament on the university course.

Evans kept his shots low and straight over the par seventy-one course in a cold wind. He shot a 74 in the morning and slipped to a 79 in the afternoon, but still was one stroke ahead of Sid Richardson of Northwestern, defending his individual title, who totaled 154. Neil Croonquist, Minnesota, was two strokes farther back with a 156 for third place.

Wildcat Team Leads.

Northwestern went into the lead in the four man team scoring with a 635, three shots better than Minnesota's 638. The other schools included Michigan, 639; Ohio State, 643; Illinois, 652; Wisconsin, 656; Iowa, 665; Purdue, 681; Indiana, 683, and Chicago, 691.

Evans' score was eleven strokes over par and the wooded course severely penalized any shots that went off line. The final thirty-six holes will be played tomorrow.

William Barclay of Michigan, after ending the morning round with an 82, came back in the afternoon to post a 75 and a 157 total for fourth place.

Cooper, Palmer Tie.

Billy Cooper of Minnesota and Bob Palmer of Michigan tied for the next position with 158s. Other leading scores included John Hobart of Illinois, 159; Bill Ploetz of Wisconsin, 159; C. Bland of Northwestern, 159; Bill O'Neall of Northwestern, 159, and Lynn Reiss, Michigan, 160.

Four teams were well in the running for the title with only eight points separating Northwestern in first and Ohio State in fourth. Northwestern won the team title last year, interrupting Michigan's reign which ran for five years previously.

All teams except Purdue had five men entered, with the low four on each team figuring in the team scoring. Purdue had only four men. Scores:

ROLL OFF TIE TOMORROW FOR WOMEN'S TITLE

Cincinnati, O., May 23.—(AP)—The women's national bowling tournament ended tonight, but a roll-off was scheduled for Wednesday night to determine the winner in the singles event. Nell Webster of Elgin, Ill., and Rose Warner of Waukegan, Ill., will return to break the 622 tie for the leadership.

Milwaukeeans, some of whom helped take home the team title last night, failed to pile up high averages in other events today. Flo Grunwaldt's 596 took tenth place in the singles and Lee Biesbier's 1,693 pins took seventh in the all-events. Irma Jones placed ninth in the all-events with a 1,665 total.

Dorothy Burmeister of Chicago, with 1,843, won the all-events title. Other winners were the Heil Heats team of Milwaukee with a 2,706 and the doubles combination of F. Probert-E. Sablatnik of St. Louis, who totaled 1,215.

FITZPATRICK AND TRINER TOLD TO SETTLE DISPUTE

Springfield, Ill., May 23.—[Special.]—Joseph Triner of Chicago and J. R. Fitzpatrick of Springfield, who constitute the state boxing commission, have been ordered to settle their differences of opinion, according to an announcement issued today from Gov. Horner's office.

The friction between the two commission members was aggravated recently when Fitzpatrick objected to Chairman Triner's statement that a proposed Joe Louis-Max Baer bout should be barred from Chicago because promoters had fixed New York instead of Chicago as the site of Louis' bout with Max Schmeling, June 22.

Postpone Ettore, Adamick Fight Because of Rain

Philadelphia, Pa., May 23.—(AP)—The ten round bout scheduled for tonight between Al Ettore, Philadelphia, and Jimmy Adamick, Detroit, in the Philadelphia National league baseball park, was postponed until Wednesday night because of rain.

Hutchison Sr., White Triumph in P. G. A. Play

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Jock Hutchison Sr. of Glen View, a leddie who has played enough golf in his time to win the British open and the American P. G. A., yesterday at Olympia Fields collaborated with Maurie White of La Grange, a newcomer from Ohio, to win the season's first pro-pro event of the Illinois section of the Professional Golfers' association.

The two joined in smacking out a best ball of 35—34—69, one under par for the No. 4 lot. Yesterday's eighteen provided a handy tuneup for two of Chicago's biggest competitive events—the national open qualifying rounds at Olympia Fields next Tuesday and the second Chicago open, over the same acreage, on July 22, 23, and 24.

Nelson-McGovern Shot Back.

A shot back of the winning pair was a twosome composed of Gunnar Nelson of Rockford and Terry McGovern of Deer Path, who matched par with 35—35—70.

One of the bright spots of the day was contributed by Johnny Gibson, Ridgemoor assistant, in an extra round on the No. 1 course. John collected a two on the 440 yards first hole, whipping a 220 yard spoon shot into the hole for the first deuce in its career.

P. G. A. Trials June 20.

The pros were jubilant about leading the country in qualifying places for the national P. G. A. championship at Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa., July 10-16. Illinois was allotted nine against the Metropolitan [N. Y.] eight, in addition to four exemptions.

Jock Anderson of Techny Fields, chairman of the Illinois P. G. A. tournament committee, said that no site has yet been chosen for the Illinois trials, to be held on June 20.

Jock Hutchinson Sr., Glen View, and Morrie White, La Grange	35—34—69
Terry McGovern, Deer Path, and Gunner Nelson, Rockford, Ill.	35—35—70
Herb Johnson, Butterfield, and Jock Hutchison Jr., North Shore	35—37—72
Harry Adams, Medinah, and Bill Brown, Olympia Fields	35—37—72
Sam Bernardi, Old Elm, and Walter Carberry, St. Charles	35—37—72

Jim Foulis, Ruth Lake, and Jimmy Meehan, Riverside	37—36—73
Charles Penna, Medinah, and Ry Chamberlain, Glen Oak	37—36—73
Matt Matteson, Ridge, and Johnny Helms, Butterfield	36—38—74
Denny Sullivan Momence, Ill., and Bruce Herd, South Shore	36—38—74

SIX U. S. WALKER CUP PLAYERS WIN IN BRITISH GOLF

had been boomeranging his shots in practice all last week, but his hook was gone and he may do some giant killing before the tournament is over.

C. Ross [Sandy] Somerville of London, Ont., Canadian and former United States titleholder, also boosted his stock in eliminating Geoffrey Illingworth, 5 and 3. His drives are nearly 30 yards longer than when he won the American championship in 1932.

An unknown played the best golf of the day. He was Jocelyn Walker, who beat Stanley Lunt, 4 and 3. Lunt went out in 34, two under par, through the worst part of the gale and yet was three down. Walker, former Cambridge university captain, reached the turn in 31. After that it was easy.

The galleries today were big and mannerly. Trains rolled in from Glasgow every half hour as West Scotland decided to celebrate the king's birthday ahead of time in order to combine it with the amateur tournament.

Court Upholds State College Football Tax

the basis of a 10 per cent levy the Illinois Athletic association owes nearly $40,000.

Iowa Leads Fight.

Iowa officials refused to reveal their receipts or the amount of the tax owed. Iowa has been one of the leaders in the fight against the tax and took its case into federal court two years ago. It won a verdict, but the decision was reversed and a settlement agreed upon. Later the attorney general of Iowa advised university officials to drop collection and for the last two years no tax has been charged on tickets to Hawkeye athletic contests.

Minnesota also has balked at payment and has appealed to the courts for disposition of $180,000 in taxes collected during the last few years. The case was scheduled to be called next month. Unless grounds are found for the filing of a new case Minnesota now will be forced to pay the $180,000 into the federal treasury.

Wisconsin Has Fund.

Wisconsin collected the tax and paid it into the federal treasury for a number of years, but during the last two seasons it discontinued collection pending the outcome of suits brought by other institutions. In place of the tax, it has collected a 10 per cent service charge, which it has paid into the regular state fund along with other athletic revenues. This service charge is said to have amounted to $20,000 for each season and is available for payment to the internal revenue department.

Wisconsin officials saw possibilities for exemption, pointing out that athletic receipts are part of the regular state fund and are not paid into an athletic association fund as in other institutions.

Michigan officials declined to comment last night. It was known, however, that Michigan has been collecting the tax and has been contemplating filing a suit in federal court to test the constitutionality of the law. The other state institution affected is Ohio State.

Purdue Remits Tax.

Purdue paid $5,500 to the government at the close of last football season. A separate set of books is kept to avoid error in collecting and remitting the tax, which is charged on all tickets of admission to athletic events costing more than 40 cents. Tickets of 40 cents and under are exempt under the federal law.

Indiana's taxes for football and basketball, the only sport in which more than 40 cents is charged, amounted to $10,000 for the 1938 and 1939 seasons. Since the law has been in effect, Indiana's remittances have totaled $40,000.

FOUR WINDY CITY TEAMS TO TRY AGAIN TONIGHT

After six consecutive postponements, the Windy City Softball league will attempt to resume its schedule with two league games in Mills stadium, 4700 West Lake street, tonight. In the first game at 8:30, the Senate Florals, defending champions, will face the Manhattan Beers.

In the second game the South Water Market entry faces Winkler Motors.

Due to the many postponements, the league will play every Monday, Wednesday, Friday, and Sunday evening.

MEASLES CATCHES UP TO COLUMBIA SPRINTING STAR

New York, May 23.—[Special.]—Columbia's hopes of adding the I. C. A. A. A. A. outdoor track title to the indoor titles it has won the last two years were severely impaired today by the discovery that Ben Johnson, Lion captain and intercollegiate sprint champion, has the measles.

Johnson is confined to a hospital. His chances of defending his 100 and 220 yard sprint titles in the coming I. C. 4-A. games at Randalls Island are considered slim.

FRANCE DEFEATS MONACO; SWEEPS DAVIS CUP PLAY

MARSEILLES, France, May 23.—(AP)—France's Davis cup team made a clean sweep of its second round tie with Monaco by capturing the concluding singles matches today. Henri Bolelli beat Alex Noghes, 6-1, 6-1, 6-2, and Pierre Pelizza beat Gaston Medicin, 6-2, 6-1, 3-6, 6-4.

SLAVS BEAT BRITISH.

ZAGREB, Jugo-Slavia, May 23.—(AP)—Jugo-Slavia completed the job of eliminating Great Britain from the Davis cup today when Frenc Punec and his partner, Demeter Mitic, defeated D. W. Butler and L. W. Wilde, 7-5, 6-3, 3-6, 5-7, 6-3, in the doubles.

The match was resumed from where it was halted by rain in the third set yesterday. Jugo-Slavia won the two opening singles matches on Saturday.

ITALY DIVIDES MATCHES.

MILAN, Italy, May 23.—(AP)—Italy and Poland broke even in the second day's Davis cup play today. Ignacy Tloczinsky of Poland won by default from Giorgio de Stefani, after the Italian star strained a leg muscle with the score 6-8, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2. In the doubles Italians Valentino Taroni and Ferruccio Quintavalle defeated Czelaw Spychla and Tloczinsky, 11-9, 2-6, 6-4, 4-6, 7-5.

PIRATES POUND GUMBERT; BEAT GIANTS, 4 TO 3

Ott Drives in Two Runs with Eighth Homer.

New York, May 23.—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates finally beat the pace setting New York Giants today, but it took excellent relief pitching by Mase Brown and Russ Bauers to do it.

After losing three decisions to the league champions, the Pirates came through with a 4 to 3 victory. The defeat reduced the Giants' margin to two and a half games over the Chicago Cubs.

The Pirates did all their scoring in the first inning off Harry Gumbert, and the Giants made all their runs in the fourth off Blanton, with Mel Ott delivering his eighth homer of the season with Jimmy Ripple on base.

Brown Struck by Ball.

The Giants blasted Blanton from the mound in their rally, but Mace Brown checked the attack and had the situation well in hand until forced to retire in the sixth when Mickey Haslin's line single knocked him to the ground. Brown was struck near the solar plexus. However, he walked to the clubhouse supported by teammates.

Bauers held the Giants at bay the remainder of the game, but Brown received credit for the victory, his sixth against two losses.

Gumbert Ties Assist Record.

Sox Loaf and Add Another Double-header

BY EDWARD BURNS.

While the rain is seeing to it that those oaks from little acorns grow, we hope we won't seem profane if we remark that the same rain is sprouting entire too many double headers on the White Sox calendar. Eleven were stacked up ahead of the White Sox yesterday after the scheduled second game of the Sox-Washington Senators series was washed away, along with all other American league games.

Twenty-two games played and eleven postponed. That's the record of the White Sox. Going back to May 8, there's been one contest salvaged from the three game series in New York, one from the two game series scheduled for Boston, one out of three in Cleveland, one out of three against Boston here, one out of two against the Yankees here and, if it rains today, one out of three against the Senators.

Wanted, One Shovel.

If writing about White Sox games is regular employment, give us back our WPA shovel and a nice place where we can lean on it every day.

The weather man hints it will be fair today, and if the Sox and Senators play it will be the first time the Sox have played two games in a series since they came from in front to lose two extra inning games in Washington on May 6 and 7.

If there should be a game this afternoon Monty Stratton will make his first start of the season for the Sox. Emil Leonard will pitch for Washington.

Yesterday was one of the rare days when all the teams in the league got a layoff along with the Sox. Still, with only twenty-two games played, the Chicagoans have the biggest array of double headers in the league, and by a big margin. Washington had played thirty-three games out of thirty-four scheduled encounters prior to yesterday. The league leading Cleveland Indians have played thirty games.

Harridge Is Kept Busy.

President Will Harridge of the American league has worn out his set of calendars doping out the double header slate. He said yesterday that he expects to announce the double bills within two or three days. The only double header fixed for the Sox so far is scheduled for Detroit when play is resumed after the All-Star game. The Tigers and Sox will play two on July 8, the result of a game rained out in the fourth inning on the Sox's visit there last month.

The eleven future Sox doubleheaders do not include what amounts to an all day double-header in Cleveland next Monday. The Sox will play a morning game with the Indians, then stick around during the lunch hour and battle the present league leaders again in the afternoon.

Cubs End Bees' Seven Game Streak, 4 to 1

West's fly. Then three hits were exploded against Lee in the fourth and the Bees slipped over a run. Garms singled with one out. Warstler singled with two out. Fette also singled and Garms scored. Fletcher flied to Reynolds for the third out.

The two run Cub incident in the fifth began when Jurges led off with a pass. He was pushed to second on Lee's bunt. Hack grounded to Garms, who couldn't make up his mind whether to throw to first or to try for Jurges. Finally he heaved the ball into the grandstand, permitting Jurges to score and Hack to go to second. Hack stole third and had to stay there while Herman was being thrown out by Warstler. Galan singled to center, Hack scoring. A pass to Demaree gave Hartnett a swell spot in which to provide his third hit of the battle but he fouled to Mueller.

Fans Demand Action.

After the fourth the Bees were so docile under the Lee spell the 5,132 spectators began to complain. Mueller singled to center with two gone in the sixth. Cuccinello walked with two out in the eighth. These were the only Bees to see first base in the last five innings. The Cubs were very little stronger in their last four innings. Jurges scratched a hit toward third in the sixth. In the seventh Galan singled to left. Both these taps came with two out.

Carleton Will Face Dodgers for Cubs Today

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., May 23.—Tex Carleton will pitch tomorrow when the Cubs open a three game series with the Daffy Dodgers in Ebbetts field, Brooklyn.

Bulletin No. 6 on Diz Dean's arm bursitis: Diz pitched to Coach Roy Johnson for ten minutes today, and after it was over, Manager Grimm remarked, "Diz looked pretty good." But Dean still must wait until he returns to Chicago before being granted a mound assignment.

Al Lopez, the Bees' first string catcher, walked out of the game in the opening inning, carrying a broken right thumb. It was injured by a foul off Herman's bat. He'll be absent for about a month.

Some of the Cubs are becoming alarmed over Billy Herman's failure to maintain his old batting pace. With the season five weeks on its way Herman still is about thirty-five points below his 1937 standard. This and Demaree's unexpected batting weakness have hurt the Cub attack considerably.

Bill Lee had to go to the dugout for inspection in the sixth inning. A line drive off Cuccinello's bat hit him in the stomach but he recovered the ball and made the throw to first. Then, after being assured no damage had been done, he reappeared and went through to the finish.

What if I do use
"Horse and Buggy Methods" in Brewing
. . . the Public likes our BEER made the slow, old-time way
. . . and around here they buy more MEISTER BRÄU than any other Bottled Beer . . .
by RICHARD SEIBOLD, Meister Bräu Brewmaster
ADDING SUGARS or SYRUPS WOULD CUT OUR COSTS
But we refuse to take this "short-cut"
We brew the old-time way . . . and bottle with Natural Draft Beer Carbonation created in the Beer itself
I know lots of younger men think I'm pretty much of a back number because I make Meister Bräu the way we did in 1891. Well, I still insist on the old, slow method. Even if it does cost more. And here's why.
Maybe you remember the old-time brew. And wonder why good beer is so hard to get nowadays. I think the short-cuts of near-beer days had a lot to do with it.
Another "new" way is to use sugars or syrups in the beer. This saves time and work. Sure, some people may like a beer made this way. But we insist on making an all-grain brew.
Our old methods keep the life in the beer—keep its natural foam and sparkle. Like in Draft Beer. Hence Meister Bräu has the true draft beer flavor.
I know you'll find a real difference in Meister Bräu Beer . . . made the old, slow way of "Horse and Buggy Days." It's now obtainable in cans or bottles. But to be sure of getting beer made this way, ask for Meister Bräu. You'll be thankful for a Bottled or Canned Beer made like Draft Beer.

ANGOTT DEFEATS COVELLI; FIGHT GOES 10 ROUNDS

Patterson Stops Sagilio in Second Round.

Sammy Angott, lightweight champion of Kentucky, won a decision over Fraknie [Kid] Covelli in a ten round battle in Marigold Gardens last night. It was Angott's forty-third triumph in forty-seven appearances.

Referee Johnny Behr and Judges Harry Hall and Dr. E. Allen Frankeleach scored for Angott.

Angott took the play away from his 23 year old foe from Brooklyn in the first two rounds, but Covelli evened the score in the third and fourth by rushing and scoring with a series of blows.

Angott Jars Covelli.

Angott regained the lead in the sixth round, rocking Covelli with two blows to the chin. In the eighth Angott's superior strength and two fisted offensive started to bring results and Covelli slowed down. A head cut also bothered Frankie. Covelli rallied in the last round.

Shortly after the second round opened Patterson, who weighed 148 pounds, dropped his 144 pound opponent for a nine count with a right to the jaw. Another right to the chin and Sagilio hit the canvas again. Once more he struggled to his feet at nine. He appeared helpless, so Referee Walter Brightmore stopped it.

Meier Stops Edwards.

Fritz Meier, Milwaukee light heavyweight, scored a two round technical knockout over Sherman Edwards in the opener. Edwards was substituted for Jack Pumphrey.

Jimmy Santora, deaf mute featherweight, managed by Jerry Hayes, former middleweight boxer, and Eddie Lander, Franklin Park, yesterday were paired in a ten round preliminary to the ten round headliner involving Milt Aron, Chicago welterweight challenger, and Bobby Pacho, New York, in Marigold arena next Tuesday.

The pairings for tomorrow's wrestling show in Rainbo Fronton were completed last night. In addition to the windup bout between Charles [Midget] Fischer and Walter Palmer, four preliminary encounters will be held. Rudy Kay clashes with Jack Conley, Roy Rickenbacher with Jerry Meeker, Rudy Strongberg with Jack Zeravich, and Bull Curley with Phil Gruber.

Lads who make a livelihood betting on various sporting events are parlaying Henry Armstrong to lift the welterweight championship from Barney Ross Thursday and Seabiscuit to outrun War Admiral in their match race on Monday. . . . Chairman Joe Triner, head of the Illinois boxing commission, will leave for New York today to attend the Ross-Armstrong bout. . . . Davey Day also heads for the east today. He faces Norment Quarles in an eight round supporting contest on the Armstrong-Ross program. . . . Jerry Authorius, Northwest gymnasium featherweight, will appear in a featured fight on the amateur card tonight in Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street. . . . Johnny Barbara and Chester Rudy have been matched to meet in an eight round semi-final to the ten round main event between Buddy Knox and Max Marek in Sparta stadium June 3.

GEORGE SANFORD, NOTED FOOTBALL COACH, IS DEAD

New York, May 23.—[Special.]—George Foster Sanford, a Yale football star of the '90s who became one of the leading American coaches, died today of a heart attack. He was 67 years old. Sanford played center for four years and was a teammate of Frank Hinkey and Pudge Heffelfinger.

After graduation in 1896 Sanford returned in the fall to assist in football coaching at Yale. Later he became head coach at Columbia, where he produced some of the greatest elevens in the history of the university, one of them scoring a victory over Yale. In 1913 he went to Rutgers, where he was head coach for more than ten years. In 1923 he sought retirement, but was persuaded to linger for two more years as active coach and for a third as an adviser.

STYLE CORNER, slow to settle into stride, gradually worked his way up and closed stoutly.

Lawrin Heads 27 Entries for Illinois Derby

Frank Hoffman, the artist whose paintings of horses have attracted attention throughout America and Europe, was an Aurora visitor during the afternoon.

He peered out at the horses and found beauty in the 2 year olds which raced in the fourth race.

"Their bodies are nice and round; their leg action perfect," he said. "They are a striking contrast to the older horses that have been racing a mile or more in this mud for more than two weeks.

"There are no round bellies among the older muddy track route runners," he continued.

The particular 2 year old race Hoffman had in mind was the best event on the program. It provided the biggest thrill. James, a son of St. James-Flapper Fanny, drove up from behind to win from Teperwine, the early pacemaker. He got to the front in the final strides and paid 15 to 1.

CARDINALS ASK WAIVERS IN DRIVE TO REDUCE SQUAD

St. Louis, Mo., May 23.—(AP)—Waivers were asked today on "twelve or thirteen" St. Louis Cardinal baseball players, including Sammy Baugh, in what President Sam Breadon termed "an emergency effort" to bring the club within the twenty-three player limit.

Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis has given the Cards until Saturday to reach the season limit, granting an extension because of the ruling that returned Pitchers Si Johnson and Roy Henshaw from Rochester, the Cards' International league farm.

Landis ruled the two deserved a longer trial in the majors, a point that Vice President Branch Rickey of the Cards protested vigorously.

Breadon indirectly hit that ruling in admitting the waivers had been asked, and commenting:

"We want to see who we can release."

He refused to disclose the names of the players, other than Baugh, on whom waivers were asked.

SMALL BUSINESS MAN PUSHES WAR ON POLITICIANS

Red Headed Printer Raps U. S. Meddling.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

The red headed printer from Akron, O., who first got the idea of organizing the butcher, the baker, and the candlestick maker into an association which would make known to politicians the economic ideas of the "small business men" yesterday came to Chicago to carry on the promotional campaign of the National Small Business Men's Association, Inc. Last night he flew to Springfield, where today he will make his first speech in Illinois, an address before the annual meeting of the Illinois Bankers association.

De Witt M. Emery.

The red headed printer is De Witt M. Emery, president of the Monroe Letterhead corporation, 163 North Union street, Akron, a small specialty printing concern which normally employs about fifteen workers.

Former Steel Timekeeper.

Emery grew up in Youngstown, O., where, after graduation from high school, he got a job as timekeeper for a steel company. Now, at 40, he is a typical "small business man" worried about the business outlook, but possessed of a big desire to do something about it. He is six feet six and weighs 215 pounds.

Prior to Nov. 13, 1937, Emery was just another small business man who didn't like the kind of economics that was being dished out in Washington or the spirit of docile acquiescence in which most of the big industrial leaders were taking what the politicians were cramming down their throats. But on Nov. 13 he set in motion a series of events the consequences of which have thrust him into national prominence and which have surprised him as much as any one else.

Letter Starts It All.

The whole thing began with a circular letter that he addressed to 199 other small business men chosen at random. The letter began with: "The sherif is about to get my business. How are you doing?" It went on to explain how the Monroe Letterhead corporation's attempt to recover from the depression had been stymied by "the systematic and sustained campaign of hindrance and persecution of business from the White House." It asked the recipients whether they didn't think it was about time to have "some backbone" and get together in an association of protesting small business men.

Eighty per cent of those who received the letters immediately replied that they would join such an organization. Thus was born the National Small Business Men's Association, Inc. New members were assessed a five dollar initiation fee Such fees, Emery says, have been the association's sole source of money to date. Now, however, he is working on an idea for a supplementary source. More on that subject later.

New Applications Pouring In.

Today the association has local membership groups in thirty-two states, Emery says, and new applications are pouring in daily. An Illinois headquarters has been set up at the Congress hotel under the direction of C. A. Gable, state manager.

After his speech today in Springfield Emery will go to Ohio for several meetings and early in June he is scheduled to make a swing through the far west, particularly California, where Gov. Frank Merriam has designated June 5-11 as "Small Business Men's Week." The California delegation which attended Secretary of Commerce Roper's "small business men's conference" in Washington last February has just affiliated with Emery's organization.

Emery yesterday said that the Roper conference, which got out of hand when the delegates ripped into administration policies, was originally planned as an administration backfire against the growing activities of the National Small Business Men's Association, Inc. It was a hurried attempt, he said, to gather in Washington a group of small business men sympathetic to the administration and failed because Secretary Roper didn't take enough care in selecting the delegates.

Ten Point Platform.

Here is the ten point platform of the National Small Business Men's Association, Inc., adopted Dec. 8, 1937—two months before the hastily called Roper conference in Washington:

1. Government meddling and experimenting in business to be stopped.
2. Equitable and just tax laws for revenue producing only. Repeal at this session of congress of undistributed profits tax and capital gains tax.
3. Congress to cut loose from the President's apron strings, and be what the constitution says it is—an independent legislative body.
4. Sufficient reduction in federal expenditures to balance the budget.
5. Encroachment on free speech, press, and radio to be stopped.
6. Unhampered and unpacked courts.
7. Sound money, primarily repeal of legislation authorizing the Presi-

Europe's War Fright Drives Capital to U. S.

New York, May 23.—[Special.]—Europe's latest war scare caused a frightened flight of capital from London and other European centers into the dollar in dealings in the foreign exchange market today.

The pound sterling was forced down to its cheapest price since March 18, at $4.94¾, and closed at $4.95¼. The franc fell to a new low at 2.77⅛ cents. In terms of sterling the French currency barely was kept above the new support point recently announced by Premier Daladier, but in terms of United States funds it dropped well below what had been considered the equivalent support point here.

More Gold Coming to U. S.

In keeping with this increased weakness of the foreign exchange gold began to move here from England for the first time since President Roosevelt's announcement of the spending-lending program last month.

Reports to the New York Federal Reserve bank indicated that $1,300,000 of gold had been engaged in London recently for shipment here. The reserve bank also was informed that another shipment of $5,800,000 gold had been dispatched from Japan to San Francisco. These engagements made a total of $35,500,000 gold sent here from England since March 15 and a total of $55,700,000 sent to this country from Japan since Feb. 24.

A shipment of $883,000 gold from Belgium was received here today and $450,000 of the metal previously held under earmark for foreign account was released.

Additional weakness was imparted to the British exchange by the news that Senator Bailey [D., N. C.] had introduced a joint resolution calling for the cessation of treasury purchases of foreign silver.

Effect of Silver Purchases.

Although silver purchases have not been large lately foreign exchange experts pointed out that the effect of United States treasury buying of silver in London is to support the pound sterling because the treasury must first purchase sterling with which to buy the silver.

Renewed demand for gold for hoarding was reported abroad, but in consequence of the fall of the pound London's gold price reached the cheapest level in terms of dollar equivalent in about a week at $34.76 an ounce. This was about a cent above the estimated gold shipping point, but apparently was low enough for some banks to find shipments possible.

Mexico's internal difficulties caused the peso to dip to 23.10 cents, nominal.

MEDIATORS HEAR RAIL UNION ISSUE IN CHICAGO CASE

Washington, D. C., May 23.—(AP)—The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Order of Railway Conductors clashed today before the national mediation board over the right to represent employés in the Chicago Rail terminal.

Their disagreement hinged on representation of foremen, helpers, retarders, and switchers in the yards. The conductors' order claimed the workers should vote for representation as conductors [in which class foremen fall], brakemen or switchmen.

The brotherhood contended all workers in the yards should choose representatives as a single unit—yardmen.

George Hoover, representing the conductors, held that an agreement entered after a strike in 1920 provided the yards should be made parts of divisions of the Chicago and North Western railway. Therefore, he contended the classification of "yardmen" would be improper.

I. C. OPERATING NET $3,922,759 IN FOUR MONTHS

President L. A. Downs of the Illinois Central railroad yesterday reported net operating income of $3,922,759 for the system in the first four months of 1938, compared with $4,029,860 in the corresponding 1937 period. Gross revenues were $33,525,158 against $38,130,444 in the 1937 period. April gross revenues were $7,997,004 against $9,383,098 in April, 1937, and April net operating income was $731,759 compared with $961,609 in the same month a year ago, Downs said.

The Reading company's net railway operating income for April was $497,192, a decline of $1,101,085, compared with April, 1937. For the first four months of the year the net railway operating income was $2,078,443, a decrease of $3,397,341 compared with the same 1937 period.

James B. McCahey, president of the board of education, announced yesterday that the following tax anticipation warants will be called for payment May 26, with interest to stop May 27: Warants No. E-78 to E-158 of the 1937 educational fund, dated Feb. 26, 1937, $810,000 principal. Warants No. B-574 to B-756 of the 1937 building fund, dated March 4, 1937; $183,000 principal. Warants No. P-25 to P-32 of the 1937 playground fund, dated March 4, 1937; $8,000 principal.

$20,000,000 Silver Issue to Be Sought for Cuba

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

HAVANA, Cuba, May 23.—[Special.]—President Federico Laredo Bru will send a message to congress shortly asking authorization for a new silver issue of $20,000,000, Juan J. Remos, secretary of state, announced today. He said increased fractional coinage is needed to facilitate operations in industry and commerce. Cuba has about $68,000,000 in silver and certificates in circulation, $50,000,000 of which has been issued since 1933.

BRAZILIAN EXCHANGE REGULATIONS EASED FOR U. S. EXPORTERS

Washington, D. C., May 23.—(AP)—Brazil made a gesture of friendship toward the United States today by removing restrictions of foreign exchange used to pay for goods shipped to Brazil from this country.

Instead of requiring American exporters to accept thirty day exchange contracts in payment for their merchandise, the bank of Brazil declared that, as of today, it would grant "spot" exchange.

It is understood here that the United States is given preference in foreign exchange and that thirty day and even sixty day restrictions continue for other countries.

Brazil's action means that United States exports, which aggregate around $1,300,000 a week, will be paid for on delivery and American merchants will not have to wait thirty days to get their money.

BROKERAGE FIRM IS RESTRAINED ON SEC COMPLAINT

Federal Judges James H. Wilkerson yesterday issued a consent decree which permanently restrains the Bradley, Ellner Company, Inc., brokerage house with offices at 120 South La Salle street, from violating certain provisions of the securities and exchange act as a result of a complaint filed by W. McNeil Kennedy, in charge of the Chicago office of the SEC.

Kennedy's complaint alleged that the firm and its officers, David P. Bradley, president, and Louis Ellner, vice president and treasurer, were engaged in bucket shop activities.

No criminal action was taken in the case, it was said, because restitution was made. The amount involved was said to be between $12,000 and $15,000.

ASKS TEMPORARY CUT IN PIPELINE RATES ON GAS

The Illinois commerce commission was asked yesterday by its attorney, Harry R. Booth, to enter a temporary order reducing wholesale rates at which the Chicago District Pipeline company sells natural gas to the Peoples Gas Light & Coke company and other utilities.

The commission several months ago cited the pipeline company to show cause why its rates should not be cut, but Booth contended there already is sufficient evidence to show that rates are too high and that a temporary cut should be ordered pending completion of the rate case. The case is part of the commission's fight to force the Peoples company to abandon a recent increase in household gas rates in Chicago.

CUT IN STEWART WARNER SALARY SCALE ORDERED

The Stewart-Warner corporation yesterday announced that in addition to the 10 per cent reduction of officers' salaries which became effective May 1 [the beginning of the corporate fiscal year], a general reduction of all employés' salaries above $1,000 a year had been ordered.

The wage cut, which applies to all employés on a weekly or monthly basis, is on a sliding scale, ranging up to 10 per cent on salaries of $5,000 or more.

Treasury Discount Bills Are Sold at Record Price

Washington, D. C., May 23.—(AP)—Secretary Morgenthau announced a record price was paid by banks and other bidders today for $50,000,000 worth of 91 day treasury bills. The average accepted bid was $99.994 for each $100 face value bill. This was equivalent to borrowing money at 0.025 per cent. The previous records, set last week, was $99.993, equal to 0.027 per cent.

New York Banking Board Limits Rate on Deposits

New York, May 23.—(AP)—The state banking board today announced a new regulation, effective July 1, fixing the maximum rate of interest paid by commercial banks and trust companies on time and thrift deposits under $5,000 at 2 per cent a year, and over $5,000 at 1½ per cent. The present legal maximum rate is 2 per cent per annum regardless of size of deposits.

Furnace Firm Pays Dividend of Fifty Cents

The Holland Furnace company yesterday ordered continuation of dividend payments on the basis prevailing in preceding quarters, but four corporations reduced dividend payments and three others either omitted payments or deferred dividend action.

A payment of 50 cents a share will be made on the common stock of Holland Furnace on July 8. The company paid $1.50 a share during 1937, including $1 in August. Directors also declared the quarterly preferred dividend.

The Maryland Fund, Inc., an investment company, ordered payment of a 3 per cent stock dividend June 15, the same as on last June and Dec. 15, but cut its quarterly cash payment to 1½ cents a share.

Reduces Dividend Payment.

A dividend of 10 cents a share will be paid July 1 by the Waldorf System, which distributed 20 cents April 1 and in the preceding two quarters. It paid a total of $1 a share in 1937.

Another reduced dividend is that of 10 cents to be paid by Ex-Cell-O corporation on July 1. It paid 20 cents April 1.

The San Carlos Milling company will pay 15 cents July 1, compared with 20 cents May 14.

Directors of the Goebel Brewing company deferred dividend action until a later meeting. Foote-Burt and the St. Louis, Rocky Mountain and Pacific companies took no action on common dividends due at this time.

Halting of Foreign Silver Buying Asked in Senate

Washington, D. C., May 23.—[Special.]—Senator Bailey of North Carolina today introduced in the senate a joint resolution which proposes to terminate purchases of foreign silver by the federal treasury June 30. Under the resolution government silver purchases would be limited to newly mined domestic silver.

THREE SENATORS WARN OF FIGHT ON MEASURE SOUGHT BY RAILROADS

Washington, D. C., May 23.—(AP)—Two measures desired by railroad management encountered stiff opposition on the senate floor late today.

Senators Wheeler [D., Mont.], Norris [Ind., Neb.], and Copeland [D., N. Y.] served notice they would rather talk "all summer" than permit passage of the bill revising the "long and short haul" provision of the interstate commerce law. The provision forbids railroads to charge a lower rate for a long haul than for a short one over the same route and in the same direction.

In a letter read to the senate, Chairman Jesse Jones of the Reconstruction Finance corporation supported action of the senate banking and currency committee holding up a bill liberalizing government loans to railroads. Jones suggested that the question of wage decreases proposed by the railroads be considered by the senate group before it approved the loan bill.

SENATE LEADERS ACT TO EASE LIMITS ON PWA UTILITY LOANS

Washington, D C., May 23.—(AP)—Senate leaders undertook today to alter a drastic restriction on PWA financing of public utilities, which was placed in the administration's $3,247,000,000 lending-spending bill by the senate appropriations committee. Under the restriction the public works administration is forbidden to make loans for public systems which would compete with private plants whose rates are regulated.

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, said he will offer a compromise which would permit PWA loans if the interested private utility rejected a "fair" offer from a municipality for its plant.

On the senate floor Senator Vandenberg [R., Mich.] denounced the present system of administration relief and characterized Harry Hopkins, the WPA administrator, as "a big burocrat who has intoxicated himself with too much power." Vandenberg sought support for an amendment to set up a relief system. Under it the federal government would make relief grants to the states and nonpartisan boards in the states would control distribution of funds.

MEETING URGES NAVAL YARD IN CALUMET AREA

A movement to persuade the federal government to build a navy ship yard in the Calumet region was advanced last night at a massmeeting in the Calumet park fieldhouse, 98th street and Lake Michigan.

More than 500 business, church, and political leaders from the south side, Whiting, Hammond, and East Chicago attended. The meeting was sponsored by Clarence J. Bohling, president of the East Side Chamber of Commerce. Ald. William A. Rowan [10th] and Arthur G. Lindell [9th] were among the speakers.

Speakers said the Calumet area has every facility and means for building naval ships, and asserted that a ship yard would bring more employment to the district.

GARMENT MAKERS OPEN MEETING IN CHICAGO TODAY

More than 500 members of the International Association of Garment Manufacturers will open their thirtieth annual convention today in the Stevens hotel. The convention, and an exposition to be held concurrently, will continue through Friday.

Speakers at the convention will include Dr. Claudius T. Murchison, president of the Cotton Textile institute; Charles West, former undersecretary of the interior; Robert E. Freer of the federal trade commission, and Howard M. McClure of the United States Census of Manufacturers.

THIRD QUARTER PRICES QUOTED BY BETHLEHEM

New York, May 23.—[Special.]—The Bethlehem Steel corporation announced at noon today its new price list for rolled steel products and reaffirmed present prices for other steel products for the third quarter, with the exception of galvanized sheets and bolts and nuts, on which quotations will be announced later.

This action follows a virtually similar announcement made by the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, largest steel producer in the world, last Wednesday afternoon, and will be duplicated by other principal independents in the next day or so.

Texas Commission Cuts Oil Production in June

UNITED AIR LINES TRAFIC UP, BUT LOSS INCREASES

Middle West, Other Firms Earn More.

Despite a substantial increase in business handled, higher operating expenses and taxes caused United Air Lines Transport corporation to show a larger loss in the first quarter of this year than in the first quarter of last year, the company announced yesterday. On the other hand, several other companies, including the Middle West corporation and the Margay Oil corporation, had increased earnings.

United Air Lines' first quarter loss was $667,670, against a net loss of $402,735 in the first quarter of last year. Operating revenues totaled $1,861,586, compared with $1,746,303 in the corresponding period of last year, a 6.6 per cent gain.

Operating expenses and taxes of the company totaled $2,551,218, against $2,174,821 in the first quarter of 1937, an increase of 9.2 per cent.

More Passengers Carried.

W. A. Patterson, president of the company, said the increased operating costs included higher prices for materials and supplies and additional expenditures for safety measures. Patterson said the company flew 31 per cent more revenue passengers in the first quarter of this year than in the first quarter of last year. During the period United flew 3,145,526 revenue plane miles. Patterson said the company increased efficiency of operations by carrying a larger volume of mail and passenger business, with a decrease in airplane miles operated.

Consolidated net income of the Middle West corporation for the first quarter of this year, before federal surtax was $350,852, against $203,929 in the first quarter of last year, Purcell L. Smith, president, reported yesterday. The consolidated income does not include the revenues and expenses of the Central Illinois Public Service company and the Lake Superior District Power company.

Operating Revenues 14 Million.

Operating revenues for the first three months totaled $14,774,533, against $14,149,528 for the like 1937 period. This was an increase of $625,004, or 4.4 per cent.

Net income of the Middle West corporation, the parent company alone, was $201,246 for the first quarter before federal surtax, against $65,135 in the first quarter of last year. Smith said the increase in income was largely due to the receipt in the current period of quarterly dividends of $93,476 on the prior lien preferred stock of the Central and Southwest Utilities company, whereas last year quarterly dividends were received in periods subsequent to May 31.

Margay Oil's first quarter net profit totaling $102,603, compared with $93,126, represented a gain of 10 per cent over last year. Margay's net profits for 1937 totaled $489,043, compared with $177,588 in 1936. The 1937 profit was the largest since 1927.

Chief Shows the Way

George W. Mason, president of the Nash-Kelvinator corporation, pushing a door bell at a Lincoln, Neb., home in a drive for business.

Setting an example to their sales force, top executives of the Nash-Kelvinator corporation recently did some door-to-door bell ringing at Lincoln, Neb., homes. Their efforts were made in connection with the national salesmen's crusade conceived by the corporation as a means of fighting the depression. The drive was started in Lincoln, as a typical American city.

George W. Mason, president of Nash-Kelvinator, was among the executives who tried the door bell route to business. Refusing a list of ten prospects offered by a helpful Nash-Kelvinator distributor's man, Mason announced that he would do some cold canvassing.

In fourteen calls Mason had one door slammed in his face, found three definite sales prospects, and obtained one definite promise to buy before the week ended, the Nash-Kelvinator corporation said.

OPEN NEW FIGHT ON AUTO FIRMS' SALES FINANCING

South Bend, Ind., May 23.—(AP)—The government opened here today a second fight to indict the country's three largest automobile manufacturers under the anti-trust law.

Government attorneys began presentation of evidence before a federal grand jury, from which they hope to obtain indictments against the Ford Motor company, General Motors corporation, and Chrysler corporation and their affiliated finance companies.

A similar grand jury investigation ended at Milwaukee last Dec. 17 when Federal Judge F. A. Geiger dismissed the jury on grounds the department of justice had shown "impropriety" in discussing a consent decree with the automobile companies' counsel while the jury was in session.

A score of witnesses was on hand as today's investigation opened. District Attorney James M. Fleming said the government is prepared to call 100 or more witnesses in all. Identity of the witnesses was guarded.

SLOW RECESSION IS RESUMED BY STEEL INDUSTRY

Operations in the steel industry resumed their slow decline this week after a minor interruption last week. Mill schedules call for production at 29 per cent of ingot capacity, according to estimates made by the American Iron and Steel institute yesterday.

Except for last week, when activity edged up to 30.7 per cent of capacity, from 30.4 per cent in the preceding week, steel production has been moving slightly downward steadily since early April. The highest rate of production, 35.7 per cent of capacity, was reached at the end of March.

RAILWAYS SHOW SLIGHT GAIN IN FREIGHT TRAFIC

ILLINOIS BANKER REPORT ASSAILS U. S. SPENDING

Apologist Heard as Issue Nears Vote.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 23.—After hearing an exposition of the federal administration's economic theory by Dr. Lauchlin Currie of the Federal Reserve board, the Illinois Bankers' association in convention here today prepared to adopt the report of its policy committee in which the administration's spending program was blamed for impairing confidence in the government's credit and stalling business recovery.

The policy committee's report clashed strikingly with the interpretation of causes of the present depression offered by Dr. Currie, who is one of the chief apologists for the administration's spending program.

Recalling earlier recommendations of the association for a balanced federal budget the policy committee said its warnings and those of other groups have gone unheeded, with unfortunate results for the country.

"Workers and Credit Idle."

"The country is again plunged into a serious depression," the report said. "Production has fallen off to an alarming extent. Workers, material, and credit are idle. Consumption has not been sufficient to reduce inventories materially and government is again turning to emergency treatments in increasing measure to remedy the situation."

The road that is being taken is the one that led to present economic difficulties, it was asserted. In the last two years, the committee said, the normal cost of government has increased so greatly that fears are entertained over the ultimate effect of the spending on government credit.

"Astute business men," it said, "have become fearful of the portents for the future and hesitate to make plans for the development of their properties or the employment of idle funds."

Prepare To Take Vote.

The report was presented to members and will be voted on at tomorrow's convention session. It already has been adopted by the council of administration made up of officers of the association and officials of regional groups within the organization. Adoption of the policy declarations is regarded a certainty.

Dr. Currie told the bankers that it was the tapering off of government pump priming expenditures, among other causes, and not lack of confidence that started the economic slump last year.

Currie is an influential adviser of Reserve Board Chairman Marriner S. Eccles, whose advice President Roosevelt followed in launching his new pump priming and credit inflation program. Currie holds the position of assistant director of research and statistics of the reserve board.

Stressing the importance of government spending, Currie asserted that pump priming expenditures in the seven months last year, when business started to slump, amounted to only 400 million dollars, or an average of about 60 millions a month. In the same period of 1936 such expenditures averaged 335 millions monthly, he said.

Cites Social Security Tax.

A further deflationary influence on business in 1937, Dr. Currie said, was the collection of an additional billion dollars in social security tax.

Floyd E. Thompson, former chief justice of the Illinois Supreme court, is heading the drive for the enactment of the proposed amendment to the state constitution for the elimination of the double liability of stock in state banks. Adequate capitalization for banks, he said today, provides greater protection for depositors than the present legal liability of stockholders. The present constitutional provision, he asserted, is preventing the raising of new capital for state banks.

F. A. Gerding, president of the First National Bank of Ottawa, has been picked to head the bankers' association for the coming year.

More than 450 bankers registered at the convention today. Sessions will continue tomorrow, when United States Senator Edward R. Burke [D., Neb.] will address the bankers.

An Example of How Financial Advertising Pays

OF 5,600 inquiries received by a well-known New York securities commission firm from its advertising in nine publications last year, by far the largest number received from newspaper readers was from readers of The New York Times. Annual expenditures of this firm for advertising over the last 22 years averaged $17,000. An accountant's report shows $2,017,000 in commissions from new accounts during that period.

The Times is first in results for financial advertisers.

Stocks, Bonds

New York Stocks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 23.—Highly irregular prices prevailed at the close of trading in the stock market today after the list moved narrowly in the slowest session in four years. Volume reached approximately 328,000 shares, with only 567 issues traded. Of these 159 closed higher, 234 lower, and 174 unchanged.

Observers attributed the failure of traders and operators to make fresh commitments to foreign and domestic developments, especially the dangerous reich-Czech situation due, calling up of the wages and hours bill in the house of representatives, and start of senate debate on the administration's "recovery" bill.

A fresh slump in steel activity this week served to accentuate the unhealthy business situation, it was asserted, and further militated against optimism among traders. A fair demand for steel shares developed, however, and leaders showed slight advances. United States Steel common and Bethlehem gained fractions.

Chrysler was relatively buoyant in the motors, rising 1⅛ points, and General Motors, among others, added a fraction.

Oil shares found some friends and the group ruled fairly firm. Texas corporation was up 1⅛ points.

Carrier shares moved within narrow limits for most of the day and at the close such leaders as Santa Fe, New York Central, Southern Pacific, Chesapeake and Ohio, Great Northern, and Northern Pacific were unchanged to small fractions higher.

Public utility issues bounded about uncertainly and closed on a modestly firm note.

New York Bonds.

New York, May 23.—(AP)—Selling of secondary rails was the main development in the bond market today. The delicate situation in Europe unsettled the foreign dollar list mildly and domestic industrials gave ground slightly. United States treasury obligations showed declines ranging from 1-32 to 8-32 of a point. The day's volume was $4,345,400, par value, compared with Friday's $4,334,125.

Among the chief losers in the rail division were Nickel Plate 6s, down 6 at 45, the 5½s, down 3 at 37; and Northern Pacific 5s, down 5 at 55. Illinois Central 4¾s lost 1¼ at 29¾, and Boston and Maine 4¾s lost 1 at 26. Alleghany 5s rose 1¼ to 53¼.

In the foreign group Czechoslovak 8s of '51 and '52 each lost about 1½ at 71¼.

Chicago Stocks.

Stocks moved within narrow ranges in quiet trading yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Of the 66 issues traded, 28 declined, 17 advanced, and 21 held unchanged. Sales totaled 12,000 shares, compared with 8,000 Saturday.

General Household Utilities, up ½ to 1¼, was the most active issue.

Bank Stocks.

Chicago bank stocks were quiet and little changed in price yesterday. City National Bank and Trust company shares were quoted $1 lower at $126 bid, $129 asked.

MEATS ADVANCE COST OF LIVING OF CITY FAMILY

Some Vegetables Cheaper than Fortnight Ago.

The cost of feeding the Chicago family which eats considerable quantities of meat increased during the last two weeks, a survey of leading wholesale markets of the city disclosed yesterday. Families which depend on fresh vegetables could still find bargains, however.

Retail prices, as usual, varied widely throughout the city, but wholesale prices of low grades of beef loins and both low and high grades of pork loins were 3½ cents a pound higher yesterday than two weeks ago.

Despite an advance in some items due to seasonal factors most bargains were to be found in the fresh vegetable list. Radishes, spinaches, tomatoes, peas, and cabbage were a little cheaper yesterday.

Wholesale Prices Compared.

HOG PRICES HIGHER

Live costs of hogs at the stockyards continued to rise yesterday despite the growing resistance of consumers to higher pork prices. The top and average prices at $8.80 and $8.60, respectively, were up 5 cents over last week's close and highest since April 18.

Demand in the cattle alleys yesterday was mostly for the better grades of beef animals, and these held steady. The market for other stock was off 10 to 15 cents and slow at the downturn. Calves fell 25 cents.

Slaughter lambs dipped 25 cents yesterday, with some sales off more.

FARMERS' APRIL CASH MARKETING INCOME LOWER

Washington, D. C., May 23.—(AP)—Farmers' cash income from marketings in April totaled $489,000,000, compared with $583,000,000 in the same month last year, the bureau of agricultural economics reported today.

The April total represented a 16 per cent decline from that of April, 1937, and a reduction of 4 per cent from the March, 1938, estimated income of $512,000,000.

Government benefit payments to farmers in April were $60,000,000, the same amount as in March, but $3,000,000 less than in April, 1937. Cash income and benefit payments combined amounted to $549,000,000, compared with $646,000,000 in the corresponding month of 1937.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

by HOMER NEISZ

200 Lambs Arrive

May 23, 1938.

ABOUT 200 young lambs are romping in the pastures at the Tribune's Du Page county farm and more are expected during the next two or three weeks. The manager of the farm says the lambs are stronger and more thrifty this spring than usual. He thinks there are two reasons for this—the daily exercise that was given the ewes all winter and the fact that the lambs were born late in the open fields where they could get plenty of fresh air and sunshine.

This makes the ninth crop of spring lambs born at the farm since the flock was started in the summer of 1929. "We got into the sheep business in an effort to rebuild some run-down soil," the manager said. "We have kept it up because we like the sheep and because they have proved to be a good investment."

Land Once Overworked.

Then he explained that much of the land on the farm had been overworked in growing wheat and other grains during the world war. It had grown up in weeds and was of little value for farming.

"We thought that by pasturing sheep we could kill out the weeds and get a start toward bringing the land back to where it would grow crops again. We bought 200 feeder lambs—native yearlings—that first summer and turned them in the field across the fence where the pure bred Southdowns are grazing now. There was not much for them to eat except weeds. It was about the same on this side of the fence too in those days." Both fields now have good stands of bluegrass and comparatively few weeds.

Only 140 of those first lambs were sent to market that fall. Sixty of the best ewes were kept on the farm and mated with pure bred Lincoln rams. When the lambs were born the following spring the flockmaster picked out some of the best ewe lambs to add to the breeding flock.

In the fall of 1931 it was decided that the sheep enterprise should be expanded and 136 native ewes were bought. This brought the breeding flock up to about 200 ewes. It was increased the next year to 260 and has been kept at about that number ever since.

Southdown Predominates

But the men were not entirely satisfied with the lambs they had raised those first two years. The lambs were big and fattened well, but they did not bring top prices on the market. Smaller lambs usually sold better. So the manager sold the Lincoln rams—Lincolns are large sheep—and bought pure bred Southdown rams in order to produce smaller lambs. Southdown blood has predominated in the flock ever since.

The farm's lambs in recent years have brought good prices. A carload of the grade Southdowns won the reserve grand championship prize at the international live stock exposition in 1936.

Corriedale blood was introduced into the flock in 1934 when two ewes of this breed were given to the farm and some more were bought, together with two Corriedale rams. The rams were mated with part of the grade ewes. Both Corriedale rams died from plant poisoning the following summer and were replaced with Southdowns. Two pure bred Corriedale ewes and a few with half Corriedale blood remain in the breeding flock.

Grade ewes in the flock gradually are being eliminated and replaced with pure bred Southdowns. Sixty-seven pure bred Southdown ewes were brought to the farm from Canada in February, 1937. Some of their last year's lambs will be mated this fall when the flock is to be culled down to ewes having not less than three-quarters Southdown blood. Only pure bred Southdown rams are used.

WHEAT RECEDES AS WAR CLOUDS LIFT IN EUROPE

Reports on New Crop Still Favorable in U. S.

CHICAGO GRAIN FUTURES

	Yesterday.	Saturday.	Year ago.
Wheat	$0.75	$0.76⅝	$1.19⅝
Corn	.58⅜	.58⅛	1.23¼
Oats	.36⅛	.37⅝	.44⅝
Rye	.55¼	.57	1.05¼
Soy beans	.90½	.91	1.72

Less warlike news from Europe and continued favorable reports regarding the outlook for the North American wheat crop yesterday caused a decline of about 1½ cents a bushel in the July and September wheat deliveries on the Chicago Board of Trade. Closing prices were at new low levels since April, 1934. The October contract in the Winnipeg and Liverpool markets reached new low ground for the season.

American wheat markets also were affected by a break of 3⅛ cents a bushel in the July delivery at Winnipeg. Liquidation developed in the Canadian market as a result of lack of export business and favorable weather for the completion of seeding.

Wheat Trading Moderate.

The aggregate trade in wheat was not large. The prospective large winter wheat crop more than offset heavy rains in the southwest which are expected to delay ripening of the new grain. However, the forecast indicated there would be several days of dry and sunshiny weather.

Black rust menaces the North American winter and spring wheat crops, according to H. C. Donovan, crop expert, who returned yesterday from a two weeks' trip in the southwest. In a report to Thomson & McKinnon, Donovan said he found the infection in the early stages throughout the southwest, with developments held in check by cooler than usual weather.

Corn and other grains weakened in sympathy with wheat. Corn closed ½ cent a bushel lower.

Foreign Corn Demand Dull.

Although houses with export connections were fair buyers of July corn at times, messages from New York exporters said the foreign demand was slow, and sales abroad were reported to be confined to small lots.

In the last two weeks more than 10,000,000 bushels of corn were cleared for Europe from American and Canadian ports, and it is expected the demand will be relatively slow until part of the grain has passed into consumption.

Wet weather yesterday further delayed completion of corn planting in many sections of the central west, but the delay is not regarded as serious. Higher temperatures, it was said, would be highly beneficial.

COTTON

Cotton futures held within narrow price limits yesterday in the American markets. There was some selling, attributed to Bombay and Liverpool, but aggregate trade was small. Closing prices on the Chicago Board of Trade were at net losses of .03 to .10 cent a pound. Other American markets were .01 to .04 cent a pound lower.

American cotton traders paid little attention to relative strength in the Liverpool. An upturn there was caused partly by a lessening of political tension in Europe.

Sales of textiles in New York last week were estimated at 10,000,000 yards, or 110 per cent of the current weekly production of mills, many of which are closed down or operating on a greatly reduced basis.

Spot cotton closed unchanged to .05 cent lower, with New Orleans 8.65 cents; New York, 8.50 cents; Houston, 8.45 cents, and Galveston, 8.40 cents a pound. Prices follow:

SMALL BUSINESS MAN PUSHES WAR ON POLITICIANS

8. General recognition, in and out of government, that the government exists for the benefit of the people rather than the present view that the people exist for the benefit of the government. Restoration and expansion of civil service so that the prime requisite for securing a governmental position will be ability to do the job rather than political service to the party.

9. Impartial enforcement of both federal and state laws, irrespective of the number of votes involved, in any strike, sitdown, or otherwise.

10. An immediate, thorough, searching, and impartial senatorial investigation of all alphabetical agencies, with particular reference to waste, graft, and political corruption.

Activities of the association, Emery said yesterday, are being pointed toward the first annual meeting to be held Sept. 13 through 16 in Pittsburgh.

Meeting Date Changed.

"We originally planned to meet in June," he said, "but we want to get as many members as possible before the fall elections. We are a nonpartisan organization, but if we are going to do any good we've got to make our voices heard in Washington and in the congressional districts. We stand on our platform.

"The administration idea in the coming election is 'Buy 'em or scare 'em.' They have got the big business men so scared that they won't express their opinions. If one dissenter sticks up his head they crack him down. If the little business men won't talk, who is there to keep the record straight? There are a lot more little business men than there are big business men, and they can't persecute all of us. And if they do, what have we got to lose?"

Big Firms' Officers Barred.

Jealous of the "small business" character of the organization, the members of the National Small Business Men's Association, Inc., will not permit officers of large corporations to join, Emery said. This rule, he added, has made difficult the collection of sufficient funds to cover the association's expansion.

"Thanks to the suggestion of one of the former 'brain trusters,' however, we have started a scheme which should help us financially," he said. "We are going to get out a 'convention book,' patterned after the 'convention book' published by the Democratic national committee during the 1936 presidential convention.

"The Democratic committee got up to $3.000 a page for advertising, and sold books autographed by President Roosevelt at $250 per copy. We are charging $1,000 per page for advertising for our Pittsburgh convention book and are offering 'autographed' copies at $500 per copy. The administration can hardly criticize such a means of raising funds."

BUTTER PRICES DIP TO LOWEST LEVEL SINCE 1935

Butter prices sagged to new low levels since 1935 yesterday on the Mercantile exchange, the May delivery falling $96 a carlot to 24½ cents a pound. The June fresh standards, in which initial trading was done, also was at 24½ cents. November storage standards eased ⅛ cent to 25⅝ cents, but regained the loss at the close.

The cash market was unchanged to ½ cent lower on the lower grades as stocks accumulate, but the Federal Surplus Commodity corporation maintained quotations on the 81 and 92 score butter with purchases of 35,000 pounds. It also bought 42,200 pounds of 89 score butter.

Egg futures were off ¼ cent, with Octobers closing at 22⅜ and May storage packs at 21¼ cents. The cash market was steady.

COURT REBUFFS ATTACK ON CITY BANKRUPTCY ACT

Du Pont Loses Cellophane Trademark Fight.

Washington, D. C., May 23.—(AP)—The United States Supreme court refused today to reconsider its April 25 decision holding constitutional the revised municipal bankruptcy act permitting cities and improvement and school districts to reduce their indebtedness through agreements with creditors in federal bankruptcy courts.

A rehearing was sought by a group of minority bondholders of the Lindsay-Strathmore irrigation district of Tulare county, California, who lost under the recent six to two ruling.

E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. failed in an effort to prevent the Waxed Products Company, Inc., of New York, from using the word "cellophane" to describe a transparent cellulose product.

Trademark Violation Charged.

The high court refused to pass upon a decision of the Second Circuit Court of Appeals that the du Pont competitor could use the term "cellophane in its advertisments provided it shall prefix the maker's name as a possessive." Du Pont contended use of the trademarked term by others was a violation of trademark rights.

The court dismissed an appeal by the Laclede Gas Light company of St. Louis, Mo., which sought to escape compliance with an order of the Missouri public service commission requiring the utility to reduce by 6 per cent its rates to domestic and commercial consumers in St. Louis. The Missouri Supreme court had approved the rate order.

The utility told the court the order violated the due process clause of the constitution in that it compelled the firm "to devote its property to the public service without the opportunity to earn a reasonable return."

Minnesota Law Upheld.

A 1935 Minnesota law prohibiting the importation of certain intoxicating liquor unless it is registered in the United States patent office was held constitutional by the Supreme court.

Justice Brandeis delivered the decision that reversed a ruling by a three judge federal District court in Minnesota holding the statute violated the equal protection clause of the constitution. The law was challenged by the Joseph Triner corporation, which had been manufacturing liquor in Chicago and shipping it into Minnesota. The corporation contended it would cost $1,600 and require at least six months to register its brands.

Chicago failed in its effort to escape paying to the receiver of the West Side-Atlas National bank of Chicago the proceeds of the sale of securities the bank had turned over to the city as a pledge for a municipal deposit of $160,000. The high court refused to pass upon a decision of the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals awarding the receiver $77,375 plus interest from April 2, 1936.

Chicago Phone Rate Case.

The court affirmed a federal District court ruling that a Chicago telephone subscriber could not have the Chicago telephone rate case reopened for the purpose of obtaining additional refunds for himself and other subscribers of the Illinois Bell Telephone company.

The Holyoke Water Power company was denied a review of a federal Circuit Court of Appeals decision which allows American Writing Paper company to generate electric power from sites owned by the power company
